

THE TWO-CENT FARE BILL COMES TO THE CENTER OF THE LEGISLATIVE STAGE

Attempt to Take Matter From Railroad Committee Fails.

Members Instructed to Report a Bill in Five Days.

The Senate Committee Resumes Its Hearings on Measure.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Feb. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 2-cent fare bill is assuming a position in the center of the legislative stage. This morning an attempt was made to take the matter out of the hands of the house railroad committee, but it failed, and instead of that the railroad committee was instructed to report in a bill within five days. The senate committee resumed its hearing on the measure this afternoon and there are reports that at the conclusion of the hearing an attempt will be made to report the bill out immediately. On the other hand, it is reported that the railroads may suggest a compromise on a maximum rate of 2½ cents with 500-mile books at 2 cents good for members of the purchaser's family, and other conveniences. Representative White this morning moved that the 2-cent fare bill be recalled to the house railroad committee and given to a special committee of three to report a bill. CODE AMENDED.

Laws for Insurance Companies More Strict in District of Columbia.

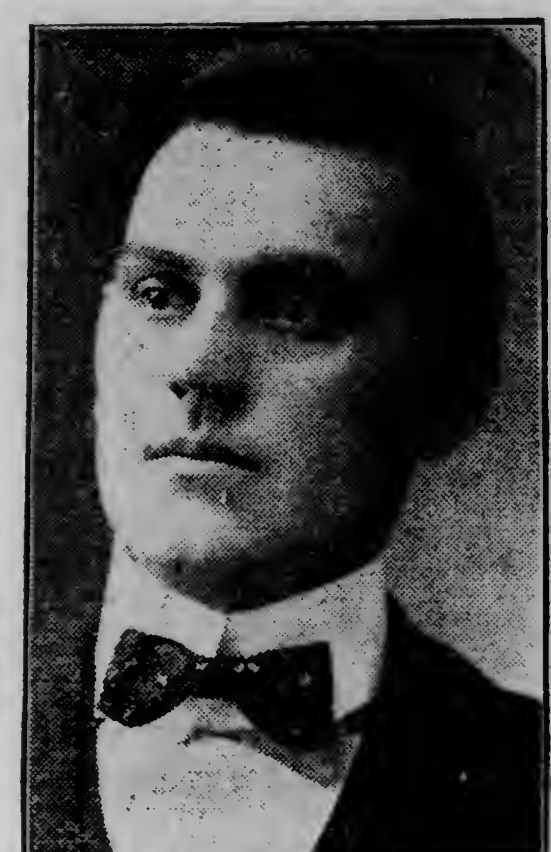

Washington, Feb. 19.—The house has passed a bill amending the code of the District of Columbia relative to assessment life insurance companies. The bill provides that insurance companies must have $50,000 assets if they do not issue policies above $1,000, and $100,000 invested assets if they do issue the large policies, and that these assets shall always be at least 3 per cent of the total risks of the company. The small sick benefit companies are required to have a guaranty fund of at least $10,000, and that it be at least 3 per cent of their outstanding life risks. It is also provided that expenses of such companies shall not exceed 50 per cent of the premiums received in any year, so that at least the balance of premiums and all forfeitures shall be paid in losses or dividends or placed in reserve for the benefit of the policyholders. At present less than one-quarter of the premiums usually goes to their benefit.

BARKEEPER SHOOTS TWO

Is Himself Killed Later by an Unknown Assassin.

Liquor Question Causes Triple Tragedy at Malden, Mo.

Malden, Mo., Feb. 19.—"Doctor" A. L. Brannon, a saloonkeeper, who last night shot and killed Attorney D. B. Cox, and J. W. Beall, in the latter's office, was shot and killed himself a few hours later, while being removed from the jail at Malden to Kennett for safe keeping. The killing of Brannon was by an unidentified person standing in the shadow of a building near the Malden jail. The trouble leading up to the killing of Cox and Beall is said to have been over the liquor question. Brannon, who is a member of a well known family in this county (Dunklin), came here several years ago and started to sell liquor near the city limits across the New Madrid county line. He recently erected a distillery, but it was not yet in operation. Cox was mayor of this city for four terms and was prosecuting attorney of Dunklin county for two terms. He was shot through the heart and back. Brannon then snatched his revolver at Dr. H. H. Beall, father of the dead Beall, but the weapon was empty. He then proceeded down the street and walked into the arms of City Marshal Barnham, who looked him up in the police station. Dr. J. W. Beall was a division surgeon for the Cotton Belt railroad and an officer in the Masonic grand lodge of Missouri. He was about 30 years old and married. He was an ardent temperance and local opinion advocate and was a close friend of Attorney Cox.

REPRESENTATIVE SAARI, Who Presented Protests to Legislature Against Tonnage Tax on Iron Ore.

TRIP TO THE IRON RANGE

To be Made by Legislative Committee Thursday to Monday.

Protests From Virginia and Hibbing Presented to the House.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Feb. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first protest from the range country against the proposed tonnage tax on iron mines came in to the house at its session yesterday afternoon, one each from Hibbing and Virginia, giving the resolutions adopted at mass meetings held there recently. These resolutions presented with strength the reasons why a tonnage tax would be injurious, if not fatal to the range communities. They were offered by Representative Saari of Sparta, and were referred to the committee on mines and minerals. The joint committee on the investigation of mining taxation is to meet this afternoon, when it will probably be decided whether or not there will be a trip over the range to the iron mines. The committee now seems to be that the trip should be taken, and that it will begin Thursday afternoon, when the committee (Continued on page 5, first column.)

FIVE CAUGHT IN MICHELET'S NET

White Earth Police Bag Quintet of Alleged Timber Thieves.

White Earth, Minn., Feb. 19.—The White Earth police, under the direction of Simon Michelet, made a raid among timber trespassers operating along the southern boundary of the reservation, resulting in the arrest of John J. Crause, Frederick J. Crause, Edward Ulthie, Winfield Wilkins, and Walter Wilkins, who were caught hauling green pine and other timber off of the reservation lands and from lands recently allotted under the Stearnson act and for which patent has not yet been issued. The offenders were brought to the agency and turned over to H. A. Ryder, a United States deputy marshal, who took them to Detroit. They appeared before Peter Schroeder, United States commissioner, where they waived examination and were held on $500 bonds each pending their appearance before the United States grand jury at the May term in Fergus Falls. This timely action on the part of Mr. Michelet will undoubtedly have a tendency to put a check to the wholesale and indiscriminate vandalism which has been going on along the borders of the reservation for several years.

It is believed that these telegrams will show with whom Walker dealt and possibly lead to the recovery of some of the bank's securities.

CONDEMNS POLYGAMY

Senator Reed Smoot Addresses Senate in His Own Defense.

Declares He is Absolutely Free to Act as Senator.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Speaking in his own defense, today, Senator Reed Smoot of Utah condemned polygamy in the strongest terms, declaring that polygamy does not now exist in Utah, and insisting that he has never taken an oath as an apostle in the church which would in any way prevent him discharging the duties of senator and citizen with the utmost fidelity. He himself had never had but one wife, and would not think of giving his official or personal sanction to any other arrangement in the case of other members of the Mormon church. In support of his contention that polygamy was a dead letter among the Mormons, Mr. Smoot took up in detail the early campaign against the practice by the government and the tacit agreement on the part of the church to abandon it. The Mormons, he said, at first defended their rights in this respect as a part of their religion. Finally, wishing to obey the law of the land, they agreed to stop the practice, and in 1890 a manifesto was issued to that effect.

Socialists, Who Are Anti-Monarchists, Are Not Present.

Kaiser Reads His Speech With Great Elocutionary Effect.

Says General Situation Assures Continuation of Peace.

Berlin, Feb. 19.—Emperor William opened the new reichstag amid a gorgeous stage setting in the great white hall of the palace, identified for centuries with great events of the house of Hohenzollern. Members of the reichstag, in uniform or evening dress, assembled on the floor of the hall, but there was not a Socialist among them, for being anti-monarchists and Republicans, they refused to countenance the sovereign in any form. The empress, attended by the Crown Princess Cecilia and numerous princesses of the German ruling houses, occupied a great box at one end of the hall, while from another box, adjoining the imperial lodge, the diplomatic corps surveyed the scene. Among those in the latter box were Ambassador and Mrs. Tower and Prof. and Mrs. Burgess. The emperor attended the divine service in the private chapel of the palace at 10:30 a. m., and listened to a sermon by Court Preacher Faber, who took as his text the words of the prophet Isaiah: "Be not afraid." After this the emperor waited in the picture gallery adjoining the (Continued on page 4, fifth column.)

JAPS NOT SATISFIED

With the Exclusion Bill Directed Against Coolies.

Fear San Francisco People Will Become Overbearing.

Tokio, Feb. 19.—The official text of President Roosevelt's amendment of the exclusion bill has been published. As expected it has created the strongest dissatisfaction among the interested parties, although the movements of procedure have not yet assumed a definite shape.

The Japanese residents of the Hawaiian Islands have telegraphed President Roosevelt and the Hawaiian representatives in the house indicating the seriousness of the injury which will be caused to their rights and interests by this legislation. The leaders of opinion here are aware, however, that under the circumstances the only alternative is to calmly resign themselves to the situation, hoping that the government can arrange with the American authorities to reduce the sacrifice in the interest of Japanese immigrants to a minimum. They regret the new law, lest the San Francisco people, glorying in their success, should assume an overbearing attitude. News of this kind would only tend to injure Japanese susceptibilities which President Roosevelt has been especially careful to avoid. Shonts' submission under oppression is something that the Japanese cannot entertain.

Says White Made Advances to Her After Her Marriage.

Jerome Reserves Right to Cross-Examine Her Later.

Mrs. Caine, a Boston Milliner, Follows Mrs. Thaw.

New York, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Evelyn Thaw today concluded her story of her connection with the Thaw-White tragedy. She was the first witness called today at the trial of her husband, and before the luncheon recess was ordered she had been given into the hands of District Attorney Jerome for cross-examination. Mr. Jerome reserved his right, saying he had not yet determined whether the cross-examination was needful as to the issues involved in the case. While Mr. Jerome thus released the prisoner's young wife for the time being, he soon found himself in a position to indirectly attack her credibility, although in answering Mr. Delmas' objections he declared that he had no such purpose in mind. This was when the defense had introduced Mrs. J. J. Caine of Boston, Mass., as a witness. Mrs. Caine had testified to hearing Harry Thaw ask Mrs. Nesbitt that he be allowed to marry her daughter. She also testified to an incident at the theater, in which Stanford White appeared, the object being to show the effect which his presence had on the defendant. When Mrs. Caine was taken in hand by Mr. Jerome he began a searching inquiry into her acquaintance with the Thaws, and asked her all about their movements, directing his questions particularly to the trip which Thaw and Evelyn Nesbitt made to Europe. He brought out the fact that Mrs. Nesbitt had not accompanied her daughter on this trip and next took up the movements of the defendant and Miss Nesbitt after their return from Europe in 1904. He asked about "the Hotel Cumberland episode" referring to the time when Miss Nesbitt and Thaw were required to leave that hotel unless they registered as man and wife. This latter fact was not gotten before (Continued on page 2, second column.)

Sale of Spring Wearables.

J. M. Gidding & Co. have announced for this week a most interesting sale of entirely new and crisp spring wearables at old prices. This is absolutely a new idea and one which has heretofore never been tried. But the firm has been successful in their endeavor to clear the sales which they have been conducting for the past month or so, that their stock of winter wearables are practically reduced to a minimum and the firm has decided to invent a scheme whereby the last two weeks of February, which are unprofitably considered the dullest weeks of the year, will be turned into most busy ones. Their idea is this: Since the winter wearables are practically gone, they have taken many lines of new spring garments which are just fresh from the makers and put them on sale at February clearing prices in order to induce the people to buy thus early in the season. ***

EXAMINATION OF MRS. CAINE

Conducted by District Attorney Jerome at Afternoon Session.

New York, Feb. 18.—District Attorney Jerome returned early from luncheon and for ten minutes before court convened was engrossed in reading a voluminous typewritten document which was handed him by a clerk. Thaw, McPike and Harrington had a conference, Thaw and his lawyers lying across the table with their heads together.

Mrs. Caine's cross-examination was immediately resumed after Justice Fitzgerald appeared. She said she and Mrs. Thaw occupied the Cuneo first street apartments three weeks and that she paid the rent out of her own money.

Jerome asked Mrs. Caine if she had heard that Thaw and Miss Nesbit had been elected from the Cuneo apartment house. She replied that she had read it in a paper was stricken out.

Jerome pressed Mrs. Caine about the payment of the rent for the apartment, asking whether she had ever been reimbursed for her expenditure, but she could not remember to have in her answer which was no. After they left this apartment, Mrs. Caine and Evelyn went to Dr. Bull's sanitarium for the second operation.

All the time they were at the Ninety-first street, she and her husband maintained their own apartments at West Thaw street. Miss Nesbit and Thaw continued to go together, Thaw sent an electric cab for her.

During that time, at dinner and theater parties, she said Thaw's appearance, speech and conduct was rational, except when he saw White.

PUPILS MANGLE OLD SONG.

Only 100 of 10,000 Brooklyn Children Know "Star Spangled Banner."

Brooklyn Eagle: Johnny and Lizzie—and in this case that means all the Johnnies and Lizzies in the Brooklyn Public schools—may know "Waiting at the Church for the Japanese national anthem" but they don't know "The Star Spangled Banner." And it's their own song, too.

Mr. Campbell sent out an order to each of the schools in the five districts, requesting that every child in every class from 1A to 5B, the grammar grades, write from memory, with no preparation, the words of the "Star Spangled Banner."

The age scale of these children is from about eleven to sixteen years. The result was that out of 10,000 children only 100 had perfect papers, and the rest were so far from the right words that a self-respecting American citizen would fail to recognize them.

He never thought that his line about "ramparts" was going to be such a stunner. One little patriot from a 5A school wrote: "The Star Spangled Banner, the Star Spangled Banner, the Star Spangled Banner, the Star Spangled Banner."

There is an original note in the following which shows how the writer's future as comic opera lyricist:

O say can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars
Through the perilous flight
O'er the land as we washed was so gallantly streaming?

On the shore dimly seen through the mist of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze doth tell?
O'er the land and the sea and the home of the free.

yet ways o'er the land and the sea and the home of the brave.

On the shore dimly seen through the mist of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in conceal'd disposes
Now it catches a gleam of the morning's In full glory reflected now shines on the stream
'Tis the star spangled banner Oh long may it wave o'er the land and the sea and the home of the brave.

Oh thus be it ever when freemen shall Blessed victory and peace may the

Oh say does that star banded banner

For the benefit of some who may have forgotten the words of the song, "As she

Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's

What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight

Whose broad stripes and bright stars

O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming?

And the rockets' red glare, the bombs

Gave proof through the night that our

O'er the land and the sea and the home

On that shore, dimly seen through the

STRANGE WORK FOR WOMEN.

Milwaukee Sentinel: "Girls are displacing men in walks of life undreamed of only a decade ago," said August H. Kaemig, deputy state factory inspector of Sheboygan. "Up in my own city girls have been working in the varnish rooms of the chair factories for almost twenty years and within the last ten years many others have found employment in one of the foundries examining kitchen utensils. Barring the intense heat of the rooms, the work is comparatively easy though it does seem strange to find women in foundries."

"The bottling departments of the breweries also employ girls in preference to boys, and the work being almost automatic, where other conditions are wholesome, little criticism can be made."

"It was not until I entered upon my present duties that I learned that girls are also being employed in tanneries. I am a tanner by trade so that it was quite a surprise to me when I saw frail women perform work which fell to sturdy men in former years. These girls are principally employed in the chrome departments. In Northern Wisconsin some of our inspectors have found women employed in the saw-mills."

BETTER BUILDING LAWS.

Movement Started by International Society of Building Inspectors.

Washington, Feb. 19.—A most vigorous movement is being inaugurated by the International Society of Building Inspectors to get the proper authorities of the country to enact more stringent building regulations, laws that will absolutely prohibit the use of combustible materials in exposed or dangerous locations. Such action is deemed necessary for anything like even the moderate safety of cities. Even with such drastic regulations, great fires and conflagrations will still be possible, (there is already so much that is inflammable all about) but they will at least prevent the addition of more fuel to such possible fires. As conditions are today our fire waste, the actual cost to the country of property destroyed by fire, approaches perilously near what we are expending in new buildings. In other words, according to the society's experts, we are adding but little to the country's supply of buildings.

The state legislatures are being asked to enact such legislation as will bar the construction of inflammable buildings in cities so that the cities will have no discretion in the matter; state law will control.

"SHORTY" WESLEY

Arraigned for Dahl Murder But the Case is Continued.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—James (Shorty) Wesley, who was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Anna Solberg, north of Deer River, on Feb. 9, on the charge of killing N. O. Dahl, was arraigned yesterday before O. M. Skirvik, justice of the peace, and at the request of the county attorney, his case was continued until Feb. 25. Wesley was once before arrested on the charge of complicity in the murder of Dahl and his daughter Agost, and was brought to Bemidji and indicted, but was subsequently released for lack of evidence. The present county attorney seems to believe he has evidence that will convict Wesley of the crime, and will prosecute along that line.

WOODSMAN KILLED.

Axel Anderson Struck by Log at Tower Lumber Company's Camp.

Tower, Minn., Feb. 19.—Axel Anderson, a woodsman, 23 years of age, was instantly killed at the Tower Lumber company's logging camp No. 36, yesterday. Anderson was working with a crew of loggers and his work consisted of keeping the logs straight while they were being hoisted to the top of the load. One of the logs became loose from the chain and dropped back, striking Anderson on the head and killing him instantly. The unfortunate man has a sister living in Minneapolis and the body will be sent there for burial.

L. C. WILMAR IS DEAD.

Heaviest Property Owner in Ashland Has Passed Away.

Ashland, Wis., 19.—L. C. Wilmar, ex-mayor of Ashland and one of the oldest and most respected citizens of the town, died yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the age of 73 years.

Mr. Wilmar paid more taxes than any other man in Ashland. He was the heaviest property holder, owning five of the largest blocks in the downtown section of the town. He established the first bank, and served several terms in the council and as a member of the board of county commissioners. He was mayor in 1891 and 1892.

He was born at Foster, R. I., and graduated from Oberlin college. While still a young man he went to Kansas, where he helped to lay out Topeka. From there he came to Ashland, where he has since been engaged in business. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. H. B. Warner.

WILL OF LATE COUNT CREIGHTON IS FILED.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 19.—The will of the late Count John A. Creighton was filed for probate yesterday. It makes specific bequests of $150,000, of which $50,000 goes to relatives and his housekeeper and $100,000 goes to educational and benevolent institutions, the Creighton university leading with $50,000.

But all that is left over, estimated to be upwards of $500,000 is to be distributed among the beneficiaries specifically named in the will in the same proportions that their shares bear to the whole amount. Thus, it is estimated, each one will receive four to five times as much as specifically named. Large bequests are made to a number of charitable institutions.

Marion, Ill., Feb. 19.—Nora Turner, daughter of C. H. Turner of Harrisburg, Ill., shot Robert Kennedy, and then shot herself. Both will die. Miss Turner for some weeks past has been keeping company with Kennedy, who is a conductor on the Coal Belt Electric railroad. The couple quarreled Sunday night and Kennedy demanded keepsakes he had given the girl. Before separating Miss Turner told Kennedy that she would kill him if he did not marry her yesterday. At noon she shot him. They were alone when the shooting took place.

NELSON THE ORATOR.

He Will Speak at Norwegian Celebration in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 19.—One of the attractions at the annual celebration of May 17, the Norwegian Fourth of July, to be held in Milwaukee this year, will be Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota. Rev. Gustav Stearns, pastor of the Church of the Ascension, who has had charge of making arrangements for the banquet which is to be held at the Hotel Flister in celebrating the holiday, recently interviewed the Minnesota senator and secured a promise from him to deliver an address, providing he can make satisfactory arrangements. Senator Nelson is personally known to many of the Scandinavian residents of Wisconsin, having himself formerly been a resident of this state.

Conference Report on Immigration Bill Passes 187 to 101.

Burnett of Alabama Makes Strong Protest Against It.

Washington, Feb. 18.—After the reading of the conference report on the immigration bill Representative Burnett of Alabama made points of order against the first provision, which undertakes to regulate the incoming of the Japanese coolies by giving the president authority to refuse to recognize their passports and also against the whole section 42, having relation to the air space in vessels bringing immigrants to the United States.

As to the first proposition, Mr. Burnett insisted that the authority conferred by the section on the president put in his hands a "big stick" which he could wield over a state. He declared that it gave the chief executive a power which was never contemplated by the constitution nor by the enabling act of any sovereign state.

As to the second proposition, it was Mr. Burnett's contention that the air space provision properly belonged in a bill relating to navigation and had no part in a bill regulating the immigration of aliens into the United States.

The appeal of Mr. Burnett against the ruling of Speaker Cannon relating to certain sections in the immigration bill, was laid on the table by a strict party vote, yeas 156, nays 104.

Mr. Burnett of New York, in charge of the conference report, contended that the points of order made against the two provisions should not lie because the provisions had been considered by the house in other bills and had really been considered in connection with the immigration bill.

Mr. Williams of Mississippi said that the provisions relating to alien admission as affecting the question of mixed schools in California had been injected into the bill to avoid possible foreign complications and that it was a matter which neither house had an opportunity to discuss.

Personally, he said, he was with California in the stand it had taken regarding the right of Japanese to attend the white schools and he would stand by the people of California to do anything for themselves as to the manner in which their schools should be conducted.

Speaker Cannon advised Mr. Williams that in discussing points of order politics could not be considered and that the only thing in controversy was whether the section adopted by the conference was proper in the bill.

Mr. Williams bowed, "I yield to the wisdom of the chair," he said, "but I give notice that I am going to talk about matters contained in the house substitute to the bill and I shall take the side of California."

(From the Chicago Tribune.)

Mr. Watson read from a decision made by Speaker Colfax which sustained the right of the conferees to introduce new matter in a conference report, providing the subject had received consideration even in connection with some other measure. He took the ground that the sections in dispute were in the bill as a matter of right. Mr. Bennett of New York supported the report on the ground that the whole immigration question had been thrown into conference.

The conference report on the immigration bill was agreed to by the house, yeas 187, nays 101.

NEGLECTED COLDS THROATEN LIFE.

"Don't trifle with a cold," is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are neglected through the changeable weather of autumn, winter and spring, the chances of a surprise from ordinary colds will be slight. But the ordinary light cold will become severe if neglected, and a well established cold is to the bee. The greatest menace to child life at this season of the year is the neglect of a cold. Whether it is a child or adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The greatest popularity and immense sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when it is given. For sale by all druggists.

BIG SHARK IS HOOKED BY GEORGE GOULD, JUNIOR.

New York, Feb. 18.—While his mother looked on from the bridge of their yacht, and his two sisters urged him to land his prize, George Gould, Jr., hooked one of the biggest sharks ever seen in the Gulf stream off Cuba or the Florida coast.

The boy, who is 17 years old, had a twenty-minute tussle with the big fish, but at the very minute of being landed the huge shark gave one final struggle and by his own sheer weight straightened out the heavy steel hook and slid by the side of the boat.

Mr. Gould is one of those who testify to the enormous size of the fish, which is described as a fifteen-footer.

New York, Feb. 18.—There are nearly 6,000 links in the chain of evidence which detectives of the East Sixty-seventh street station are trying to pick up in their search for miscreants who stole pounds of frankfurters and bologna from Louis Glinn of No. 1427 Second avenue. Not a single sausage has as yet rewarded their efforts.

One of Glinn's trucks, deep laden with this freight, was taking through the streets on the upper East side. There was only the driver to protect it, and he went into a store, leaving the helpless frankfurter alone in the zero air and ripe for the lust of any daring prowler. The prowler was there, and sausages, horse and wagon vanished. Waving his arms and breathing heavily, the driver rushed into the po-

GETS NEW ARMAMENT

Training Ship Gopher Will Have Several Additional Guns.

Will Also be Equipped With Ardois Signaling Outfit.

Commander Guy Eaton of the naval militia boat Gopher has received word from the New York navy yard that shipment to Duluth of two Hotchkiss rapid-firing guns of the 1-pound type. The guns were shipped on Feb. 16, and should arrive in this city within a few days.

As the outfitting of the Gopher will be begun within a few weeks, Commander Eaton will have the new guns installed upon the boat at once. They will both be mounted upon the aft quarter deck and will be quite an addition to the armament of the little man-of-war.

The guns can both be easily dismounted and can be placed in one of the government cutters and brought ashore for field practice at any time. They can also be used in target practice from the cutter, as they can be mounted in the bows of these small boats.

At present the armament of the Gopher consists of three pounders, which are mounted upon the main deck, so that with the new guns there will be a total of five guns. A little later in the spring the local militia company will receive one of the Colt automatic rapid-firing machine guns for the Gopher. These are mounted upon tripods and can be moved from one part of the boat to another without any trouble.

Commander Eaton has also received a letter from the government authorities stating that the Gopher will be supplied with the Ardois signaling outfit at the opening of navigation this year. This is the same outfit which is used on all the ships of the United States navy and consists of a string of red and white lights extending from the foremast to the stern.

The Gopher is now in winter quarters in the Lake avenue slip, where a crew of six men is kept on duty through the winter to look after her. The work of outfitting the boat for the opening of navigation will be begun about April 1.

FELL DEAD AT THE THEATER

Sudden Demise of Ashton Lemoine, the Naval Architect.

New York, Feb. 18.—Just as he stepped to the box office window of the Bijou theater to purchase tickets for himself and a woman who accompanied him, Ashton Lemoine, member of many prominent clubs and well known naval architect of this city, fell dead.

He had been standing in line for several minutes, and his turn had come to receive treatment at the time during which he was fatally stricken.

Mr. Lemoine fell forward on his face and his men in the crowd rushed to catch him. It was not for several minutes that it was realized by the score of more spectators that he was dead.

The woman seemed very little agitated by the death of her companion. She was offered sympathetic aid by several women, but declined, and said to one of them that her acquaintance with Mr. Lemoine was purely business.

She soon left the theater lobby with one of the women who had spoken to her. All of the time the Peggy, who is the star of the theater, was being learned of Mr. Lemoine's sudden death, and were much shocked, but the event in no way interfered with the performance.

When the police were informed of the affair Mr. Lemoine's body was removed to the West Thirtieth street station, where relatives claimed it. Later in the night, in a search to identify the man the police found a large sum of money and two checks made out to Ashton Lemoine by Roland P. Ward, each for less than $200.

Mr. Lemoine was 62 years old, a bachelor, and lived in apartments at No. 134 East Twenty-ninth street. He had not been ill lately, though he had received treatment at times during the last year for heart trouble. He was a member of the firm of Tams, Lemoine & Crane, naval architects and marine engineers, of No. 52 Pine street, and was a graduate of Princeton university. He was a member of Princeton, New York yacht, Larchmont yacht, Calumet, Corinthian and Rockaway Hunt clubs. In 1904 he went to Europe on a tour of inspection, and was an enthusiast in that sport.

Police inquiry failed to discover the identity of the woman who accompanied Mr. Lemoine to the theater, and his friends were at loss to establish who she was.

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of these were most oppressive, and some would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I looked for a cure, and I found it. I will gladly send the cure free to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

By a deal closed Saturday afternoon between F. A. Patrick & Co. of this city, and the Fosston Woolen Mill of Fosston, Minn., the local wholesale dry goods concern has purchased the entire stock of merchandise, raw material, etc., and has secured a long term lease on the machinery, buildings, and real estate of the woolen mills company.

The transaction is regarded as one of much importance to both Duluth and Northern Minnesota, as it means a continuation of a plant in the northern part of the state, operated and controlled by Duluth capital.

The woolen mill was established twenty years ago in Fosston, Minn., a thriving town of about 1,500 inhabitants, on the main line of the Great Northern railroad, 212 miles directly west of Duluth. The town is situated in the center of a good farming district, only a short distance from the White Earth Indian reservation.

The mill has grown to a plant of large proportions, and gives employment to a large number of people. The industry has contributed greatly in making the town of Fosston known to the industrial world as a manufacturing center of the best line of woolen goods distributed among the merchants of the North. The mill is a large selling agency to push the merits of its line of goods from the Michigan Soo to the Pacific coast.

The people of Fosston are greatly pleased that the purchasers will continue to operate the mill where it is now located, and F. A. Patrick & Co. are being commended by the Fosston interests generally. Had the mill been transferred to another locality the change would have been very detrimental to the town of Fosston and the surrounding country.

This transaction marks another epoch in the history of progress of F. A. Patrick & Co. Commencing business seven years ago the company has three times been compelled to add to its floor space by building. During the seven years past the company's sales staff has been increased from forty to forty-four men. Traveling salesmen are now soliciting business from the Soo, Michigan, to the Pacific Coast states.

Four years ago the company opened its "Northland" factory, manufacturing overalls, jackets, machine-made pants, duck coats, etc. The growth of the factory has been rapid and the demands for the "Northland" goods has become such that over 175 people are now employed in the factory.

F. A. Patrick & Co. claim that it has been their experience that goods of their own manufacture gave the best satisfaction with the trade, and with this idea in mind the company has purchased the Fosston mill, to more fully enlarge its facilities.

FAVORABLE REPORT

Authorized by the Senate Committee on the Naval Bill.

Washington, Feb. 18.—After one sitting the senate committee on naval affairs today authorized a favorable report on the naval appropriation bill. In view of the opposition manifested by new legislation on appropriation bills the committee decided not to introduce any such matter in the present bill. However a number of amendments were recommended. The most important of which was the addition of $3,000,000 for the armament of new battleships, the increase bringing the total up to $12,000,000. The house provision for two battleships of the Dreadnaught type was not amended. The committee then considered for some time a proposition for the inclusion of the naval personnel bill in the appropriation measure, but decided to allow that matter to go over until next session, with the understanding, however, that the committee would meet to consider the subject and with the view of securing an independent measure, which will meet the requirements of the situation both as to line and staff officers.

SETTLEMENT IS REACHED

City of Superior Gets $20,000 Taxes From Elevators.

At a conference held yesterday between the city officials of Superior and representatives of the elevator interests, an agreement was reached by the terms of which the elevators will pay the city $20,000 in compromise of outstanding tax indebtedness. The terms are said to be those outlined by Mayor Victor Linley.

The Great Northern Railway company has agreed to pay $10,000 assessed against the city's elevators in 1906 and the assessment against the grain stores in the city of Superior, Minn., for the year 1906. The city's elevators last spring will be paid by the company against whom the assessments were made.

Under the terms of the settlement the city agrees to drop the suits instituted to recover the amount of taxes not included in the settlement. It is provided, further, that the assessment against the grain in the city of Superior last fall need not be settled until the spring of 1907, when the city will be in a position to pay the tax assessment set aside.

The grain stored in the elevators last spring was assessed at a total of $7,000. After the board of review passed on the matter, the elevator interests asked the court to set the tax aside. Judge Vinje of the circuit court decided in favor of the city and the elevator people appealed.

When the matter of a compromise of the 1906 grain taxes came up in the Superior court, the mayor and city attorney presented arguments against the city's settlement. The city treasurer was authorized by the council to collect the back taxes on the basis of $20,000 on the day, but Mayor Linley vetoed the measure. The council then passed a resolution with the city's action relative to the 1906 taxes. The elevator interests would not agree to this and the city attorney instituted a suit to recover the balance of the 1906 taxes. To avoid further litigation the elevator interests are said to have accepted the terms of the city.

will leave here, and continue through the Wisconsin territory, reaching the Iron Range about the middle of the month.

Wednesday afternoon the committee will hold another meeting, when Dwight L. Woodbridge of Duluth, will be called to testify as a mining expert, and give such information as the committee may call for relative to the iron mining industry.

The house met at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the senate at 3 o'clock last evening. The house session ran over two hours and a half, most of the time being taken up with receiving committee reports and considering bills in committee.

A large number of bills were reported out from committee, and a general order was made for the consideration of the bills. By way of change from the monotony attendant upon the receipt of numerous petitions asking for the adoption of the county option law, one was received from the Iron Range, signed by residents of the Iron Range, asking for the adoption of the county option law.

The Webb bill, allowing counties having a percentage of more than 100 to appropriate $500 for exhibits at the state fair, was recommended to pass by the committee to which it was referred.

The house committee on general legislation, of which Representative Hugo of Duluth is chairman, reported out without recommendation the bill introduced by Representative Woodbridge of Duluth, relative to the Iron Range, asking for the adoption of the county option law.

Representative Wells renewed the bill providing that checks on banks be filed with registers of deeds instead of town clerks from extinction. Last Thursday the bill was taken up in committee, and Mr. Wells had it reconsidered and laid upon the table. He said that he may have a new show for it if the senate should adopt a similar bill pending over to tomorrow by a notice of debate.

Among the bills offered in the house yesterday afternoon were the following: C. R. Miller, Duluth, by request, to amend the law relating to the sale of land for county road-building. Minnesota—To prevent fraud in the sale of land for county road-building.

ITASCA COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Is Chairman O'Brien Legally a Member of the Board?

Grand Rapids, Minn., Feb. 19.—The troubles over the county board do not appear to be ended. The claim is now being made that Morris O'Brien is not legally holding the office of commissioner. It is said that Mr. O'Brien some time during the summer of 1905 moved from Co-hasset in this county to Bena over in Cass county, and became a resident of that place with his family, consisting of his wife and several children, employing a girl to do housework at Bena.

Down in the land office at Cass Lake, there are a number of affidavits to the effect that Mr. O'Brien and his family were residents of Bena at the time final proof on the townsite of Bena was made in 1905. The question is asked, did not the fact that Mr. O'Brien moved out of this county subsequent to his election as county commissioner leave the office vacant?

And after the office became vacant, did Mr. O'Brien have any right to sit at the meetings of the county board as county commissioner.

At the recent meeting of the board, Mr. O'Brien was elected Tug is Breaking Ice Around the Wrecked Interstate Structure.

At last work is about to begin on the contract for clearing away the wreckage of the Interstate bridge. Capt. Reid, who has undertaken the job, has put the tug Manistique in commission breaking ice around the structure, and opening up a channel with the Superior side of the bay, so supplies may be taken to the work.

Capt. Reid says he expects soon to open a channel for the ferry boat between the Duluth and Superior shores. The boat for carrying street car passengers may again be put in commission. Work will be pushed rapidly on the wrecked span from now on.

RAILROADS CAUGHT UP ON ORDERS

Railroads Are Now Handling Pulpwood With Slight Delay.

The Freight Situation is Getting Better Every Day.

According to A. M. Penton, district freight and passenger agent of the Omaha road, this is the first day of the winter that his line has been able to fill all orders for cars for the carrying of pulpwood. All of the roads have been so tied up as a result of the exceptionally heavy traffic, and the many snow storms, together with the long spell of cold weather that came to an end only last week, that they have been unable to care for their pulpwood shipments, and the dealers have had much to worry over as a result.

Because of the congestion of traffic, a large number of cars loaded with the commodity have collected in the yards at Duluth. Mr. Penton says his road is now handling the shipments at the rate of 100 cars a day. The other lines also report an increase in the number of cars hauled, and from now on, with the proper weather conditions, the movement will be very heavy. Pulpwood can be hauled out of Northern Minnesota only up to the time that the roads are able to handle it coming in this direction is hauled over the roads.

Conditions on the local yards in regard to the freight business are getting better daily. Railroad men say that they are more of good weather will straighten the situation out in good shape. The freight is moving along nicely, when compared to the situation a week or two ago, although the delay in getting the trains started is getting less serious right along, however. While some of the passenger trains are running behind schedule in coming into Duluth, the reason for this, almost without exception, is because they have to connect with trains at the starting point, and often are compelled to await their arrival.

The travel on the coast lines is reported to be the heaviest in years. It appears that nobody traveled during the period of blockade, unless they absolutely had to, and so when the trains began operating more nearly on time, with a load of passengers, they were crowded to the point of getting through their destinations without becoming stuck in a snow drift, those who had postponed their journeys, awaiting a more auspicious time, all began traveling at once. The time of it was being crowded yesterday from a trip to Western Montana, and he says the trains were so crowded that one could scarcely find standing room.

NEW CASES ARE FILED

Five Personal Injury Actions Are Begun Against Corporations.

Aggregate Amount of the Claims is Over $40,000.

Five new personal injury cases in which the damages asked aggregate $40,000, were filed with the clerk of the district court this morning, for trial during the March term of the court. The amounts asked vary from $2,000 to $15,150. In all the cases the injuries are claimed to have been caused either by the negligence of employing corporations, or through the carelessness of fellow servants, in which case the employers are held liable.

John Hyonen and Arvid Lahti, who were injured in the Hector mine near Rhyabik, July 2, 1906, have brought suit against the Hector Iron company for $15,150 and for $2,000 respectively. The allegations are practically the same in the two complaints on file with the clerk of court. Both men allege that on the date in question they were engaged in getting a piece of timber out of the mine, the carriage striking a large timber and causing the men serious injuries. Hyonen claims that his leg was broken near the hip joint and that he sustained other injuries. Lahti alleges injuries of a somewhat lesser nature.

Richard Evans has sued the Dunphy Lumber company for $15,150 for injuries received in his leg in the defendant company's sawmill at Wright, Carlton county. He claims that while he was engaged in getting a piece of timber out from between the saw and the husk, the carriage struck him, and he was forced to get up against the saw, cutting the muscles, tendons, and bone, and crippling him. He claims that the accident was caused by the negligence of the company, and that the company was negligent in not having the saw properly guarded.

Phila Janak has sued the Sweeney Furnace company for $2,000 for injuries received in the Sweeney furnace on June 20, 1906. Phila Janak claims that the first day that he worked in the furnace he was not properly instructed, and that he was not given the proper tools. He claims that the explosion came unexpectedly and that he was thrown back to the drift some time after the explosion. He claims that the explosion was caused by the negligence of the company, and that the company was negligent in not having the furnace properly guarded.

Oscar Laitinen has sued the Sweeney Furnace company for $2,000 for injuries received in the Sweeney furnace on June 20, 1906. Oscar Laitinen claims that the first day that he worked in the furnace he was not properly instructed, and that he was not given the proper tools. He claims that the explosion came unexpectedly and that he was thrown back to the drift some time after the explosion. He claims that the explosion was caused by the negligence of the company, and that the company was negligent in not having the furnace properly guarded.

In the damage case of Ambrose Kunder against the Sweeney Furnace company, Judge Capt. has denied the motion for a judgment, notwithstanding the verdict, for a new trial.

Kunder was represented by L. H. Corcoran and Theodore Hollister, and the furnace company was represented by E. C. Kennedy.

STRUCK BY WORK CAR

Horse is Instantly Killed But Driver Escapes Unhurt.

Wagon Overturned and Carried Some Distance on Fender.

By being struck by a work car on the West Third street line at about 5:15 this morning, a horse belonging to O. T. Hessey was killed and Will Sloan, the driver, had a narrow escape from death.

Sloan was driving west on the car track with a wagon load of News Tribunes for West Duluth, and at Forty-fifth avenue west the work car No. 1, coming up from behind at high speed, struck the wagon in the rear, first catching it up on the fender and then throwing it off to one side. The horse was thrown a considerable distance and almost instantly killed.

Sloan, who was driving, was pitched violently back among the papers under the covered top of the wagon, and was saved from rolling under the wheels of the work car by the sides of the wagon, only sustaining a bad scare and a few bruises as a result.

Just how the accident happened is not exactly known, but it is nearly dark at that time of morning, and with the work cars running at the high rate of speed which they sometimes attain at hours when the streets are almost free from traffic, it is easy to see how it might have occurred.

KILLED IN A QUARRY.
Sigurdson Was Dead in Two Hours After Starting Work.

Red Wing, Minn., Feb. 18.—Sigurdson came to Red Wing Saturday evening from Minneapolis to work in the stone quarries now operated by the Milwaukee road on La Grange bluff. He was assigned to the night shift and in less than two hours after he commenced work he was struck by a large rock which fell from the brow of the bluff, eighty feet above his skull was fractured and he died in a few moments. Sigurdson told a fellow workman he had a claim on the Milwaukee road, and that he worked in the stone quarries before coming to Minneapolis.

Joseph J. Parnas, aged 29 years, a farmer residing in Warsaw, Minn., was killed by a train at Stanton, Saturday evening. He was attempting to catch a local freight train and in crossing the main freight train was struck by the Chicago Great Western flyer.

Turbine Engines a Success.
While there is little now that is experimental in the use of turbine machinery on large merchant vessels, such engines have not heretofore been used on large battleships, but the recent trials on the British ship Dreadnought have proved them a great success, allowing her to obtain a remarkable speed. It is now known that on account of the wonderful merit of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters it has been able to successfully cure ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys and that during the past 53 years it has attained an unequalled record of cures.

To prove this statement to your own satisfaction we urge every sick man and woman to try a bottle without delay. It guarantees it to be absolutely pure. It will cure liver and kidney troubles, biliousness, costiveness, headache, dyspepsia, indigestion, grippe or malaria.

SAYS SHE WAS JILTED; SUES IOWAN FOR $5,000.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 18.—Miss Nellie Smith of Waterloo, formerly of Cedar Falls, has begun suit in the district court of Black Hawk county for $5,000 damages from Albert H. Schrag for alleged breach of promise. Schrag is the son of George Schrag, a wealthy farmer, and has recently been employed in a drug store in Des Moines, where he recently graduated from the pharmacy department of Highland Park college. According to Miss Smith's petition, Schrag had been courting her for four years, when, on June 1, 1906, he proposed marriage. She had accepted his proposal, and was preparing for her marriage. Her wedding trousseau had been prepared and other arrangements for the wedding completed, when Schrag came to her about Sept. 1 and told her he had changed his mind.

Miss Smith is 23 years old and is described as an exceptionally pretty young woman. Schrag is about 25 years old.

WHAT IS "LEGAL TENDER."
Los Angeles Times: "What is legal tender?"

The query came from a man who had become involved in a dispute over an account. The matter was to be settled in court, and the man's lawyer told him formally to offer the creditor the amount due "in legal tender." When he went to make the proffer he began to have doubts of just what legal tender was, and he was half ashamed to ask a lawyer. His banker should know and his banker he asked. Then he said:

"Now, really, that's a technical question, and I haven't the answer right at the end of my tongue. But just wait a minute and I'll get it for you."

He touched an electric button and a boy answered.

"Tell Mr. Smith to come here," said the cashier. Then, to his visitor: "He'll know, all right. Smith's our right-hand man when it comes to technical questions. Funny, though, that I don't know just what legal tender is. He makes changes for those who have customs duties to pay. He'll know, all right."

Smith appeared.

"Legal tender," he said. "Why, legal tender is—anything but national bank notes, and I think—"

"You think? Good gracious alive, man, I thought you knew." This from the cashier. Look it up, in the meantime the cashier found among some books a copy of the national bank act of 1863.

"Here it is," he said. He read a paragraph which defined legal tender as follows:

"Gold coin is legal tender for its nominal value when not below the limit of tolerance in weight, when below that limit it is legal tender in proportion to its weight; standard silver dollars and treasury notes of 1890 are legal tender for all debts, public and private, except where otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract; subsidiary silver is legal tender to the extent of $10, minor coins to the extent of 25 cents, and United States notes, for all debts, public and private, except duties on imports, and may be paid out for all public dues, except interest on the public debt."

"There, you are," said the cashier.

NO TIMBER FROM WEST

Delay in Receipts From Coast Retards Work at Dock.

Duluth & Iron Range Structure May Not be Ready.

Consignments of Pacific coast timber, intended for use in the reconstructed No. 5 ore dock of the Duluth & Iron Range road at Two Harbors, are stretched all the way from Duluth to Portland, although long overdue.

This delay in the receipt of timber is delaying the work on the dock and unless the materials arrive very soon, the chances of the reconstructed dock being ready to go into commission again at the opening of the ore shipping season, seem slight.

Over a week ago the Barnett & Record company's men, who are doing the work, were ready to use the Pacific coast stuff but it was not on hand.

The bad weather, which tied up traffic in the West to such an extent during the last month and a half, has had the effect of delaying on route side-tracks and other places along the line from the West, the timber intended for use in the reconstruction of the dock.

If it had not been for the tieup in traffic caused by the bad weather, the chances are that the remodeled dock would have been completed by the opening of the shipping season. At the close of last season, the contractors got busy on the dock, ordered the timber ready in time, recalling the delays with which the construction of the harbor's new dock, last year, was fraught.

The delay in the completion of the Missale dock was also caused by a tieup in lumber shipments from the Pacific slope.

The Duluth Central Gun Club will hold its annual meeting and election of officers at the Commercial club on Washington's birthday. In the afternoon there will be a shoot at the grounds on the hill. Members will choose sides on the grounds, and will shoot against each other, the losing side to pay for a banquet at 7 o'clock in the evening at the Commercial club. The annual meeting will follow the banquet.

It is expected that the coming season will be a very successful one for the gun club. The year will probably start out with an increased membership. The club house and traps are ready for the holding of successful shoots, where at the beginning of the 1908 season the new grounds were incomplete. Numerous trophies and prizes will be shot for during the season.

RELIGION HOPE OF NEGRO.

Justice Brewer Declares it Will Blaze Way for Struggling Race.

New York, Feb. 10.—Justice David J. Brewer of the United States supreme court told the delegates in the Broadway tabernacle Sunday that in his opinion religion was the principal factor in the progress of the negroes of the South which would be a valuable asset of the nation.

"We know that there is ignorance, criminality and immorality among the negroes," he said, "and it remains with us to change these conditions so that the negroes will become a helpful factor in our civilization and progress."

"I believe that there is a divine Providence which will shape our history so that the negro will be a helpful factor. Industrial development, cleanliness, education and other benevolent and useful things are good for the negro, but I believe nothing will so help as the influence of Christianity."

THE SMOKE ORDINANCE

Health Department is Rounding Up Offenders All Over City.

Large Number of Factories and Establishments Violating Law.

Ever since the council at its meeting on Jan. 17 signified that in its opinion the health officials were the men to enforce the smoke ordinance in Duluth, the inspectors have been busy throughout the city spotting factories and buildings which were violating the ordinance.

The ordinance provides a fine of not less than $25 or over $100 for any owner, lessee or operator of any building or engine which allows a dense smoke to issue from it for more than five minutes.

Most of the offenders are now caught about for the most effective means for disposing of the smoke, and the health authorities expect that notwithstanding the length of their list at the present time, by the time they get ready to line the violators of the ordinance up for trial, there will be comparatively few who can not show that an effective means has been provided for the disposal of the gas.

The list, which has been prepared of the violators of the ordinance, is truly imposing, and if the outpourings of smoke from all these sources can be stopped, Duluth will be a cleaner city.

WEST DULUTH LOOKS LIKE SURE THING

Shipyard Will Probably be Located in West Duluth.

Will be on Larger Scale Than Superior Yard.

Since the publication of a rumor that a shipyard was to be located in Onondaga, much more talk has been heard which would appear to confirm the report, and conditions now seem to strongly indicate the construction of a shipbuilding plant in Duluth in the near future.

The company which is credited with having plans for such a yard in mind, has several shipbuilding plants at low tide ports. The local agent is out of the city at the present time, and no confirmation of the stories can be secured here.

According to the prospects the new yard will be on a larger scale even than the one now being built by the American Shipbuilding company at Superior. Besides large drydock and machine shop a boiler and engine works will be included. In this case the company will be able to make the engines for its boats right here in Duluth.

It is expected that the final arrangements for the new yard will be made in the near future. There is considerable talk of a shipyard being located at the foot of Ramsey street. Washington, Feb. 20.—The navigation bureau of the department of commerce and labor, in a statement today points out that the effect of Section 42 of the new immigration act which has just been passed, will be to increase the carrying capacity of ships. The increase after Jan. 1, 1903, by nearly 25 per cent in the minimum space allowed for each steerage passenger on ocean steamers coming from Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and South America.

On the decks where steerage passengers are mainly required to take passage," it says, "the law of 1892 requires that there shall be 100 cubic feet of space for each passenger. The height between decks is usually about seven feet the deck or floor space allowed is about 150 square feet. The British law of 1834 requires fifteen square feet on the deck and the new immigration law increases this area to 175 square feet. The legislation in effect follows the developments in modern steamship building. Many of

CHARLES EDWARD BECOMES AN HEIR

By Harrison S. Rhodes.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.) While Lady Angela busied herself with the tea things, the discussion went on and broadened as it went. What Lady Angela wanted to know was what her husband would do if he were suddenly cast upon the world without the income or the occupation which resulted from his connection with Austin & Co., bankers, of New York city.

"I should make my wants known in the newspapers," said Charles Edward, looking up from a paper apparently of consulting the advertisements. "I should apply for a position."

"That doesn't seem to matter. I should decide on something very comfortable and profitable. You can apparently get anything you want. At least the people who advertise them seem to think so."

Charles Edward, he added, slowly, "that if one hadn't a penny in the world one couldn't do better than become heir to some very rich person."

"This is an inspiration, Charles Edward," cried his wife. "Tomorrow, my darling Angela, I advertise."

"And I'll bet you $25—" began Paul, "that you don't get an answer."

"I'll take it," came from the prospective advertiser. "And if you like I will bet another $25 that I become heir to some very rich person."

The appeal which Charles Edward inserted was perhaps not unprecedented, but it was at least unusual. It ran as follows:

"In Earnest—I wish to be heir, partially or wholly, to some rich person. A payment on account desirable. In London, could arrange a personal interview. The advertisement was to appear for three days running. Three days passed with no result. Then the letter came. It is still preserved among the most valued archives of the Austins. It said:

"I am, dear sir, yours most faithfully, 'FELIX ARNCASTLE.' The little formal garden lay basking in the August sun. The sun had scarcely begun to sink, yet once tall tree to the west managed to stretch out its shadow and just took a bench on which sat a gentleman across whose knees was spread carefully a copy of the Times. He appeared to be about 70 years of age, with grey hair and moustache. As the clock of a neighboring church struck 5, a young gentleman attired in gray flannels, with a Panama hat shading his eyes from the glare, stepped into view near the farthest fountain. He paused, looked around, saw the old gentleman with the Times over his knees, and caught the flash of red ink in the sunlight.

"You are Mr. Arncastle, I presume," said he, when he had advanced to the bench.

"I am," was the reply, "and you are—"

"Charles Edward Austin. I am an American, as you have undoubtedly noticed, but I have married an English girl. I am 25 years old, and—I don't know—I should like to be your heir, I think."

Mr. Arncastle looked Charles Edward sharply over. "You don't," he said hesitatingly, "you don't—well, what I mean is, are you in great need?"

"Of course, in any case, one would try to keep up appearances. No, I suppose I don't look very rich," said Mr. Arncastle.

"Then he added: 'Of course, it's only fair, is it not, that the heir should help me in some ways? There are so many things to be done, and it is very strange and very fortunate that you should have come here. Because it is your government that has my money. When they pay me what they owe me I shall be a very rich man. Of course, in the meantime, I must see what I can do about arranging for you and your expenses.'

The last was said with quaint and patrician dignity. Charles Edward, however, did not realize what a great remedy Holter's Rock Mountain Tea was. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

Success Magazine: Many stories have been told of mean men, such as he who died of a wart for a collar button and whose birthday gift to his son consisted in washing the windows so that the lad might watch the cars go by. This man, however, seems to have won the palm:

There was an extremely mean man in New Hampshire, who was the proprietor of a hotel. By his direction rufians were posted in the hostelry forbidding almost every conceivable privilege to those not guests of the place. There was absolutely no chance for the casual loafer to get newspapers, tobacco, ink, stationery, etc. There were not even free seats in the office.

One day he chanced to observe a chronic loafer gazing at the old clock that hung on the wall. The next day a sign was placed over the clock. It read: "This clock is for the use of the guests of the hotel only."

You can transmute the "baser metals," and many other things into gold by the publicity process.

A RESOLUTION. Tully Scott of Cripple Creek, in whose mine gold has been struck in a vein of unexampled richness—$25 to the pound or $50,000 to the ton—said at a congratulatory dinner:

"This stroke of luck has come to me at a time when I am able to take it tranquilly. I used to know a miner whom a lucky strike made a drunkard of his life. Nothing could wean him from the whiskey."

ment, I must arrange something more at once. Charles Edward took the coin silently. It is the same sovereign which now hangs on his watch chain.

The following morning the heir and his wife came up to town and Charles Edward had a consultation with the law firm of Henderson and Henderson, who have so extensive an American connection. He was severely surprised to find that the things of which he told his French spoliation claims among the three or four most remote possibilities in the world, were in fact, payment to the government of Lincoln's Inn to the Earl of Litchfield, and afterwards Charles Edward was conveyed by a hansom direct to the very street in which Mr. Arncastle lodged.

Keeping a sketch of his morning's movements in mind, it is a little difficult to see how he had found time to do some of the things of which he told his biographer. For Mr. Arncastle was led to the street by the hand of a French ambassador disclosed the fact that there was a growing feeling in Washington that something ought to be done about these long-neglected claims. More than that a check for $25, which had been London and New York had such confidence that something was sure to happen that it was willing to advance Mr. Arncastle 50 pounds a quarter upon the security of his claim, payment to the government until the bill passed congress, at which time the money was to be repaid with interest at 10 per cent.

"My dear boy, this is wonderful!" burst from Mr. Arncastle.

"It's a jolly good business for them," was the reply. "Ten per cent is big interest."

"I could never have arranged it," "That is why you needed an heir."

WEST DULUTH

EXACT DATE NOT KNOWN

But Big Banquet Will Probably be Held March 21.

Washington's Birthday Program Will be Given Friday Night.

The exact date for the West Duluth Commercial club's annual banquet has not yet been set, although at the meeting of the banquet committee held last evening in L. A. Barnes' office, it was decided that it would be given on either March 20, 21 or 22. At the meeting of the club Friday evening one of these evenings will be selected.

The report of the committee will give March 21 as the date preferred by its members and it is quite likely that this date will finally be selected. The affair will be held at Wade's hall. Several suggestions in regard to the program of songs and speeches were considered at the meeting of the committee last evening but no action has yet been taken.

At the meeting of the club on Friday evening a short musical program will be given after the business of the meeting and an address will be delivered by Rev. Roderick J. Mooney. The committee appointed at the last meeting to make the arrangements for a Washington birthday program for Friday night has already prepared one which is as follows: A piano selection by Alfred J. Court of Duluth; vocal solo, "Bunker Hill," by Charles O. Applehagen; address by Rev. Mooney; and a vocal solo by Rev. Abbott, entitled "The Warriors of Old."

The entertainment committee is composed of Charles O. Applehagen, Charles Salter and Moses J. Elliott, rault.

CAREY FOUND. Missing West Duluth Boy is Located in Chicago.

A telegram was received yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. James Carey, No. 4 Munger row, stating that their son, Frank Carey, one of the boys who drank the whisky stolen from the basement of Spencer's drug store, had been located in Chicago.

Young Carey disappeared on Sunday evening after the escape with the stolen whisky, and nothing was heard from him until yesterday when a message was received from a relative in Chicago that he had turned up. The boy is only 15 years of age and his parents were much concerned over his disappearance.

On the same evening that young Carey fled, W. A. Pond, who runs the feed store on Central avenue, found that a check for $25, which had been lying on his desk was missing. This was traced to a store in Duluth where the proprietor said it had been cashed by a young boy. It is not known that Carey is guilty of this theft but the Chicago police have been notified and he will be sent back to Duluth.

Unless the storekeeper who cashed the check can identify Carey upon his return, he will be released.

FIRE IN BOARDINGHOUSE. Flames Partially Destroy Building on Fifty-Seventh Avenue.

Fire of unknown origin, partially destroyed an Austrian rooming house on Fifty-seventh avenue, just off from Raleigh street, this morning. Several Austrians who sleep in the building were there at the time. The building is owned by E. J. Bouska, who runs a grocery store next door. His loss amounts to several hundred dollars and his insurance $200.

The fire was first discovered at 9:20 and within a few minutes the fire company was at the scene. It was a hot blaze and a hard one to get under control, but after about half an hour's work the firemen had the best of it and the building was not heavily damaged. The upper story was partially destroyed and the roof was burned off, but the lower floor was not much damaged.

There was not a great deal of furniture in the rooms and the loss was not heavy. One of the occupants, who had left all his savings, who amounted to $100, in his trunk, was from this his haste to save the trunk. The trunk was badly burned, but finally saved because the flames had reached the money.

Contest at Cards. The second series of card games between the West Duluth Macabees and the Duluth Tent No. 1 will be played at the latter's hall this evening. At the former contest, which was played in West Duluth several weeks ago, the result was a tie, and the contest this evening is expected to be an interesting one. The West Duluth players intend to put up the best kind of a game and are out merely to enjoy their fellow-members from Duluth.

West Duluth Briefs. The 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harris, 1514 North Central avenue, crushed one of his fingers yesterday by catching it between the rollers of a wringer.

Services will be held every Friday evening at 7:30, at St. James' Catholic church, during Lent. A son was born Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Ingvald Oas, 6213 Huron.

Watch and jewelry repairing. Hurst. A sacred concert and lecture will be given on the evening of March 17, at St. James' church.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Abrahamson, 2018 West Fourth street, are the parents of a daughter, born Monday. The regular weekly cottage prayer meeting of the members of the Plymouth Congregational church will be held tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. W. W. Benner, 417 Fifty-third avenue.

COLOR AND LIGHT. Harper's Weekly: The peculiar simplicity of the country daisy in the South is illustrated by a story told by Representative John Sharp Williams. An old negro had gone to a postoffice in Mississippi and offered for the mail a letter that was over the weight specified for a single stamp.

"This is too heavy," said the postmaster. "You will have to put another stamp on it." The old daisy's eyes widened in astonishment. "Will another stamp make it any lighter, boss?" he asked.

OPPOSED TO THE BILLS

Public Affairs Committee Against Certain Legislation.

Cashman Bill and Other Railroad Measures in Disfavor.

The attendance at the meeting of the public affairs committee last evening was small and an adjournment was taken shortly after 9 o'clock. Most of the matters coming up for discussion were referred to committees. The discussion scheduled on the tonnage tax bill for iron ore was postponed until a joint meeting between the public affairs and legislative committees of the Commercial club and a number of prominent citizens could be arranged. Probably the meeting will be held next Friday night.

W. A. McGonigle, in strong opposition to the Cashman bill, will now be before the senate. It provides for a general reduction of freight and passenger rates for short distances. The speaker characterized the bill as being an outrage and said that if it ever were enforced it would put every railroad in the Northern part of the state out of business. The railroad that operate in thickly-settled portions of the country can stand such a bill, but Mr. McGonigle says the range roads cannot, and that if the bill is made a law it will cripple the development of this part of the state.

"Some railroads are good and some are bad," said Mr. McGonigle. "All of them are of more or less benefit. You will find that the roads in this portion of the state are giving the country as much as they take out of it. They are building up the Northwest, and any legislation that affects the railroads will affect the country at large. Let us have rational legislation. These bills were never meant to be enforced. They were merely introduced to make the railroads compromise and it will not do for this club to endorse such a measure."

The bill was not recommended.

The committee condemned the Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill in its present form providing that the railroads be fined if they delay the placing of cars at a shipper's disposal after a certain length of time.

The committee did not endorse the Rockwell bill, on the grounds that it would hinder and discourage construction work of railroads. The bill provides that all railroad companies wishing to receive stocks or bonds must appear before the railroad and warehouse commission and give their reasons for desiring them.

The report of the senate committee upon the bill for the Duluth-Superior harbor was referred to the harbor committee.

SPREADING RAIL CAUSED WRECK

Fact Developed at Inquest on White Plains Express Disaster.

New York, Feb. 20.—The fact that a spreading rail caused the wreck of the White Plains express on the New York Central railroad last Saturday night in which twenty-one persons were killed was developed at the coroner's inquest yesterday. Under the examination of Assistant District Attorney Nathan A. Smythe, the New York Central's engineer of maintenance of way, H. S. Balliet testified that he found that the end of one of the rails on the outside of the curve at the point of derailment had been sprung sideways a distance of five inches. The other end of the rail was held in place but where the rails spread the spikes holding the outside of the rail to the ties just before the wreck occurred. The heads of the bolts holding the end of this rail to the next rail were broken off.

A tremendous force, Mr. Balliet said, must have been exerted upon the rail to cut off the head of the spikes but he did not know whether the speed of the train would have been sufficient. The inquest will be continued.

ASKS ABOLITION OF JAP PEERAGE

Count Itagaki, Founder of Liberal Party, Springs a Sensation.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—A special to the Daily News from Tokyo says: Count Taisuke Itagaki has addressed a circular to the nobility in which he proposes the abolition of the peerage. He says that the peerage of a distinct class between the imperial house and the people is injurious to the progress of the nation.

The count thinks the existing peers should enjoy their titles for one generation and that then the peerage should cease to exist. He therefore advises the peers to return their titles to the emperor, just as the old feudal barons or daimios relinquished their prerogatives at the time of the abolition of feudalism in 1871.

This radical suggestion from a man of Count Itagaki's high standing causes great excitement and wonder. Count Itagaki is the founder of the Liberal party in Japanese politics. He is 70 years of age and since 1900 has not been active in public life. On the 18th of January he was elected to the inauguration of the imperial government. He was made a cabinet officer, resigning in 1872 and founding a new party in 1881. After traveling through Europe and America he was made a count in 1887.

Mrs. Rosalie Grant of Chisholm Sues Range Promoter.

Mrs. Rosalie Grant, who operates a hotel at Chisholm, has started suit against Robert F. Bertie, in the district court, to recover $277 alleged to be due her on a board bill.

Mrs. Grant, in her complaint, claims that from Dec. 1, 1906 to June 1, 1906, she furnished Mr. Bertie with food, lodging and other necessities, at the rate of $30 per month and that from June 1 to Aug. 1, 1906 she furnished him board and other necessities for $450 per week. Mrs. Grant says no part of the board bill has ever been paid.

It is alleged that in March, 1906, Mr. Bertie gave her an order for $30 on E. J. Matheson, who is said to have been owing Bertie for services rendered, and that in June he gave her an order for $30 on Joseph Barker, but that neither of these amounts were ever paid, although the Bertie account was credited with them.

Mrs. Grant asks, besides a judgment for the full amount, 1 per cent interest.

SOLOMON WANTS HIS MONEY BACK

Claims Breach of Contract on Part of Eugene Fiskett.

Alleging a breach of contract in a Bowers confectionery store and lunch counter transaction, Leon Solomon, the buyer, has sued Eugene Fiskett, the seller, for $1,000 damages.

Solomon alleges that he and Fiskett entered into an agreement Jan. 10, last, whereby the former was to purchase the latter's business at 5224 West Superior street for $1,400, and that a part of the consideration was that Fiskett, who held a lease on the store building until April 3, 1907, was to transfer it to Solomon.

It is alleged by Solomon that the stock and business was turned over to him according to agreement, but that Fiskett refused to turn over the lease. Solomon claims that the stock and the business, without the lease is not worth more than $400 and he seeks to recover the other $1,000 paid as damages.

Alexander Marshall is Solomon's attorney.

THIEF GETS GOOD HAUL

Rifles John L. Morrison's Desk in the Torrey Building.

During his temporary absence, somebody entered John L. Morrison's office at 416 Torrey building, and abstracted the sum of $200 from a drawer in the desk. The sum was in a small sack and was in the shape of $20 gold pieces.

A friend had asked Mr. Morrison last Friday to take the money, giving him instructions as to its disposition. The money was placed in a drawer of the desk and Mr. Morrison forgot all about it until the next afternoon, when he found the small sack and money missing.

It is not known when the supposed thief entered the office. Mr. Morrison had been absent at several times to go to different places about town and the thief might have entered at any of these times. A telegram was sent to the friend to find out if he had changed his mind and had returned and taken the money himself, but this was not the case.

FIGHTS LEOPARD IN CAR.

Express Messenger on a Flyer Shoots Escaped Beast to Death.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 20.—Jesse Barnes, express messenger on the Rock Island flyer, looked up from his work near Atlantic station yesterday and was horrified to find himself face to face with a leopard almost ready to spring. He made a mad rush for the door, and, grabbing his Winchester, fired three times, each shot taking effect.

Barnes became so frightened that he locked himself in a lavatory and was not discovered until five stations had been passed and no express delivered. When the car was broken into the leopard was found bleeding to death. Hundreds of passengers were torn to shreds by the beast in its mad fury.

It was discovered that the leopard escaped from an Omaha zoo and its carcass will be returned there. Barnes was unhurt.

As a matter of fact, says Mr. Lacey, the surveys of the reservation have not been completed, nor have allotments been made.

He was walking along the tracks and carried a dead dog over his shoulder. He wanted to sell the carcass for $20, but insisted that he must keep the skin, which he had to take to St. Paul. He is being held pending an inquiry as to his sanity.

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

Colored Man Escapes Arrest by Daring Dive Through Window.

Exciting Mill on Bowery Gets Contestants in Trouble.

Annie Lund, who appeared in police court a little over a week ago and pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness, was arrested again last night at her room. Annie was in company with a colored gentleman at the time of her arrest, but the unworthy swain, instead of staying next to his love, vanished through a window in the back of the room, and all that the officer saw of him when he broke into the apartment was a pair of rather large-sized boot soles protruding through a broken glass on the other side of the room.

lishing quite an unequalled record. She passed the nickname of "Pollyanna" during her stay here, by reason of the constancy with which, it is claimed, she sticks to a liar pipe, blackened and stained with age, and in which she will smoke nothing but foolies.

She was fined $20 and costs by Judge Cutting this morning.

Joseph Pelley and Della E. Vandoren were arrested last evening on a complaint sworn out by the police department on a statutory charge. When brought to the station, it was discovered that the Vandoren girl was only 15 years of age, and she has been held pending an examination in the juvenile court Saturday morning. Pelley was to have been arraigned with the girl this morning, but the girl's youth has further complicated the charge against him, and his examination on the more serious charge will be held this afternoon to determine whether or not he will be bound over to await the action of the grand jury in March.

Eddie Smith and Angus Thompson got loaded up last night on the Bowery, and in spite of the fact that they are sworn friends, they started a lively mill on the sidewalk. It lasted just about one round, and was developing into quite an interesting contest when the police called and led the brawling pugilists eastward to the station. They pleaded guilty this morning and paid $7 fines.

FORTUNE IN A CAVE.

Children of Dead Nebraska Recover Iron Pot Full of Gold.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 20.—An iron pot full to the brim of shining gold coin has been unearthed south of Nebraska City, this state, where it was buried years ago by John Olsen, and is claimed by his son.

money, and his savings were known to amount to several hundred dollars. No money was on deposit at any adjacent bank and the son was convinced that the treasure was somewhere about the Olsen homestead.

The search has been in progress for two weeks and was rewarded yesterday by the discovery of the money buried nine feet deep in the cellar.

The archbishop arrived at Tierra Blanca on Saturday night and was met at the station by an orchestra, which played the national air. Every member of the orchestra was at that time arrested and heavy fines were imposed. The archbishop was in his church next day and his arrest followed.

The archbishop created a great stir, but it is understood that the archbishop has adopted a complaisant attitude.

The archbishop's visit to the times and places for playing the national hymn is very strict. The idea is to prevent the use of the hymn at bull fights, at theaters and in such other places, so that it may be held in the most complete respect. Permission of the authorities must be secured to play it or direct orders from them given.

MEXICO'S TOO SACRED HYMN In a Church.

Iowa Man on Hand for Wedding at Appointed Time.

HE MUST PAY $79 FOR KISS HE DID NOT GET.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 20.—For attempting to kiss Miss Annie B. Cambridge, after he had accompanied her to her home here on last Memorial Day, Charles Seymour, a janitor at the Hartford public high school, has been assessed $79 by a jury in the city court.

Miss Cambridge had been visiting the Seymour and Mrs. Seymour suggested that her husband escort the visitor to her home. He, at the door, expressed a desire to kiss and a kiss followed.

Miss Cambridge, who is an organist in the city church, was so shocked by the result of the tussle she could not play the organ the following Sunday, as her desire to kiss and a kiss followed.

The jury was out but a few minutes before returning the verdict.

Reduced Fare in Wisconsin is Accepted Without Contest.

Grain interests of the Chicago board of trade have made a demand upon Western railroads for seven days' free time, in which to unload cars of grain, declaring that if this request were not granted serious harm would result to the Chicago market.

The demand was made in a conference, which was held between traffic men of the Western roads and the grain men, led by E. B. Boyd, traffic director of the board. It was explained by the grain men that much of the corn which came into Chicago was in bad condition and could not be warehoused, and that they were unable to get cars promptly from Eastern roads for forwarding the product.

Western traffic men declared they did not see why the Western roads should permit their cars to be used for storage purposes because of inability of Eastern roads to furnish cars. They consented, however, to appoint a committee to look into all phases of the problem and to give a decision as soon as possible.

Some time ago the Chicago grain interests were allowed five days before being charged $1 a day for the use of cars. Recently this was cut down to two days, with a view to accelerating the movement of grain. It is said that the current delay was granted only under the stress of competition.

RAILROADS ACCEPT.

"A. J. EARLING," "Replying to your telegram, the Chicago & Northwestern railway will accept the decision of the Wisconsin railroad commission in reducing passenger fares."

Turn Your Face Into Dollars

Many a Man Has Failed Because His Face Was a Picture of Calamity.

It takes sunshine to produce a rose, a perfect rose, and a man's face, too, must have sunshine inside. The life which has it not, which has no health and no happiness, is a picture of calamity. The world already has too many vinegar faces that breed ill-will and strife. The world wants joy, comfort, sunshine, and will cling to the man who has it, who radiates gladness and triumph and cheer to him and under all circumstances.

Some people have a genius for seeking out the disagreeable, the crooked, the bad and the ugly. These are the destroyers; they travel in schools, they herd together for they love their kind, and they will be more satisfied with having nothing to do with them.

And why is it that so many peddle disaster knowing at the same time that if they do, their lives will be ruined? Some people cannot help it, for pessimism usually comes from bodily defects, and these cannot always be prevented. The stomach, for instance, is the most common cause of discontent, and if a man has a weak stomach, he will be a pessimist, and this cannot always be prevented. A bad stomach—there is the secret of many a failure. Anyone can have a good stomach, a strong stomach, a stomach that can take care of anything and everything that is put into it, no matter whether it is a very bad stomach now or not. Then why not have it?

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing. One ingredient of these little tablets digests 3,000 grains of food, and no matter how bad is your dyspepsia or indigestion, these tablets will digest everything in your stomach, thoroughly and completely, and better and quicker than a healthy stomach can do the same thing. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure quickly loss of appetite, brain irritation, burning sensations, nausea, heartburn, bad memory and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablet in the world can do so much. You should carry Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets around with you wherever you go and take them after meals. Then only will you realize what it is to enjoy a meal, and what perfect digestion means. Your whole body and your mind will feel the effects; your vim will increase, and you will be more satisfied with what the world does, you will think happier and be happier and your face will be one of supreme contentment. That will bring you success and then more successes. Your face will bring you dollars. Try it. It will cost you just 50c for a package of these wonderful Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, at any drug store on earth.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 61 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

B. T. WASHINGTON ADVISES NEGROES To Save Money and Buy Lands at Present Rates.

Tuskegee, Ala., Feb. 20.—The sixteenth annual session of the Tuskegee negro conference began here today at the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute. President Booker T. Washington presided, and hundreds of farmers with their wives and families crowded the spacious auditorium to the school. Educators from various parts of the North and South were also in attendance.

In his opening address Principal Washington reviewed the advance made by the negro race within the past year, as well as since the advent of freedom. He advised the members of the race to push onward in the path of industrial progress to live decent and clean lives, to avoid racial friction and by industry and honest living command their self-respect and to earn and keep the respect of the white neighbors.

The world wants joy, comfort, sunshine, and will cling to the man who has it, who radiates gladness and triumph and cheer to him and under all circumstances. SWINDLER OF WOMEN

Duped Wives Denounce Man Who Held Marvelous Power.

One Begged Him to Return and Live With Her.

New York, Feb. 20.—That Frederick H. Seiler is the champion woman swindler of the world seemed to be demonstrated in Newark last week.
One of the five women who denounced him to his face has lived for years under the name he gave her at the altar, never knowing until last week that it was a false one. If further proof were needed of the man's marvelous power over the feminine heart it was shown when this same woman, whom he had married, swindled and then deserted for many others, begged him to return and live with her.

Nevertheless, it was a sad day for Seiler. From morning until late afternoon he was confronted by women he had duped. Two or three denounced him to his face. One was sarcastic and taunted him with the endearing names he had called her before taking all the money she had in the world.
Another relented at night of him, and might have forgotten on the spot only the police stepped in with other and more serious indictments.

For three days women from various parts of the Eastern states had been arriving in Newark to be in at the identification of Seiler. In the morning, one by one they were brought from the office of Chief of Police Adams to confront the prisoner in the courtroom.

The first to appear was the woman who thought herself married to Frank Bermann, of Boston. She had told the chief that she married Seiler in a German Lutheran church on Edgemoor avenue, Manhattan, after a courtship in Boston that began with a newspaper advertisement.

Returning to Boston after the service, Seiler suddenly betwined himself of a novelty company in Savannah that must be incorporated right away and his wife let him have $250 worth of jewelry to start the project moving. She hadn't seen him since then until in Newark police court.

Seiler would not recognize her, though she ran to him with outstretched hands.
The officer's interview he sat untouched by while she told her story. The woman seemed at first to hope he would be set free and let her go, but when she found that the name he had given her in marriage was a false one, she became scornful and vowed vengeance.

Next to confront the man was Mrs.
Cori A. Arnold, a handsome widow of Washington, D. C. She met Seiler after he had inserted an "ad" in a newspaper asking for a housekeeper for a wealthy household. He told her he was "Adolph Kregor," a mineral water dealer who had made his fortune and had come to Washington to spend his life in luxury there.

While pretending to search for a suitable mansion, he made violent love to the prospective housekeeper, she says, to such good effect that she promised to marry him and gave him $500 to tide over the expenses of the next, the wedding day. Of course, there was no wedding, and Mrs. Arnold was inclined to be very sarcastic about it when she next met "Kregor."

"Good morning, Adolphus. How do you do?" she asked, with fine scorn and an extended hand when brought before him in court. The man was reticent. He looked at his shoes in glance.

"Won't you take my hand, sweetheart?" the widow continued, with bitter sarcasm. "You know you asked me for it once."

When Seiler had admitted the identification Mrs. Arnold became furious.

Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price.

"You'll find you're not dealing with a silly girl but with a woman who, before I got through with you," she cried angrily. When the police brought the next victim in Seiler was completely covered by her grumbling to which the women he had duped subjected him.

But there is still more trouble in store. Mrs. Dora Dorp, who lives
No. 161 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street, announces that she will go to Newark today to identify Seiler as none other than Dr. George A. Witz-hoff, who has married her second woman, where his family is prominent.

"I am sure from the pictures printed in the papers that Seiler is the man whom I married three years ago, only to find out that he had other wives, whom he had robbed, as he robbed me of large sums of money."

The chief of police of Baltimore has sent word that Seiler formerly lived in Baltimore under the name of Frank Baumann, and that he spent $25,000 of his wife's money before deserting her.
The chief of police of New York says he was swindled by him of large sums ranging from $500 to $2,000. In each case he promised to marry his victim.

The man's real name is said to be Frederick Fless, who came to this country from Pottsville, Germany, where his family is prominent and wealthy. He formerly lived in Paterson, where a brother still resides.

The trial will be postponed until other women he has duped bring in their evidence against him.

TERRIFIC FIGHT BY SIX ELKS Herd Attacked by 'Teddy,' the Largest Animal in Captivity.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 20.—Six giants of the wild engaged in a terrific combat in the zoo at Riverside Park, Allegany, shortly before dusk the other evening. The participants in the mighty struggle were the entire family of bears that had been kept in the winter quarters. Before the half a dozen keepers and park attendants could separate the animals, they succeeded in inflicting severe punishment upon each other and injuring two keepers.

This is the worst season of the year to keep the usually timid elk in confinement. Peculiar to his nature is the desire to be at large as spring approaches and he sheds his horns and coat. 'Teddy,' the oldest and most valiant buck in the herd, showed signs of temper early in the day.

The big one roared and pawed the earth several times, and the younger elks followed suit. Supt. James McFarland and Head Keeper William Overbeck finally drove 'Teddy' into an enclosure by himself.

Peace reigned among the other five until they began to sink. Then 'Teddy,' his eyes with passion, suddenly charged the wire screen that separated him from the balance of the herd. The screen gave way like tissue paper and in a moment 'Teddy' was plunging among the frightened herd.
Then the other animals fought and the big buck was attacked from both flanks.

The battle at this juncture was terrific. The clashing of the monarchs' horns and their frightful bellowing soon attracted the keepers. They assumed all help within call then entered the enclosure. "Kill 'Teddy' if necessary," were the orders.

Three of the herd were on the ground.
It looked as though two more would soon be helpless when the keepers began the attack. The big animal was finally driven into his pen but not before he had succeeded in knocking over Overbeck and one of his assistants.
Neither were badly injured.

A report of the battle was immediately made to Director of Public Works John Swan. He ordered that 'Teddy' be confined in separate quarters until he becomes more tractable. A veterinary surgeon was called to attend the gores sustained by the wounded elk.

The big elk 'Teddy' is one of the largest and handsomest in captivity.
He was presented to the zoo shortly after it was opened by ex-Director of Public Works Robert McAfee. 'Teddy' was young and tractable then, but immediately started to make a record for himself. His first deed was to toss a young deer over the enclosure in which he was confined, breaking his back. He next tackled Head Keeper Overbeck and had the latter on the ground pawing him to bits when assistance arrived and he was beaten off.

PAYING OF PENSIONS

By Voucher Check System Proposed by Congressman Ryan.

Would Simplify System and Save Expense to Pensioners.

FROM THE HERALD
WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Ryan of New York has introduced a resolution calling on the secretary of the interior to report to the house whether or not in his judgment the "voucher check" system can be adopted with advantage in the payment of pensions.

Asked as to the reasons underlying his resolution Mr. Ryan said today:
"My object is two-fold: First, a desire to simplify the system of payment of pensions and, second, the saving of expense to the pensioners. Under the present system pension agents send out vouchers to pensioners who are required to execute them before a notary officer, justice of the peace or some other person having power to administer an oath, and then to return the voucher to the pension agent who subsequently forwards a check in payment of the quarterly stipend. It not unfre-quently happens that the pensioner living on some remote country road is compelled to travel many miles to find a justice or a notary, and to repeat the journey to cash his check. With a voucher check at least one of these tribles could be avoided and the cash obtained at the time the journey was made. I do not believe that the jurat of a notary should be required.
The voucher could be executed with simply a witness as to the identity of the holder. The government does not require a sworn instrument every time its public servants are paid. Members of congress, employees and clerks of the departments are not required to take an oath of their identity every time they are paid; soldiers and sailors draw their pay without an affidavit, then why should the pensioners be treated in a different manner?

A voucher check would set forth that the endorser was really the pensioner for whom the money was intended and any bank or business house cashing the check would be under the necessary precautions to prevent fraud just as well without the affidavit as with it.
The oath is really no protection to the government but is a great expense to the recipient of the government's bounty.

"There are on the various pension rolls today, in round numbers, 930,000 pensioners. Each is required to execute four vouchers every year, and each voucher represents an outlay of 25 cents, at least, in fees. That means that the United States loses a tax of $232,500 per annum on the pensioners which goes into the pockets of magistrates, notaries and commissioners.
The adoption of the voucher check system, which has proven so successful among business men, will save all this.
It will simplify payments and make it possible to materially reduce the costs of the pension agency. I believe it to be in the interest of the government and of economy to the pensioner and I shall certainly do whatever I can to bring about its adoption."

The Fifty-ninth congress will pass history in less than three weeks with a record for action which is not comparable to a greater degree than any of its predecessors. In the past two years it has enacted more laws than any other congress in the history of the United States. It has enacted into law what promises to revolutionize railway practices. A new food law has been enacted which is destined to ensure to the consumer of food products drugs and drink an absolute guarantee that the foods which he buys are not adulterated. Another measure of world wide importance which has been placed to the credit of the congress, so rapidly drawing to a close is the enactment into law of the Volstead bill to provide for the cleanliness and wholesomeness of all meats and food products. Again the enactment into law of the Vreeland bill to compel diversification and to branch out their products for just what they are.
Heavily adulterated silver cannot be stamped and gold cannot be stamped with the Federal Reserve bank note. The bill which is still pending, is the largest in the history of the republic which will result in enormous improvements to the waterways of the country.
The budget of 200 public buildings were provided for, and again the record was broken.

In the matter of pension legislation the Fifty-ninth congress broke all records in passing private bills, literally thousands of such measures have been passed upon the pension bills.
But more than this the present congress passed a service bill which have at least $12 a month to every man who served in the Union army or navy for ninety days after he shall have reached the age of 62 years.

These are only some of the most important measures. The volumes containing the statistics of the Fifty-ninth congress will exceed in bulk those devoted to the acts of any other congress, and yet the Fifty-ninth congress will adjourn with hundreds of important measures still left in the embryonic stage, all of which will have to be hurried to the floor next winter if they are ever to be enacted into law.

all expenditures were controlled directly by the regents. The financial responsibility, he pointed out, is not in the hands of the president and never has been. Although the investigation committee of the legislature considered the whole subject in detail, they decided to recommend no change in the present system of financial control.

"The government of the university has been criticized on the ground that the regents have not exercised their full power and responsibility in financial affairs," said President Van Hise. "A method of procedure in financial matters, however, shows that the regents have all financial orders and are therefore responsible for the expenditures of the institution. The president, in consultation with the deans, directors, superintendents, and other executive officers, make up the preliminary draft of the budget for each year. The budget, under the bylaws, is submitted to the finance committee of the regents, who go over it item by item, and revise it to any extent that they deem advisable. After the budget is revised by the finance committee, it is sent to each of the regents in advance of the regular April meeting of the board.
The budget thus made up is the basis for action upon proposed expenditures during the year. No expenditure is made without a resolution from the proper officials. The regents give all financial orders and are responsible for the expenditures of the institution."

"It has been suggested that all financial responsibility be taken out of the hands of the president,"
responsibility is not, and so far as I know, never has been in the hands of the president. It may be the intent of those making the criticism as to the finances to suggest the proposal for expenditure should come from the hands of the president."

BURGLARS SCARED

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 20.—While two purchasers were heaping silver plate and jewelry into the center of a tablecloth and preparing to carry $1,000 worth of plunder away from the home of Harry Myers on Walnut street Monday night, a big Maltese cat, the family pet, finding the weather cold without the house, leaped through a window and descended amid the pile of loot in a shower of glass.

The intruders stared at the uncanny vision, then yelled and ran for their lives. Myers hurrying downstairs saw the disappearing forms of the two men and found the cat, purring happily, curling in front of the fire. The electric wires into the house had been cut.

Melting Snow From New Courthouse Site Causes Trouble.

Pedestrians who make use of First street in front of the new courthouse site, are complaining of the manner in which snow is being dumped on the vacant property.

All winter the sidewalk in front of the property has been in bad shape. The snow would melt and run across the sidewalk, and then freeze, making it a glare of ice. Within the last day or two the sidewalk showed some signs of drying up, under the warm sun, once more melt and run across the walk.

"Somebody apparently wants to make all the snow in Duluth melt and run across that sidewalk," said a very indignant First street property owner this morning. "Why don't they cart their snow down and dump it in the bay?"

SHEL TREY SENTENCED

Gets Year and Eight Months' Term in the Penitentiary.

Attorneys Make Vigorous Effort to Get a New Trial.

"I never took a cent from a man when I was sober and I know I never would if I was drunk," declared James J. Sheltrey, with a voice shaken with emotion, this morning, as he received from Judge Cant his sentence for an alleged hold-up on the Bowers, a year ago this month.

Had Sheltrey been sentenced a year ago, directly following his conviction, the minimum punishment for his offense would have been five years in the state penitentiary. The old law, however, has been superseded by another, making the minimum punishment one year in the penitentiary.

Judge Cant imposed sentence of one year and eight months. Sheltrey's case has been a peculiar one, and one of the most interesting criminal cases, in some features, that has been before the district court in many years. Although he was convicted in March, 1906, Sheltrey has, through his attorney, C. O. Baldwin, put up a determined fight for a new trial but was unsuccessful, the state supreme court recently deciding that the trial was justified by the evidence at the trial, and that it must stand.

Undaunted by even the supreme court ruling Sheltrey engaged additional counsel in the person of John E. Arnold and this morning, another determined effort was made to get what is claimed to be newly discovered evidence, before the court with a view of mitigating the sentence that might be imposed, to establish the ground for a new trial.

About a dozen affidavits, procured by Mr. Arnold, were read by Mr. Baldwin. These affidavits were sworn and subscribed to by men who claim to have actually witnessed the occurrence when Frank Stasni, the alleged victim of the saloon hold-up, was relieved of about $35, or from reputable business and professional men who gave Sheltrey a good reputation for honesty, and who expressed belief in his innocence. At those who swore they saw the trouble in the saloon, claimed that Stasni was very drunk, that he quarreled over the price of some drinks that he ordered, called Sheltrey names and was by the latter slapped and knocked down. It was claimed that Sheltrey did not take any money from Stasni and that when the latter got up and made the accusation that he had been robbed, it was Sheltrey who demanded that he show the contents of his pockets and prove it. The affidavits went on further to state that Stasni emptied his pockets on the bar and that all he was able to produce was 45 cents, which the bartender took and produced a $20 gold piece, got changed into money of smaller denomination and spent it for wearing apparel and booze. One person, a man who was Stasni's companion through the day, claimed the latter spent all his money before he went to Sheltrey's saloon.

One of the state's principal witnesses at the trial was a man named Murphy, whom Sheltrey claims was in the saloon when the trouble occurred, but who is said to have approached the saloon-keeper for money to either keep still or get out of the city before the trial. Sheltrey, so his attorneys claim, never gave or offered a cent to buy or bribe a single witness.

County Attorney John H. Norton stated that he did not try the case, as he assumed the duties of his office the first of the current year. He did not comment on the evidence either in favor or against Sheltrey, but said that the matter of a new trial was not mentioned to him until last evening.

Based on the affidavits, Sheltrey's attorneys made application for leave to make a motion for a new trial. Judge Cant admitted the application of record and took the matter under advisement. He will hear any argument that the attorneys may care to submit on the subject.

Sheltrey, when told to stand up to receive his sentence, stated that he is 35 years old and married. He has been in the saloon business for three years in Duluth and Virginia, and previously worked in the woods. Sheltrey told the conditions, and remarked that the trial was a fair one and that so far as the complaint of fair-minded men, he placed considerable emphasis on the testimony of Stasni, as the simple country bumpkin and alleged hold-up, and which the court said, must have carried weight with the jury. Judge Cant said it was to the fact that the law must afford protection, and for the present he would assume Sheltrey to have been guilty of the crime charged.

With that in mind, Judge Cant urged that when Sheltrey shall have served his time, he either give up the saloon business, as the court advised, or that he conduct it in such a manner as to establish his reputation of running the best regulated saloon in the city or town wherever he may be engaged in the business.

When asked if he had anything to say before sentence was imposed, Sheltrey, down in sobs before the judge, said: "I am a poor fellow, and I am also the oldest. It is said to have been my husband's belief that Mr. Arnold was brought into the case. He was formerly associated with the family in Eau Claire, Wis."

Both Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Arnold made earnest pleas in behalf of Sheltrey, that a just sentence will be meted out to him, and that he will serve time in the penitentiary. Mr. Baldwin suggested that the fact Mr. Sheltrey was in the saloon business on the day he was indicted and prejudiced the jury to some extent.

COMMITTEE IS AT WORK

Legislators Ask for Map of City With Ward Divisions.

Will be Used in Re-Appportionment of Legislative Districts.

The reapportionment committee of the legislature is getting busy, and intends to give the northern part of the state and the division of the legislative districts there, some attention. It is attested by a letter received by City Clerk Chas. Kemp this morning from Secretary of State Schmaus asking for a map of Duluth for the use of the committee.

The division of the Fourth-ninth, Fifth and Fifty-first legislative districts as made by the last reapportionment committee in 1897, was somewhat peculiar.

The Fifty-first district includes Lake and Cook counties, Ely, and the First, Second and Fourth wards of this city. While the majority of the votes in this section are in the city, the swinging of the range vote in a body, as has been done time and again, more than makes up for the larger, but more independent and divided vote of the city. In the Fifty-first district are Tower, Tom Thumb, Lucky Jim, Newton, and the Fifty-first.

In the Forty-ninth, however, the range vote is larger than the solid vote of the seventh and eighth wards, and Duluth has practically no voice in the representation from this section.

Duluth therefore has no representatives in the legislature which she may call her own. What the Duluth people have sought is the establishment of two districts which will include only Duluth, and which will each be entitled to one senator and two representatives as at present, and a suitable division of Lake, Cook and St. Louis counties into two more districts with adequate representation to cover the remainder of the territory now occupied by the Forty-ninth, Fifth and Fifty-first districts.

With representatives elected by Duluthians only, a pre-election stand, and a definite platform on local issues, would be submitted to the voters of Duluth, as expressed by the legislative committee of the council or by any other means, would have far more weight with the members of the legislature than they do at present. The plan for division suggested above would give one more legislative district and of course additional representation. This is necessary in order that the northern portion of the state may be equally represented with the southern. Development has been much faster in the northern part than in the southern part of the state since the last apportionment, and a comparison of the voting population of the two districts, and the representation accorded each in the legislature will show decided advantage in favor of the south under present conditions.

Pittsburg, Idaho Mining & Milling Company

There has been a great feast of good coppers on the market lately, but the best of the wine has been kept for the last of the feast, and that is the treasury stock of the Pittsburgh-Idaho Mining & Milling Company. The mine is located 58 miles above Lewiston, Idaho, on the Clearwater river, and consists of 19 full claims, or 380 acres. It is developed by tunnels, shafts and open cuts for more than 2,000 feet, disclosing thousands of tons of copper, gold and silver ore of both high grade and low grade. There are between 1,000 and 2,000 tons of ore ready for shipment. The entrance to the working tunnel is only 2,000 feet from the track of the Northern Pacific railroad, to be reached by gravity tramway. There are two parallel veins running lengthwise of the claims, one cropping out on the surface for 2,000 feet and the other over 3,000 feet; a third vein crosses the former, running into the mountain (See above diagram). These veins are from 50 to 200 feet wide. One ore chute has been crosscut 60 feet and is solid ore from wall to wall. A full description of the ore bodies can be found in the prospectus. Let me send you one!

I am not asking you to buy in a prospect. That risk was taken by the promoters. I am asking you to buy in a developed, proven mine. Seven years of continuous work and the expenditure of thousands of dollars have proven up one of the greatest mines in Idaho. That mine is now ready to pour out its red and yellow wealth to the world, with the installing of an up-to-date production plant. It is for that purpose that 200,000 shares of its treasury stock, fully paid and non-assessable, are offered today at 50c per share. Within six months from the completion of a 100-ton plant the mine can be put on a dividend paying basis, and those dividends will be substantial and permanent. I have made a personal inspection of the mine and know its possibilities. Let me tell you about it. There is no better investment offered before the people today. "It looks like a big dog, or a post."
"It looks like a man frozen to death, and seated on the ice."
"No, it can't be a man. Can you see it move?"

"It is a man, and he's either drunk, or frozen to death or asleep."

The object which was the cause of similar remarks as these in scores of offices this afternoon, was discovered by the Endon station agent shortly after noon today. It is located on the ice opposite Twenty-second avenue east. Just beyond it the ice packs end abruptly.

Glasses were focused on the dark object from all the large office buildings this afternoon. The weather man has a powerful pair of field glasses, but the slight haze over the lake made it impossible for him to be certain whether or not it was a man.

The object was on a small ice floe about forty feet in diameter, and the cake of ice appeared to be floating slowly out into the lake.

As soon as the news was reported to the Herald, the police were notified, and also the East End Ice company, which keeps a boat at its storage house on the lake shore. The ice company employees investigated, more closely and stated that it was only a Christmas tree on an old box, which had floated out.

Portland, Or., Feb. 20.—Mrs. Edgar Suro has been granted a divorce in the superior court at St. Helens, Or., on the ground of desertion. Her husband was the son of the late Adolph Suro of San Francisco. The proceedings were sensational in the extreme. Mrs. Suro offered evidence to show that her husband had been overfriendly with certain women, particularly with a stenographer whom he had formerly employed. A property arrangement satisfactory to both parties was made. Mrs. Suro is to receive the house and furniture, her husband a 20 per cent interest in his share of the Suro estate's interest in the first interest in the estate is placed at $20,000, his wife will receive $50,000.

The Suros were married in Cape Town, South Africa, on June 21, 1890. They lived for some time in a Canada then went to San Francisco to reside. Then took apartments at the St. Nicholas Hotel in Market street, and her husband resided there until 1896, when the first friends endeavored to effect a reconciliation, but their efforts were without result. In 1902 Mrs. Suro filed a suit for separate maintenance in San Francisco, but it was subsequently withdrawn. Suro agreeing to contribute the regular sum to her support.

During the hearing at St. Helens Mrs. Suro took the stand. She said that Suro had lived at the Laramie hotel in San Francisco and that he had received letters from the Laramie hotel. At the same time, she declared that Suro, was a woman who sometimes went by the name of Merrill.

The names of a Miss Fitzgerald and a Miss Taylor also figured in the case. It was charged by Mrs. Suro that her husband had established a beauty shop for Miss Fitzgerald and had otherwise shown his excessive friendship for her. It was also charged by Mrs. Suro that her husband provided a sumptuous household at Portland for Miss Fitzgerald and her mother.

Mrs. Suro also said that Adolph Suro had intended to place her husband in charge of the baths near the Cliff House, but had changed his mind, fearing the young Suro would bring to the place undesirable persons.

Edgar Suro is 30 years of age. The couple have a son 15 years of age.

GREATEST RAILROAD MAN.

Washington Herald: "Although you may not have heard much about him down here, I believe that the Dominion of Canada has, taken all in all, the greatest railroad man in the world," said Mr. Hector Baxter, a leading financier and attorney of Minneapolis, at the New York Herald.

"His name is William McKenzie, a full blooded Scotchman, who illustrates all the best traits of that hardy race. He has known him ever since 1877, when he and I, in the summer, passed examinations for school teachers at Lindsay, Ontario. McKenzie's pedagogic career was brief—one year—and then he started out doing things: first as a buyer of timber, then a contractor, and finally as a builder of railways on a huge scale. His first good sized bunch of money was when he and two partners, out of $750,000 contract with the Canadian Pacific, cleared $150,000 apiece. Nine years ago McKenzie did not own a car wheel. Today he is president of the Canadian Northern, which stretches from Port Arthur, on Lake Superior, westward beyond Edmonton, and which will eventually become a great trunk line to the Pacific. Besides, he owns

The Suros were married in Cape Town, South Africa, on June 21, 1890. They lived for some time in a Canada then went to San Francisco to reside. Then took apartments at the St. Nicholas Hotel in Market street, and her husband resided there until 1896, when the first friends endeavored to effect a reconciliation, but their efforts were without result. In 1902 Mrs. Suro filed a suit for separate maintenance in San Francisco, but it was subsequently withdrawn. Suro agreeing to contribute the regular sum to her support.

During the hearing at St. Helens Mrs. Suro took the stand. She said that Suro had lived at the Laramie hotel in San Francisco and that he had received letters from the Laramie hotel. At the same time, she declared that Suro, was a woman who sometimes went by the name of Merrill.

The names of a Miss Fitzgerald and a Miss Taylor also figured in the case. It was charged by Mrs. Suro that her husband had established a beauty shop for Miss Fitzgerald and had otherwise shown his excessive friendship for her. It was also charged by Mrs. Suro that her husband provided a sumptuous household at Portland for Miss Fitzgerald and her mother.

Mrs. Suro also said that Adolph Suro had intended to place her husband in charge of the baths near the Cliff House, but had changed his mind, fearing the young Suro would bring to the place undesirable persons.

Edgar Suro is 30 years of age. The couple have a son 15 years of age.

GREATEST RAILROAD MAN.

Washington Herald: "Although you may not have heard much about him down here, I believe that the Dominion of Canada has, taken all in all, the greatest railroad man in the world," said Mr. Hector Baxter, a leading financier and attorney of Minneapolis, at the New York Herald.

"His name is William McKenzie, a full blooded Scotchman, who illustrates all the best traits of that hardy race. He has known him ever since 1877, when he and I, in the summer, passed examinations for school teachers at Lindsay, Ontario. McKenzie's pedagogic career was brief—one year—and then he started out doing things: first as a buyer of timber, then a contractor, and finally as a builder of railways on a huge scale. His first good sized bunch of money was when he and two partners, out of $750,000 contract with the Canadian Pacific, cleared $150,000 apiece. Nine years ago McKenzie did not own a car wheel. Today he is president of the Canadian Northern, which stretches from Port Arthur, on Lake Superior, westward beyond Edmonton, and which will eventually become a great trunk line to the Pacific. Besides, he owns

THE HOUSE PASSES TWO-CENT FARE BILL UNDER SUSPENSION OF RULES

Will Come Up in the Senate on Next Tuesday.

Bill Authorizing Manufactures in State Prison Passed.

New Drainage Law is Proposed Appropriating $100,000 Annually.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 2-cent fare bill passed the house this morning with a rush under suspension of the rules, and with only one negative vote. The bill is a special order in the senate for Tuesday afternoon, and will undoubtedly pass as easily there. The house railroad committee reported out a straight 2-cent fare bill, unanimously adopted by the committee.

Representative Thayer moved that it be made a special order for Tuesday afternoon. Representative Tachle moved to make it Monday instead, and Mr. Thayer accepted the amendment. It, J. Wells then wanted to know the need of this, as everybody had made up their minds how to vote, and the bill put upon its final passage. The motion carried with a whoop, and the roll call was ordered. There were 112 yeas and 1 nay.

PRINCE OPENS BRITISH DOCKS

King Edward's Son Dedicates Great Basin at Keyham.

Devonport, Eng., Feb. 21.—The great new Keyham docks, which complete the most important naval dock yards scheme of the British empire, were opened today by the prince of Wales with considerable ceremony. The large gathering of warships sent here in honor of the occasion were dressed with bunting and the harbor was gay with flags as the prince, who was accompanied by the princess of Wales, embarked on the command ship, the yacht Vivid and led a procession of torpedo boats through lines of warships to the scene of the ceremony. As the Vivid steamed into the new docks she fired a salute of colored shells, and the boats stretched across the entrance. After christening the docks, "Prince of Wales Basin," a large company, including the prince and princess of Wales, the admiralty officials, naval officers and a few civilians were entertained at luncheon. Disagreements between the naval and civilian authorities regarding the latter's participation in the ceremonies resulted in a notable absence of general decorations ashore and caused the mayor and corporation to refuse to attend the function.

STATE MUST CHANGE LAWS

To Comply With New Agreement Relative to Jap Children.

San Francisco, Feb. 21.—City and County Attorney Burke in discussing the Japanese school case today said: "If the Japanese children over 16 years old are to be kept out of our public schools, Statute 1062 of the civil code will have to be repealed by the legislature. The state makes provision that all children between the ages of 5 and 21 shall be allowed to enter our public schools, except for certain reasons. In case the Japanese are allowed to enter our general schools, a new statute will have to be framed, if the school board wishes to keep those over 16 years of age out of the schools.

"The statute also provides that in case an Oriental school is provided, the children of the people specified shall attend no other. Hence, the Oriental school must be abolished to allow the Japanese to enter our schools. But if the Oriental school is not abolished, then children so specified must attend that school and no other. The statute specifies children of Mongolian descent, and we shall insist until proved otherwise in court that the Japanese are not of Mongolian descent."

RECIPROCAL DEMURRAGE

Nolan Bill Passed by House After Being Remodelled.

Iron Ore Tax Committee Starts on Trip to Ranges.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—With only a week's delay, the W. A. Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill, remodelled to meet objections that had been raised against some of its provisions, passed the house yesterday afternoon with only one negative vote, and passed on its way to the senate.

There were 113 yeas for it, and the single vote against it was cast by T. J. Brady of St. Paul.

Consideration of the bill took up a couple of hours, and the debate waxed fast and furious, mostly on a number of amendments that were proposed.

The chief amendment offered by Ambrose Tighe of St. Paul was defeated. The bill as it stands, allows the railroad and warehouse commission to suspend the reciprocal demurrage rules in time of stress and storm, and Mr. Tighe's amendment allowed the railroad commission to suspend the rules.

AUTO ENTHUSIAST

To Try to Run Engine 1,000 Miles Without Stopping.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 21.—In an attempt to establish a world's record for longest automobile tests, Van Erva Martin, a young Milwaukee capitalist and automobile enthusiast, left Milwaukee at 10:30 this morning in a 1906 Buick car and a 1,000 mile run which he expects to make over Wisconsin and Illinois roads. Mayor Sherburne M. Becker of this city cranked Mr. Martin's car for the start.

Under the conditions the engine must run continuously night and day for 1,000 miles without stopping a second, which would invalidate the test should it occur. It is Mr. Martin's intention to cover 1,000 miles are covered without stopping to continue running the engine until all existing records are broken.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Feb. 21.—H. S. Yarrow received notice yesterday that an offer of $1,000,000 had been received for coal claims near Bellingham, Wash., in which he owns a one-third interest. The claims are held jointly by C. A. Alexander and L. Darrow of Bellingham and himself. The coal was discovered by Mr. Darrow, who is Mr. Yarrow's nephew, while hunting.

The offer of $1,000,000 comes from New York men, Louis W. Hill of the Great Northern, and other capitalists are also investigating and the sale may be deferred until their figures are received. Mr. Yarrow leaves immediately for Bellingham to confer with his partners.

MRS. THAW BREAKS DOWN AND WEEPS UNDER THE EXAMINATION BY JEROME

Compels Her to Lay Bare Her Most Intimate Secrets.

Forces Her to Relate Later Events With Stanford White.

Jerome is Said to Have Threatened to Indict Her.

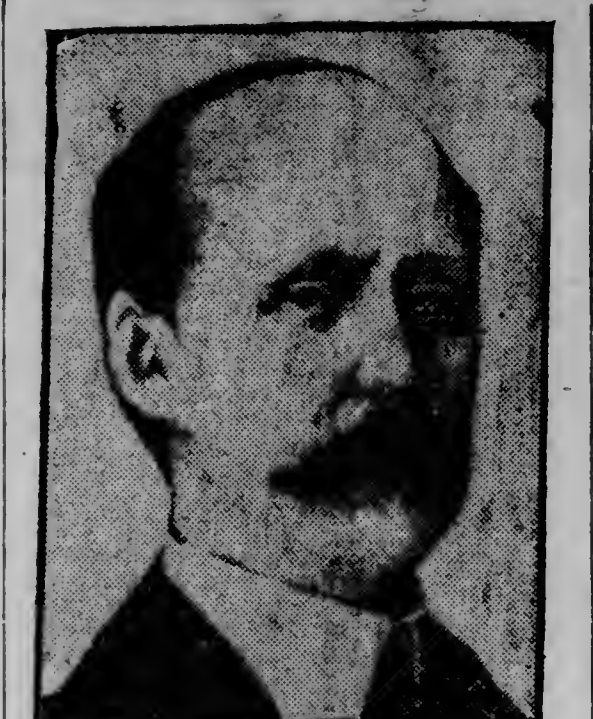

New York, Feb. 21.—The climax of sensationalism seemed to have been reached in the Thaw trial today when District Attorney Jerome continued to lash Evelyn Nesbit Thaw under a pitiless cross-examination. No secret of the woman's past was too intimate for the district attorney to make her lay bare. He made her admit with tears streaming down her cheeks that her relations with White continued for several months after the first event when she claimed to have been drugged. Mrs. Thaw declared that in every instance she had been pined with wine. As the district attorney bared her relations with White, Mrs. Thaw wept bitterly. Thaw sat with his face buried in his hands. Two newspaper women, used to the varying scenes of life, left the courtroom. Jerome wanted every detail. Mrs. Thaw tearfully told all. She said she had informed Thaw of these experiences with Stanford White but had forgotten to relate them during her direct examination.

Toward the close of the morning session there came a new and great surprise when Mr. Delmas, of Thaw's counsel, stated that threats by the district attorney to indict Mrs. Thaw had been overheard in court. Jerome denied any such statement had been made in court. That was as far as he would go.

Mrs. Thaw at this time had been temporarily excused to allow the district attorney to question Attorney Harridge regarding certain of Stanford White's letters said to be in his possession. Mr. Harridge declined to answer the questions put to him, on the ground that he had been retained by Mrs. Thaw to protect her interests.

New York, Feb. 21.—The prospect that District Attorney Jerome would develop more surprises when he continued his cross-examination of Mrs. Thaw today was maintained for trial.

JOHN SMITH LAW CONSTITUTIONAL

St. Paul Papers Will be Tried for Printing Hanging Details.

St. Paul, Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court today handed down a decision sustaining the constitutionality of the "John Day Smith law," a state law which forbids the publication in newspapers of the details of the hanging of criminals in this state. The case originated when the Pioneer Press, the Dispatch and the Daily News of this city, published the complete details of the hanging of the murderer, William Williams, last spring. These newspapers were indicted and interposed a demurrer to the indictment attacking the constitutionality of the law and setting up the claim that the facts alleged did not constitute a public offense. Judge Dunn overruled the demurrer and the supreme court today upheld Judge Dunn's ruling. The case has been remanded for trial.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Louis Fisher, 38 years of age, and one of the proprietors of the Harrison Art company, with offices in the Omaha building at La Salle and Van Buren streets, was shot to death in his office shortly before noon today. A fashionably-dressed woman, who entered Fisher's office at about 10 o'clock and who quarreled with Fisher, was found in the room after the shooting. She was arrested, but declined to talk of the manner in which Fisher met his death, and refused to give her name to the police.

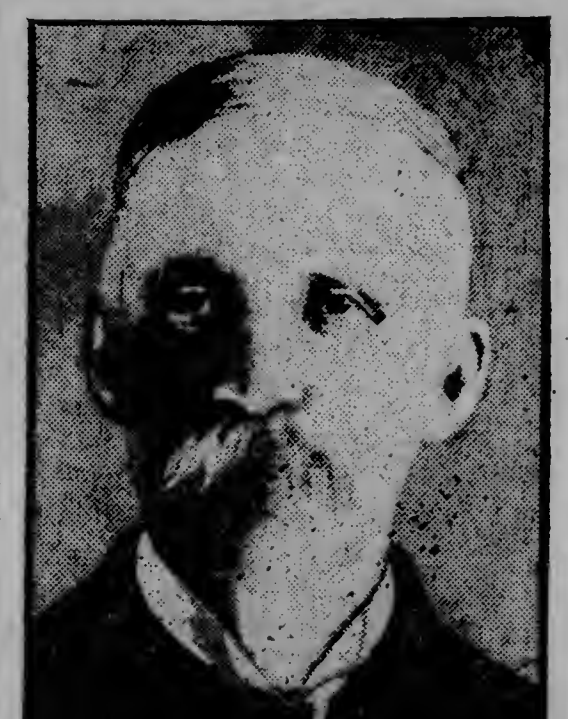

STILL AT ODDS.

Two Points Keep Church and State Apart on Agreement.

Paris, Feb. 21.—The ecclesiastical and state authorities are still at odds over two points relating to the contracts for church leases, namely: The clause holding the parish priests, as lessees, responsible for keeping the churches in repair, and the clause prohibiting members of dissolved religious orders from becoming parishes to contracts. The church authorities maintain that it is impossible for the priests to personally assume liability for keeping the churches in repair. This clause, however, is considered to be adjustable, but, upon the other point the prelates, who are close to Cardinal Richelieu, are less optimistic.

Decision is Reached After a General Tribal Council.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 21.—A Daily News special from Green Bay, Wis., says: At a general tribal council held yesterday upon the Oneida reservation, a decision was reached to press the claims for moneys aggregating over $1,000,000, which the Indians say is due from the government and the state of New York.

Dennis Wheelock was commissioned to prosecute all claims. He will go to Washington, D. C., in two weeks to confer with representatives of the New York tribes relative to the course to take in an effort to larri a big sum.

The Indians claim interest on the Kansas claim money and the principal acquired through the sale of the New York state lands.

POGUE WINNER OVER CARTER

Elected Mayor of Bemidji by Nearly Two to One.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city election resulted in the election of John Pogue for mayor over A. A. Carter by an overwhelming majority that was a few votes less than the ratio of two to one—the exact number of ballots polled being 53, of which Mr. Pogue received 30 and Mr. Carter 23. The entire ticket backed and supported by Mr. Pogue and his followers was elected, including all the alderman candidates, one in each of the four wards, the city clerk and the justice of the peace. There was no opposition to W. A. Gould for alderman-at-large nor to Earl Gell for treasurer, and both of these gentlemen received a vote on nearly every ballot that was cast. The result was a landslide for Mr. Pogue and his ticket.

Thomas Maloy, the present city clerk, was elected over H. W. Bailey, by a large majority. James Cahill, city assessor for last year, defeated E. H. Cornwall. In the first ward, William McCusick was an easy winner over J. P. Laahr for alderman. In the second ward, there were three candidates for alderman, Anton Erickson, J. Bislar and T. J. Miller. The latter alderman for the past year, Erickson was elected, by a plurality of 15. John Washburn defeated Matt Mayer, the present incumbent, for alderman in the third ward, by a plurality of 17. Fred Brinkman, the present alderman from the fourth ward, was re-elected over H. P. Burroughs by 41 yeas.

M. G. Slocum and Robert Clark were elected justices of the peace. There was some question as to whether the present justices, Messrs. Pendergast and Skinnik, did not hold over, so neither gentlemen filed for justice. Whether the decision against them will be appealed to the supreme court is not known.

SHIP HITS THE SHORE

While Trying to Enter Mouth of the River Maas.

The Berlin Left Harwich Wednesday in Heavy Storm.

But One Soul on Ill-Fated Boat is Rescued.

London, Feb. 21.—The Rotterdam mail steamer Berlin from England with 141 passengers and crew, was wrecked off the hook of Holland, at the entrance of the river Maas, leading to Rotterdam, shortly before 6 o'clock this morning, and with one exception all aboard perished. A terrific southwesterly gale was blowing right in shore and drove the steamer on a sand bank close to the Northern Jetty as she was trying to enter the new waterway. Heavy seas quickly pounded the vessel to pieces. She broke in two, her fore-part sinking immediately, while the doomed passengers and crew could be seen for a brief space of time clustered on the afterpart. Then the after-part slipped off the ledge and disappeared in the monstrous waves. Tugs and lifeboats, when the alarm was first sounded, promptly put out to the assistance of the Berlin, but the violence of the gale and the heavy seas made it impossible to approach the wreck, and the helpless would-be life savers saw the steamer break up and the crew and passengers washed away without being able to render the slightest assistance.

One man, an Englishman, was saved. He was unconscious when dragged out of the water and taken ashore, and had not regained consciousness when he was carried to a hotel in the neighborhood.

By 7 o'clock in the morning, twenty-five bodies had already been washed ashore.

Among those drowned are nineteen members of a German opera company who had just concluded their season at Covent garden.

Arthur Herbert, one of the king's messengers, who was journeying to the continent, also was lost.

TRIAL WILL BE SENSATIONAL

Strothers Brothers Arraigned for Murder of Sister's Husband.

Culpepper, Va., Feb. 21.—Phillip and James Strothers, brothers, were placed on trial today, charged with the murder of their brother-in-law, William F. Bywaters, on the night of Dec. 15 last, within a few hours after he had been married to their sister, Miss Viola Strothers. The "unwritten law" will be the defense, and the trial promises to be the most sensational in Virginia since the trial and conviction of former Mayor McCue of Charlottesville, for the murder of his wife, Governor Swanson has designated Judge Thomas W. Harrison of Winchester to preside at the special term of court which will be called for the trial of the Strothers brothers. Mrs. Bywaters has been in a critical condition since the night her husband was killed, but it is thought that she will be able to testify for the prosecution.

There is every indication that the trial will be the most widely attended of any trial ever held here. Both families are among the most prominent in this section of the state. William Bywaters, the victim, was a clubman, horseman, politician and general "good fellow" about town. One of the defendants, James Strothers, is a leading lawyer at Welch, W. Va., and a member of the West Virginia legislature. He was at the home on a visit at the time of the tragedy. There is much feeling between the friends, political and otherwise, of the Bywaters and Strothers families, and the legal fight will be a notable one.

Micajah Woods of Charlottesville, who prosecuted the McCue case, has been retained by the Bywaters for the prosecution and will be assisted by M. and John Keith of Warrentown. John Jeffery of Norfolk, as leading counsel for the defense will be assisted by John L. Lee of Lynchburg, R. Walter Moore of Fairfax and probably others.

AFFORDS NO PROTECTION Inspection of Meat Does Not Guard Against Trichinosis.

St. Paul, Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Health Commissioner Ohage today said that the federal inspection of meats at the South St. Paul packing house "affords absolutely no protection against the spread of trichinosis."

This statement was made in connection with a discussion of the verdict returned by the coroner's jury in the case of the death of Ernest Goers yesterday, in which the jury found that the cause of death was trichinosis, and that the meat was not properly inspected.

Mr. Ohage said the butcher was not to blame, neither was Swift & Co., from whom the meat was purchased. The state of the government meat inspectors had been relied on and this was where the fault lay. He said that when meat is stamped by government inspectors people rely on it as wholesome food, whereas the government makes no pretense to a microscopic test and therefore the danger. He urges a law providing for such a test.

BLACK CAT TEAM'S MASCOT.
London Daily Mail: The strange sight of a black cat as the traveling mascot of a football team was witnessed in connection with a league match at Park Avenue, Bradford, on Saturday. Early in the season a time, glossy black cat strayed into the premises of the Halifax football club at Thrum Hall. Some members of a superstitious turn of mind perceived in this visit an omen of good fortune and, in keeping with a local custom, bestowed the animal's paws. Ever since the cat has received the kindest treatment and fortune has smiled on the efforts of the club.

At practice the cat takes up a prominent position where it can view operations, and seems to take deep interest in the players. The team has won twenty-one of its twenty-four league matches this season, their latest triumph on Saturday being over Bradford, which is attributed to some occult feline influence.

HAS A MANIA FOR ESCAPING
John Cull Has Eluded Police and County Officers.

John Cull, the prisoner who escaped from the chain gang yesterday, has a month for getting away. He is six feet four inches tall in his stocking feet, and a narrowness of build increases his lengthy appearance, and when John gets his legs into action, just one full, thin streak is all that is visible.

He was collared for making a disturbance on the Bowers a month or so ago by Officer Hunter, but when the officer turned to ring for the patrol wagon, Cull broke away from him, and making for the railroad yards, vanished from sight. Officer Hunter swears he stepped right over a string of box cars.

He was spotted early this week, however, and captured by Officer Hunter, and taken to the county jail. He was shown the trail of the fleeing Cull. The police have not succeeded in locating him as yet.

TYPEWRITERS WELL MADE.

New York Sun: "I paid ten cents for that typewriter; and I think I can say that it beats the record in cut rates."

The speaker was the proprietor of one of the typewriter exchanges which have sprung up in Manhattan, where machines are rented, exchanged and repaired and where all kinds of typewriters are to be found. Pointing to the 10 cent machine, merely a mass of twisted wires, screws and parts, he continued:

"I bought that typewriter the other day from a boy who told me it had been left to the street from a window on the fifth floor of a Broadway office building. 'Of course, to any man but a practical machinist, as far as the letters are concerned, though they are all jammed up and many of the parts are broken in this way, by being at a small price, other machines and I can use a good many of the other parts in the same way.'"

"The roller and the cog wheels are all right, besides I would not be surprised if it is worth four or five dollars to me. I often get what to me are bargains in this way, by buying at a small price, other machines and I can use a good many of the other parts in the same way."

"I have put in a few new parts and it was as good as new, except for the wear that I had received from the roller. In this way, by buying at a small price, other machines and I can use a good many of the other parts in the same way."

WILL TAKE SOME TIME

To Conclude Cross-Examination of Mrs. Thaw, Says Jerome.

Justice Fitzgerald to Hold Court on Friday and Saturday.

New York, Feb. 21.—When court assembled after luncheon recess for the Thaw trial Mr. Jerome stated that there were at least six more days in the jurisdiction of the court who were about to leave the state. As their testimony was of great importance to the case of the people, he asked that he be allowed to examine them at once. These witnesses were Dr. Deenard and Dr. Blagman.

Mr. Hartridge stated the witnesses had agreed to return at any time that they might be needed. "We object," he said, "to the cross-examination of Mrs. Thaw interrupting the testimony of these witnesses. It is any longer than necessary."

Her cross-examination will not be finished until the morning of Saturday. Mr. Jerome began to tell Justice Fitzgerald of the conference held during the morning session regarding adjournment of court over tomorrow.

"I understand all that was said to me in the morning session, and there is no need of your repeating it," Dr. Deenard and Dr. Blagman were called on to stand to be questioned regarding the probability of their being in court when wanted.

After a brief conference, Justice Fitzgerald announced that he would hold court both tomorrow and Saturday for the benefit of the two physicians who are anxious to return to their homes and their practices.

Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was then recalled to the stand. She brought a little footstool with her and it was placed before the witness chair to make her more comfortable.

"Did you tell Mr. Dolman about subsequent dictations with Stanford White, before this trial began?" asked Mr. Jerome.

"Have you any objection to the letters written by you for Stanford White, produced here?" "No,"

Mr. Jerome turned to Mr. Hartridge. "Your client has waived her right, will you let me have the letters?" "I did not say I waived anything," interrupted Mrs. Thaw. "I say I have no objection."

"The plan was a success. Morning after morning when the owner of the bread box came into his kitchen he found the box on the floor in confusion. The bread was gone to the last crumb."

Successive falls dented the poor old box out of shape, and while the owner is a mild mannered person he can't afford new bread boxes every week. So he drove two large staples into his cupboard, fastening them against the box, and the bread rats have had no bread."

Another feat the rodents accomplish handsily is even more remarkable. The owner of the house keeps his flour in a large cylindrical can. The top fastens on snugly."

Industrious rats have succeeded in removing the top from the can on a dozen different occasions. The opened can is tipped over and the flour is consumed, presumably with great relishing.

It is not surprising that the strength to remove this cover with the fingers, and how the rats succeed, using their tough little claws and paws, is beyond any explanation. But the evidences were there and the Yale bachelor is an honest man.

"What's in a shoe is what you get out of it. There's only one way of convincing you that there is more intrinsic value in a Columbia $3.50 Shoe than in any other kind retailed at the same price—that is, put your foot in it."

The styles of Columbia $3.50 Shoes are better, too, but no extra charge for that.

During the last part of winter your shoes should have first consideration.

GEOGRAPHICAL ODDITIES.

New York Sun: Some years ago a topographer was sent out from Washington to make a survey of what was then Payne Prairie, Fla., a bit of land about eight by five miles in extent. The survey was made and the prairie described. Three or four years later a new surveying expedition found that this land had been transformed into a body of water, and it was put on the map as Lake Alachua. It developed that this lake-prairie plays a hide and seek game with itself.

This freak is explained by the fact that a stream flows itself in a sink at the northern part of the prairie, and when this sewer can carry off all the water the region is land. When the sink cannot drain off the water it accumulates until it becomes a lake.

One of the natural curiosities of this country is the Hampshire ice mountain, on the banks of North Creek, twenty-six miles from Winchester, Va. For about a quarter of a mile the west side of the mountain is covered with loose boulders and stones of light color, the mass extending all the way down to the river. By lifting these stones on any day in the year, crystals of ice can always be found securely hidden in the crevices beneath.

The Dismal Swamp is not a swamp at all, according to the usual definition of the term. It stands fifteen or twenty feet higher than the surrounding country, and instead of receiving drainage from the forest, it is a source of supply for the various streams. The climate is said to be pure and healthful.

The northern boundary line of Delaware is circular in form. This has been explained by the fact that the Delaware river was once a bay, and the land around it was a peninsula. The river then cut through the land, and the peninsula became a state.

Because man has never been able to make the Mississippi obedient and content to stay in one particular channel, many of the geographical situations have arisen. There are numerous old channels threading back and forth through the forests of Louisiana, and whenever there is an overflow of a particularly heavy frost, the river is quite liable to wander off down one of these old channels and leave some shipping point high and dry. The town of Delta used to be three miles below Vicksburg, but a cut-off channelled things so it is now two miles above it. Another little place called Blue's Point was formerly located on the Mississippi, but one spring, when the river was in flood, it cut off the point, and the town was left on a small island in the river.

Another instance in which the river has changed its course is the case of the town of Blue's Point, which was formerly located on the Mississippi, but one spring, when the river was in flood, it cut off the point, and the town was left on a small island in the river.

"This boy was once unexpectedly called upon by his father to mount a horse and exhibit it to the public."

"As he settled himself in the saddle, the boy, in order to regulate the horse's gait accordingly, leaned down and whispered to his father: 'Are you buying or selling?'"

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 2.

In our last editorial on Peruna, after showing that this well-known family medicine is no longer a secret remedy, but prints on the label of the bottle the principal active ingredients, we made the statement that PERUNA IS AN EXCELLENT CATARRH REMEDY.

The question now arises whether we are claiming for Peruna more than the facts warrant. Have we abundant proof that Peruna is in reality a catarrh remedy? Have we proof of this fact so well established that even the critics of Peruna must admit the force of our evidence?

Our task will be an easy one to show what eminent authorities think of the ingredients which compose Peruna.

Take, for instance, the ingredient HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS, OR GOLDEN SEAL. The United States Dispensary says of this herb remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women.

What the United States Dispensary Says.

Another ingredient of Peruna, CORYDALIS FORMOSA, is classed in the United States Dispensary as a tonic.

CEDRON SEEDS is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. THE SEEDS ARE TO BE FOUND IN VERY FEW DRUG STORES. The United States Dispensary says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a SUBSTITUTE FOR QUININE.

OIL OF COCAIBA, another ingredient of Peruna, is classed by the United States Dispensary as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes. Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys.

THE EMINENT AUTHORITY ON THERAPEUTICS, BARTHOLOW, in speaking of these same ingredients of Peruna is even more enthusiastic as to their medicinal merit.

OF HYDRASTIS, HE SAYS it is applicable to stomatitis (catarrh of the mucous surfaces of the mouth), follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), chronic coryza (catarrh of the head). This writer classifies hydrastis as a stomachic tonic, useful in atonic dyspepsia (chronic gastric catarrh), catarrh of the duodenum, catarrh of the gall duct, catarrh of the intestines, catarrh of the kidneys (chronic Bright's disease), catarrh of the bladder, and catarrh of other pelvic organs.

BARTHOLOW REGARDS COCAIBA as an excellent remedy for chronic catarrh of the bladder, chronic bronchitis (catarrh of the bronchial tubes). BARTHOLOW STATES THAT CUBEB, an ingredient of Peruna, promotes the appetite and digestion, increases the circulation of the blood. Useful in chronic nasal catarrh, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), increasing the tonicity of the mucous membranes of the throat. It also relieves hoarseness. Useful in atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), and in chronic catarrh of the colon and rectum, catarrh of the bladder, prostaticorrhea, and chronic bronchial affections.

MILLSAUGH, MEDICINAL PLANTS, one of the most authoritative works on medicinal herbs in the English language, in commenting upon COLLINSOIA CANADENSIS, says that it acts on the pneumogastric and vaso motor nerves. It increases the secretions of the mucous membranes in general. In the mountains of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Carolina, collinsolia canadensis is considered a panacea for many disorders, including headache, colic, cramp, dropsy and indigestion. DR. SCUDDER regards it highly as a remedy in chronic diseases of the lungs, heart disease and asthma.

These citations ought to be sufficient to show to any candid mind that Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Surely, such herbal remedies, that command the enthusiastic confidence of the highest authorities obtainable, brought together in proper combination, ought to make a catarrh remedy of the highest efficacy. This is exactly what we claim for Peruna. We claim no more than the best authorities willingly admit. It is useless for envious doctors or hostile critics to attempt to set aside such proof.

Some of these ingredients are not in common use. Some of them are difficult to obtain, and still more difficult to combine into a stable and palatable compound. They have been, therefore, neglected by the medical profession, largely, for remedies that are easier to obtain and more convenient to dispense.

Peruna is a catarrh remedy that has been in the field for many years. OTHER CATARRH REMEDIES HAVE COME AND GONE, but the reputation of Peruna has outlived them all.

Peruna is a combination of efficient herbal remedies that yields a powerful influence on all the mucous membranes of the body, and hence reaches catarrh wherever it is located.

This is our claim, and we are able to substantiate this claim by ample quotations from the HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

JAMES R. CONDITT DEAD.

Life Full of Romance and Adventure Closes at Lino, Tex.

Hudson, Wis., Feb. 21.—A telegram to Judge F. T. Conditt announces the death at Lino, Tex., of James R. Conditt, formerly of Hudson, who was one of the best-known railway employees in the United States, and also well known in Democratic politics, as is shown by the fact that some years ago he came near defeating William R. Clark for United States senator for Montana.

Mr. Conditt was born at Sparta, Wis., Feb. 27, 1829, and early in life entered the railway service, becoming a conductor. He lived at Hudson, Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Montana and in South America. He was at Chiquiquit, Ecuador, when he took sick and went to a sanatorium at Lino, where he died.

His life was full of romance, adventure, restlessness and endless activity. He loved his country as a railway conductor, otherwise he could easily have become eminent in other pursuits had he made the effort. His parents died while he was a boy, and he early became a wanderer among men, never marrying. He leaves the following brothers and sisters: Conductor J. L. Conditt of Minneapolis, Judge F. T. Conditt, Mrs. F. M. Warner and Miss Alice Conditt, all of this city.

LEFT DYNAMITE TO THAW.

Explosion Followed in Half an Hour—Camp Worker Mutilated.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Feb. 21.—Henry Desdardes was terribly mutilated by the explosion of dynamite in a camp of the Muskegon Lumber company, near Glen Flora, and it is not believed he will recover. He had a quantity of dynamite which he wished to throw, and placed it in a dinner pail near the stove. Half an hour later the explosion followed. The camp was badly wrecked. Herman Hartman, a fireman working in a sawmill at Donald, near here, had a miraculous escape from being killed. His clothes were caught in a shaft and his hand was pulled into the machinery, and it was only by exerting his utmost strength that he kept the rest of his body from going into the machinery before the engine was stopped. Every article of clothing was stripped from his body.

ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY LIVES ARE LOST

The German opera company who left last night on the steamer Berlin, the manager of Covent garden said today: "So far as we know those did not include any of the star artists. The party was made up of members of the chorus returning to their homes. They made arrangements directly with the railway company so that we are not yet able to get an exact list of their names. The disaster has aroused the most intense alarm among the other members of the company, owing to the friendships and relationships existing."

The Berlin left Harwich at 10 o'clock last night upon the arrival of the London train with the greater number of passengers who subsequently lost their lives. The steamer should have reached the hook of Holland at 6 o'clock this morning and would have then proceeded to Rotterdam.

A great gale was blowing in the North Sea when the Berlin started. As the Berlin was entering the waterway at the entrance of the river Maas, however, she apparently became unmanageable on account of the force of the wind and was driven ashore. The alarm was given and lifeboats from the shore went to the assistance of the stricken steamer, but the seas were so heavy that the boats were unable to approach the Berlin close enough to take off any of the passengers or crew and that most men had to sit helpless while the steamer pounded until she broke in two and every soul on board was carried down.

The steamer apparently struck about amidships, as her forepart broke off and sank immediately, while her stern, which could be seen for a considerable period of time afterwards, was the waterway in which the disaster occurred. The steamer was on the north side of which is the pier and railroad station. The steamer must have been within a few minutes of tying up after her rough passage on the North Sea when she was overtaken by the disaster. Land was but a few yards away, and except in the roughest weather those on board the Berlin could have been rescued without difficulty.

The waterway in which the disaster occurred is one of the busiest in the world, and is the pier and railroad station. The steamer must have been within a few minutes of tying up after her rough passage on the North Sea when she was overtaken by the disaster. Land was but a few yards away, and except in the roughest weather those on board the Berlin could have been rescued without difficulty.

The Berlin was a steel steamer, only twelve years old and popular with travelers to the north of Europe. In summer she usually was crowded with passengers, but at this time of the year her average was about as it was last night, the number being equally divided between first and second class. One of the inspectors, while some of the passengers were being rescued, saw the steamer train off the Liverpool street station, said last night he thought there was more first class than second class passengers, most of them being commercial men or persons having professional business engagements on the continent, and some of the inhabitants of the continent returning home from business trips to Great Britain.

The members of the crew, numbering fifty, were mostly Englishmen from Harwich. The officers were Capt. Precious, First Officer C. Morley, Second Officer J. Wyatt, Chief Engineer Benjamin, and a number of other stewards.

MRS. THAW BREAKS DOWN AND WEEPS

During the cross-examination of Evelyn Nesbit this morning brought another big crowd to the courtroom where the trial of Harry Thaw is being held. Mrs. Thaw, who had been in the courtroom for some time, was seen to break down and weep when she was asked to identify the body of her husband.

Thaw entered the courtroom immediately after the jury without waiting to be formally called to the bar. His hair was matted and his face was eager and nervous. He carried a large pad of paper, and after taking a few moments to make notes of his wife's testimony.

When Justice Fitzgerald had taken his place on the bench, there was a conference among the attorneys, and it was decided there would be no session Washington's birthday.

When Mrs. Thaw was called to the stand she glanced at her husband and smiled. Then she turned to Justice Fitzgerald and made a little bow to him, but the justice did not notice her. Mr. Jerome consulted his notes at some length before beginning to question the witness, and then he called her attention to her closing testimony on yesterday in order that she might pick up the strands of story where they had been dropped upon adjournment.

"Did you continue to believe all women did when they were in the city?" "Yes, sir," replied Mrs. Thaw, ineffectively. Then the district attorney took a new vein of questioning.

"Do you know a place called the 'Dead Rat'?"

"Where is the 'Dead Rat'?"

"Somewhere in the city."

"Have you ever been there?"

"Yes."

"What sort of a place is it?"

"Is it a reputable place?"

"I don't know."

"Did it seem reputable to you?"

"I don't know—people were sitting about eating."

"Was somebody dancing?"

"I think so."

"Was it 2 o'clock in the morning?"

"Possibly."

"Did you see a cake-walk?"

"No, I think there was a Russian dance."

"Sure there was no cake-walk?"

"There may have been; I don't remember. I distinctly remember the Russian dance."

"Was it before or after Thaw proposed to you that you went to the 'Dead Rat'?"

"After."

"Was it in 1903?"

"No."

"How many times were you at the 'Dead Rat'?"

"I think only once."

"Can't you fix even the year of your visit?"

"I think it was 1904."

"With whom did you go?"

"With Mr. Thaw, and Mr. Shubert, a theatrical agent, and another man, whose name I don't remember."

"I will whisper a name to you and ask if the man is dead or alive."

Mr. Jerome whispered and Mrs. Thaw shook her head.

"Was there a lady or were there ladies in the party?"

"I think there were—with Mr. Shubert."

"Did you see many ladies of the demi-monde there?"

Mr. Delmas was on his feet with an objection.

"I am applying the witness' own expression," said Mr. Jerome.

"I never said that," ejaculated Mrs. Thaw indignantly.

"Did the witness use the expression in a letter?"

Again Mr. Delmas objected and was sustained.

"Don't you know what I mean?" asked Mr. Jerome of the witness.

"When I say did you see many of the ladies of the demi-monde there?"

"I think so."

"Have you any doubt?"

"No."

"Do you know Miss Winchester?"

"Slightly."

"Did you see her do a cake-walk at the 'Dead Rat' that night?"

"I don't remember."

"In whose handwriting is this letter?" handing her several written sheets.

"Mr. Thaw's, I think."

"Have you any doubt of it?"

"I don't think I have."

Mr. Jerome then offered the letter in evidence.

Mr. Delmas objected on the ground that it was mutilated and the date was not given.

"Do you know of your own knowledge when this was written?"

"I haven't the slightest idea."

"Will you note the paging of that letter?"

"No."

"Did not you and Mr. Thaw while in Paris write joint letters to friends, you writing part and he the rest?"

"I cannot say positively; very likely we did."

"Had you changed your opinion in regard to the general chastity of women?"

"No."

"How soon after your talk with Thaw did you change your mind?"

"Very soon."

"Did you tell Mr. Delmas in June, 1903, had you changed your mind?"

"Yes."

The witness could not remember, she said, how long it was after Thaw's proposal of marriage that she left Paris.

"Did you have any appreciation that meretricious relations between man and woman were immoral and wrong?"

"Not until after my talk with Mr. Thaw."

"Before that you did not believe it wrong?"

"Very wrong?"

"Not particularly. I knew people said it was wrong."

"Did you think it very indecent and vulgar?"

"That is all."

"You use the word 'indecent'?"

"But you didn't think it was wrong?"

"I didn't fully realize it until I went to the 'Dead Rat'."

"But you thought it was wrong?"

"Yes."

"Do you belong to any religious organization?"

"No."

"You went to church and Sunday school in Pittsburgh?"

"In Pittsburgh?"

"In Paris it was impressed on you that Thaw had done you a terrible wrong?"

"In a way."

"Did you leave Paris you had begun to look on such relations as very wrong?"

"No."

"Had you come to a full understanding of the infamous character of Thaw's act?"

"Yes—but not so much so as I have."

"Yet it was this that induced your recantation of Thaw's great love?"

"Yes."

"Did you mean to tell me the story?"

"Not true?" asked Mr. Jerome of Mr. Delmas.

"That's the only reason you can object."

Justice Fitzgerald sustained the objection.

PROMISED TO CLEAN BOWERY

Fire Was Extinguished Before It Accomplished Good Work.

With the wind favorable, and the right kind of a start, the fire which occurred last evening at the corner of Sixth avenue west and Superior street, threatened to wipe out the row of dingy shacks between Sixth and Fifth avenues west on the upper side of Superior street, but the fire department stopped the good work and contained the damage to the clothing store of J. and M. Pollinsky on the corner.

The adjoining stores were slightly damaged by smoke and water.
Spectators were all hoping that the flames would get a good start on the firemen and sweep the entire block of the tumble down buildings. The firemen were approached by innumerable importunities to "let 'em burn." Their duty, however, was of course to extinguish the flames as quickly as possible, and they did so, whatever their inclinations may have been.

morrow.
A program of toasts and other banquet and it is expected that the affair will be the most enjoyable of the season. The Smith trophy, which the West Duluth club recently won at Duluth, will be on exhibition.

STOLEN CASH SQUANDERED
Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 21.—The $1,300 of the organ fund of the Second Christian church, which was entrusted to Treasurer Helen Dixon, was dissipated in extravagance in expenditures by herself. This was admitted by Miss Dixon, who, for the first time since her arrest, she talked freely about her case at the home of a friend.
Although ill and hardly able to speak above a whisper, she admitted that the money the church had placed in her custody had slipped through her fingers in some manner for her personal desires and with little help from outsiders.
Miss Dixon was asked when she first commenced to spend the money turned over to her by the church society. She replied that she did not know the exact time, but she long ago realized that she would be found out some time and that she had worried deeply about it.
She referred to her brother in the course of the interview and her friends corroborated her story, stating that he tramped the country and would show up at unexpected times and ask her for money.

RAILROADS

RAILWAY CLUB.

Regular Monthly Meeting Will be Held Saturday Evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the Northern Railway club will be held next Saturday evening, Feb. 23, instead of on Friday evening. Usually these meetings are held on Fridays, but the fact that tomorrow is Washington's birthday has brought about a change in the date.

F. B. Farmer, northwestern representative of the Westinghouse Air Brake company, will read a paper on "Adequate and Reliable Locomotive Air Supply." R. E. McFarlane, supervisor of the Northern Pacific, will talk on "Repairs and Maintenance of Bridges and Steel Structures." Both papers promise to be of considerable interest to railroad men.

There will be several excellent features of entertainment, including a dance of good dancers. Special trains will be run from Two Harbors and Proctor, to accommodate members from these towns. Probably the attendance will be large. In addition to the regular papers there will be a discussion of the papers read at the January meeting.

BLOCKS SIGNAL TESTS.
The Northwestern Line Finishes Long and Satisfactory Series.

The management of the Northwestern railroad has just completed a demonstration showing what can be accomplished in the way of educating engineers to obey block signals. In a year's time the company made a series of "surprise tests," numbering 1,625, and the record shows that there was not a single failure to obey the signals and to observe the rules governing block signaling.

During the same period other tests were made in various matters of secondary importance with respect to block signaling. These numbered 1,221 and ranged from audible signal tests to the observation of slow and stop signals placed by track maintainers and others. It is claimed that in only sixteen cases were the rules not absolutely obeyed. This is 1 per cent failure.

Road to Port Arthur.
MacKenzie & Mann have announced that early this spring they will begin laying steel between the Alger-Smith road and the Port Arthur road. The miles of new road will give Duluth and Port Arthur rail connection.

Offices to Close.
The railroad city freight and ticket offices will close tomorrow at 1 o'clock, on account of Washington's birthday.

TWO THOUSAND SINGERS

To be at Northwestern Saengerfest at La Crosse in July.

La Crosse, Wis., Feb. 21.—Two thousand singers on a single, mammoth stage, with Miss Anna Hickisch, a La Crosse girl whose soprano voice is world famous, are two of the features planned for the Northwestern saengerfest to be held in La Crosse, July 23, 24, 25 and 26, 1907, by the officers and executive committee of the saengerfest. So gigantic an undertaking is the saengerfest that preparation for more than two years is necessary, and La Crosse will build a $100,000 auditorium to accommodate the many thousands of delegates and audience who will be here. Next Friday evening the city council will consider bonding the city for $65,000 to add the auditorium project, and it is planned to donate a city park on Fourth and King streets as a site.
President Theodore G. Behrens of Chicago, and Secretary George H. G.
Kleck, Milwaukee, met the executive committee in this city and committees have been arranged on finance, refreshments, reception, order, badges, etc. Fifteen thousands dollars already has been guaranteed by the business men of the city to insure the financial success of the undertaking.

Among the musical features will be the singing of Miss Anna Hickisch.
She was born and raised in La Crosse and was a chorus girl in an opera company. During the illness of Miss Alice Nielson at Minneapolis a few years ago Miss Hickisch was called upon to sing the leading role, and her success was such that she at once became a star. She has since played in Europe, Africa and Asia, and is now playing in Johannesburg, South Africa. Two concerts are planned for Friday and Saturday evenings of the saengerfest week, in which 100 singers are expected to participate.
Two matinees will also be given on the afternoons of these days, in which a children's chorus of 1,500 voices will participate.
Five hundred singers, including societies from Chicago, Madison, Eau Claire, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Minneapolis, already have engaged hotel accommodations for the festival. Hundreds of German singing societies located in Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and the Dakotas will take part, sending delegations ranging from 10 to 200 singers each.
Besides Miss Hickisch, soloists will be engaged from the East to sing leading parts. A magazine published in the interests of the saengerfest is to be established here in June, and will be published for twelve months to promote the attendance.
The event will be the biggest in the history of the saengerbund and the greatest musical meeting ever held in the Northwest.

VENEZUELAN BULLETS

FREE DECEIVED WIFE.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Death won out in the divorce case of Mrs. Antonio M.
Paredes, formerly Miss Florence C.
Hutchinson, 315 Indiana avenue, against her Mexican husband, Antonio
M. Paredes, filed a week ago in Judge Winder's court, when a firing squad from President Castro's army swept into eternity nineteen rebel prisoners at Caracas, Venezuela.
Foremost among the revolutionists executed was the leader of the "army," Gen. Antonio M. Paredes. Mrs. Paredes was formerly Miss Florence Celestine Hutchinson, daughter of the late John Hutchinson, a Chicago lawyer, prior to which time he was governor of the territory of Dakota. The Hutchinson family was well known throughout the Northwest during the early days.
Miss Hutchinson was traveling with her mother in Mexico in 1903 when she met Antonio M. Paredes. He claimed to be wealthy and spoke grandiloquently of his palace on the Rio Grande and in Vera Cruz, good to look upon, romantic, but fiercely aggressive in his love-mason family was well known through-
days.
The marriage took place here at the Hutchinson residence Sept. 1, 1903.
An investigation showed the bride that instead of having married a capitalist, as she supposed she had for a husband the son of an obscure hotel-keeper in the City of Mexico, whose life up to that time had been cast in the role of an adventurer, and an original investigator in the fields of Vagabondage.

Instead of being of noble birth, as he claimed, it found that his ancestry was embellished with the device of a skillet, and the great wealth he was supposed to possess was his confidence in being able to wrest from his wife the valuable art treasures she had inherited from her mother.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Representa-

"Yes, it's going to be a little un-

But nobody can have that charge against me for my guests are all

JOERNS HAS RETURNED

From Trip to Butte and the Adjacent Mineral Country.

Visited the Gold and Scheelite District in Park County.

W. O. Joerns has returned from a ten days' trip to Butte and the adjacent mineral country. Primarily the object of Mr. Joerns' trip was the examination of some copper properties and L. Loran, mining expert of this city, accompanied him for that purpose.

Incidentally Mr. Joerns visited the gold and scheelite district at Jardine, Park county, Mont., situated about six miles from Gardiner, the entrance to the Yellowstone park. Of this latter district Mr. Joerns speaks as follows:

"I had heard and read of the scheelite deposits in the Bear Gulch gold camp at Jardine (scheelite, being the present richest known source of the mineral tungsten, which, as an alloy of steel and indestructible impregnation of electric carbons and wood floors generally is attracting so much present attention in the scientific world) and I was anxious to see to what extent the reports thereof would be verified in fact. I examined the surface indications to some extent and the general nature of the mineral formations and contour of the district, had an excellent opportunity to see and study the operations of the stamp, concentrating and skidder plants at that point and went through a considerable part of the active operation. I know beforehand that there were rich pockets of high grade scheelite in that district, but was not prepared to find, as I did, however, that the operating companies also saved the lower grade scheelite deposits in the gangue by concentration and the use of fine vaniers.

Not only realized a concentrated product of 30 per cent pure scheelite, but also subjected the tungsten from this process to cyanide treatment and secured the gold therefrom. Indeed my visit to Jardine as a whole was a most profitable one with proper management the district has almost unlimited possibilities as both a gold and scheelite camp.

"I found the Montana climate positively delightful. In fact, I have never enjoyed a trip with pleasant weather and each succeeding day seemed an improvement on the former. West of Livingston, where the road branches off to Yellowstone park, the country has the benefit of the occasional warm chinook winds from the South with corresponding results. Contrary to expectation I also found that Montana is fast developing into an agricultural state and that the numerous valleys, through irrigation and under the care of a splendid population from the central west, are developing into the most fertile farming districts. This substantial addition to the mineral riches of the state is already impressing itself upon the public life with favorable results. I was particularly impressed with the agricultural possibilities of the state by a short stay at Bozeman, the seat of the University of Montana. I understood that still further west, there are developed fine fruit farms.

"Montana is certainly a great state. Its mineral development is only a few years old and its growing interests, while important, are being gradually overtaken by the growing agricultural interests of the state. This insures to the state all the elements of a permanent prosperity. Montana has, however, no these cities. Many of its smaller cities and towns are very livable in appearance and location. This is particularly true of those in the agricultural sections. Butte is by quite a bit the largest city of the state, though in reality it is not much more than a large mining camp. The population of Butte is approximately that of Duluth, but one accustomed to the metropolitan atmosphere, industry and commercial activity of Duluth is loth to credit such a statement. A Duluth man, however, who has seen things in Butte which to him have become a matter of daily life and environment.

roads to put in as a defense, when they sued for demurrage charges, that they were unable to furnish the cars. The house voted this amendment down, and Mr. Tighe stated that this failure made the bill very unconstitutional. John C. Lamson of Minneapolis, who has been a consistent opponent of the bill from the start, said just before the voting began, that the bill was not worth the paper it is written on, but he voted for it because the people wanted it, and he wanted them to realize what confoundery it is. Personally, he thought it very much like a mule; without pride of ancestry or hope of posterity.

Mr. Tighe said that as originally drafted the bill gave a right of way to large shippers, and that now it affords some relief to the small shippers, who need protection.

Mr. Rocke agreed with Mr. Tighe that the bill is unconstitutional without the amendment suggested by him.

but said he hoped it could be fixed in the senate.

As finally adopted by the house, the provisions of the bill are substantially as follows: It is made the duty of railroads to furnish suitable cars to all persons, without discrimination, who may apply in good faith for them, and to transport their freight with all reasonable dispatch and to provide suitable facilities for handling it at its stations.

When cars are applied for, they must be furnished within forty-eight hours after receipt of the order, and if they fail to do so, they must pay $1 a day for each car failed to be furnished, to be recovered in court, together with such actual damages as the applicant may have suffered.

When the railroad is notified that cars have been loaded, it must move them within twenty-four hours, and if they fail to do so, they must pay $1 a day for each car failed to be moved, to be recovered in court, together with such actual damages as the applicant may have suffered.

On the part of patrons, the shipper must load his cars within forty-eight hours after receipt of the order, and if they fail to do so, they must pay $1 a day for each car failed to be loaded, to be recovered in court, together with such actual damages as the applicant may have suffered.

cluded in the invitation, but he was unable to go on account of sickness at home.

Mr. Woodbridge said that he had represented the Engineering and Mining Journal and the Iron Age, technical papers, for number of years, that he had had experience, as a mining engineer and in explorations for minerals in Minnesota, Arizona and Mexico, and that he had examined many or most of the mines in Minnesota.

Generally, his testimony related to the size of the mines, the value of their ores, and the methods of mining. He was asked to give evidence as to the quantity of ore in each mine, but was unable to do so, stating that only the operators knew this, and that even their knowledge was based on explorations which developed often showed to be faulty.

Asked about the Vermilion range, he began at Soudan and said that the Vermilion range was about 1,400 feet, and that new ore bodies had been discovered lately. The ore is non-bessemer and in comparatively small bodies. It ranged from 62 to 96 per cent in iron, which is very rich for non-bessemer ore. About 200,000 tons have been taken from the mine. The property owned covers about five-forties, but he had no knowledge as to what portion of these holdings the ore bodies covered. He didn't think anybody knew. Asked what the mine was worth, he said it was hard to say. The ore varies in price, grade and quantity, and like freight varies. It is impossible to tell the value of a mine unless one knows the quantity of ore it contains. Development may show its value to be greater than anticipated, and it may show it to be less, as ore bodies may pinch out.

Mr. Woodbridge said that it would be a practical impossibility to determine the actual value of any iron mine, developed as are those of Lake Superior, until the mine was completely mined out. This because unexpected masses of rock may intrude in the ore at any time, and such ore is waste; or on the other hand, further exploration might add largely to tonnage. Each condition was common in Minnesota.

He explained the method of pricing ores, showing that the $65 price is based on a rate of $1.65 per ton, and that the actual price being above and below this, according to the quality of the ore, iron, and less or more phosphorus. From the Cleveland price must be deducted 15 cents for the lake freight, 15 cents for insurance and commissions, and in the case of the Soudan ores, 50 cents for rail haul, leaving for Minnesota mine ore about $1.60 less cost at the mine. From this must be deducted a little over a dollar a ton, the cost of mining and loading.

He said the Minnesota Iron company owns the railroad, though he admitted that it was the general position that the Steel corporation controls both.

As to ore-carriage rates, he showed that the rate in this area is about 1 cent per ton per mile on the average, though in the case of the Great Northern with a long haul it is only 56 cents per ton per mile, and from Marquette range it is 2 cents per ton mile, from Negaunee it is 1.65 cents per mile, from the Gogebic range it is 1.1 cent per ton mile, and from Menominee it is 1 to 1.65 cents per mile.

Referring to the Ely mines, the Chandler, Pioneer, Zenith, Sibley and Savor, Mr. Woodbridge said they were all located on a certain vein, coming to the surface of the Chandler and dipping to a great depth at the Zenith. They are owned by various corporations, but are in the control of the Steel corporation. The ore is very high grade, largely bessemer, and runs from 95 to 98 per cent in iron.

Mr. Wells of the committee asked about 72 per cent ore, and the witness said that he had seen a lot of it, but that it was a physical impossibility. Seventy per cent is the highest possible in only one ore, and occasional lumps showing 60 or 62 per cent are found. Ely ore, the witness said, is worth $1.75 to $2.00 at Cleveland, making at the price $1.25 per ton, and they shipped about 1,450,000 tons last year. The Chandler has eighty acres, the Zenith, Sibley and Savor, and the Pioneer has 200 acres of land. Asked about the cost of developing, the witness said that there are four new shafts in the district costing $100,000 each. Undoubtedly $1,000,000 has been spent in this district, and the Chandler has a shaft with from twenty to thirty feet up to bulges of several hundred feet.

Mr. Woodbridge then took up the Mesaba range, but had only sketchy information. He said that it was necessary to ascertain the extent of the range, and that there were 120 miles on the Mesaba, or thereabouts. He said that a considerable percentage of them are owned by independent interests, outside of the Steel corporation. He developed a method to estimate the quantity of ore in the mines, as the deposits, in Mesaba, are not so regular as those in the Lake Superior range, generally. He developed a method to estimate the quantity of ore in the mines, as the deposits, in Mesaba, are not so regular as those in the Lake Superior range, generally.

Speaking of royalties, he mentioned the Kelleys mine, where the royalty is $1 a ton. He said that the Kelleys mine is the only one where the owner had a steel plant and pay a royalty price for it. It would be fair, he said, in answer to a question, to put the price of the ore at $1.60 per ton, because of taxation, because right near the Kelleys mine, where the royalty is only 25 cents.

The Mesaba mine royalty is only 15 cents, and he said that it was impossible to lay the ore down in Cleveland at a profit, and that the Kelleys mine was the only one where the owner had a steel plant and pay a royalty price for it. It would be fair, he said, in answer to a question, to put the price of the ore at $1.60 per ton, because of taxation, because right near the Kelleys mine, where the royalty is only 25 cents.

Taking up the Hill royalties that the Steel corporation is going to pay, at the suggestion of P. B. Wright, a Duluth house, who conducted the examination, Mr. Woodbridge said that it was the poorest of the Steel company ever made. He admitted that it had its bearing on the price of ore. It must be considered that Hill had the best big block of Mesaba ore that could be turned over, and that added value to it. The Steel corporation is a large consumer, and it is looking to the future. Much of the Hill ore is no good new, but it may be used in the future. The Hill royalties ran from 37 cents for 30 per cent ore to 10 cents for 60 per cent ore, and are under 10 per cent.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1887.

At midnight fire broke out in the house of James Jennings at Twenty-third avenue west and Superior street and spread to the house of George Twaddie. Both houses were practically destroyed, but most of the furniture was saved. The loss is about $2,200, with insurance of $1,400.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded:

R. H. Palmer to Solomon Lundberg, lot 54, East Third street, First division, $2,000.

F. W. Parsons to Blume & Traphagen, west half of lot 38, block 36, Central division, $11,250.

Scott & Olson to E. Beckman, lots 1 and 3 block 190, Third division, $1,475.

Stearns & Esign to W. W. Preston, lot 1, block 44, Easton, $1,350.

J. W. Jones et al. to Andrew Shaw, east half lot 26, block 2, Central division, $6,000.

R. M. Hunter to P. C. Bailey, lot 107, block 3, Third division, $4,500.

J. D. Ray to Morris Messenger, lots 12 and 13, block 14, Central division, $4,000.

F. W. McKinney to E. S. Palmer, lot 3, East Fifth street, First division, $1,250.

J. D. Ray to J. G. Stearns, lot 10, block 2, Banning & Ray's addition, $2,000.

RUNS DOWN A CORPSE

Street Car Hits Wagon With Body of Woodsman.

Was En Route to Depot for Shipment to Wisconsin.

One of the small cars on the East end line ran down a corpse this morning.

Shortly after 7 o'clock, as car No. 79 was slowing down to stop at the corner of Second avenue west and Superior street, on its trip westward, a rig driven by a single horse, and carrying two men and the corpse of Alex Ahern, the woodsman who died at St. Mary's hospital yesterday, came down the avenue and across the track in front of the car.

Although the car was moving slowly and with decreasing speed the efforts of the motorman to bring it to a dead stop were unsuccessful as the wheels slid on the icy rails.

The fender caught the rear wheel and pushed the rig along until it had traveled a distance of nearly its own length. Peter Ahern, brother of the deceased, and the driver made a dash for the side of the wagon, but did not get off until the car came to a stop. When the vehicle came in contact one of the men came with some force against one of the windows in the front vestibule and the other passengers inside dodging the flying glass.

The accident was fortunate in a way as neither the men on the wagon or the car were hurt. The driver of the wagon was not hurt and one front wheel of the wagon was demolished.

The remains of Alex Ahern were being taken to the Omaha depot for shipment to Rice Lake, Wis., and the driver of the wagon, Peter Ahern, to remove the box from the broken vehicle and another wagon was produced to take it to the depot.

Mrs. Cora B. Miller Makes a Fortune

Started a Few Years Ago With No Capital, and Now Employs Nearly One Hundred Clerks and Stenographers.

Until a few years ago Mrs. Cora B. Miller lived in a manner similar to that of thousands of other very poor women of the average small town and village.

She now resides in her own palatial brown-stone residence, and is considered one of the most successful business women in the United States.

Several years ago Mrs. Miller learned of a mild and simple preparation that cured rheumatism and several kinds of female weakness and piles. She was besieged by so many women needing treatment that she decided to furnish it to those who might call for it.

She started with only a few dollars capital, and the remedy, possessing true and wonderful merits, producing many cures when doctors and other remedies failed, the demand grew so rapidly that she was soon compelled to seek larger quarters. She now occupies one of the city's largest office buildings, which she owns, and almost 100 clerks and stenographers are required to assist in this great business.

More than a million women have used Mrs. Miller's remedy, and no matter where you live, she can refer you to ladies in your own locality who can give you the name of the person who has used it.

Remember, this offer will not last long, for thousands and thousands of women who are suffering will take advantage of this generous means of getting cured. So if you are ailing, do not suffer another day, but send your name and address to Mrs. Miller for the book and medicine before the $10,000,000 worth is all gone.

Kind which ever left an American port. In addition, there will go along with it 40,000 electric exploders; 4,000 sets of seventy pound rails, 2,600 steel spikes; 25,000 tie plates; 30,000 pounds of track bolts; 300,000 pounds of track spikes and 150,000 pounds of track ties. At least 75,000 pounds of dynamite are used in the construction work.

Points of order were the feature of the day over the provisions in the bill continuing throughout the session.

By the terms of the bill, as reported from the committee on rules, seven grades of clerks are established in the first and second class offices with salaries ranging from $500 to $1,200. City letter carriers are divided into five grades with salaries ranging from $800 to $1,100, the $700 salaries being omitted. Railway mail clerks are divided into six grades below that of the postmaster, the lowest being $800 to $1,700. The maximum salary of a rural carrier is $840.

The rule was adopted without division. The bill was then engrossed, read a third time and passed.

THAW CASE PROMPTS GIFT.

Story of Evelyn Thaw Brings Fund for Young Women.

Cincinnati, Feb. 21.—As a memorial to his daughter, Charlotte, who was killed in an automobile accident in southern France last summer, J. G. Schmidlapp, a widely known Cincinnati banker and millionaire, has announced the establishment of a fund of $250,000, the interest of which is to be devoted to the benefit of young women.

Friends of Mr. Schmidlapp say that the fund was decided on by him after a recent visit to New York and after learning of the testimony in the Thaw murder trial.

This makes a total of $500,000 given by Mr. Schmidlapp recently in memory of his wife and two daughters, all of whom at different times met accidental deaths.

The new trust is to be administered by the mayor of Cincinnati, the president of Cincinnati university and five directors of the Union Trust company of this city, and there is no limit of any sort on the trustees in selecting beneficiaries.

The income is to be used for the benefit of young women, "in caring for them in disease, in constraint or in education."

One person was killed and five were injured in a ditch which did damage amounting to $50,000 to the plant and stock of the Friend Paper Mills at West Carrollton, six miles north of Cincinnati, Ohio, shortly before 6 o'clock Wednesday evening.

A woman named Mrs. Pannie Schlicht died at the home of the daughters of Jacob in New York, Wednesday, at the reputed age of 114 years. Mrs. Schlicht was born in Budapest, Hungary.

Bainbridge, an Ohio village of 3,000, was swept by fire Wednesday night. The loss is estimated at $300,000.

The senate committee on railroads and canals at Ottawa, Ont., Wednesday proposed to build a canal from St. Joseph to Lake Huron to Port Stanley on Lake Erie.

The United States gunboat Gloucester, which was blown ashore during the hurricane last September, was floated Wednesday. The vessel will go into dry dock.

Yet detailed information as to the number of deaths resulting from the mine explosion at Las Esperanzas, Mexico, has not been obtained. But it can be stated on good authority that no less than sixty-five lives have been lost, and that when the debris is cleared away the list of dead may be increased to seventy.

Esther Mitchell, who since July has been in the county jail at Seattle, Wash., charged with the murder of her brother, George Mitchell, was sent to the state asylum for the insane Wednesday.

Dr. Hunter Corbett, moderator, and Robert Sheer, senior secretary of the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church, were the chief speakers at the Omaha auditorium at Wednesday's session of the inter-syncretical foreign missionary convention. Fully 3,000 persons attended. F. L. McClelland of St. Louis, presided.

SAW HUSBAND'S GHOST. Remarkable Story Is Told by a Widow in England.

London, Feb. 21.—A remarkable story of a ghostly apparition was told by Mrs. Hughes, the widow of Samuel Hughes, on whose body an inquest was held at Crumlin, near Newport, not long ago. Mr. Hughes was a native of the village of Crumlin, near Newport, and it is surmised that he lost his way and was killed on the railway. His body was found under a tree to catch and punish the elopers.

MYSTERY OF CHRISTMAS TREE IS EXPLAINED

Object Seen on the Ice Was Not a Man.

Was Wooden Bench Used by Children on Rink.

The mystery of the Christmas tree is explained.

The story presents beautiful possibilities from a newspaper standpoint. The harrowing story of a man going to his death on an ice floe in the waters of the lake, and of his long wait in vain on the ice, trying to rescue himself from the biting winds behind the overgrown branches, would make a reporter's mouth water.

But in the interests of truth and a square deal to the police and life saving men, the facts of the case have to be given.

Some children living in the vicinity of Nineteenth avenue east cleared a skating rink on the ice a few weeks ago. The youngsters used the rink every fine morning and afternoon and it was a favorite playground with them for weeks. They fitted it up with a rude bench which was used as a resting place. They also discovered an old Christmas tree which had been used and thrown away by Henry Stearns of 41 South Nineteenth avenue east. They dragged the tree down to the rink, and left it there.

Yesterday morning the children were grieved to find the Christmas tree missing. They looked for it everywhere, but it was nowhere to be seen. It was moving out very slowly, and carrying with it the bench, which few men have encountered and lived. Kana, who is a powerful man, was at work in the shelter, when he was caught on a belt which was traveling at terrific speed. As soon as he realized that he was going toward sure death, he seized with one hand that portion of the belt above, and with the other the portion below him. By an almost superhuman effort he stopped the machinery which these belts operated. He then called for help, and it was but a moment's work to release him. When he found he was safe, he had the strength to walk. He seemed well for a day or two, but eventually suffered a stroke of paralysis, which the doctors say is due to the shock.

STRENGTH SAVED HIM. Man Caught in Belting Stops Machinery by Own Effort.

Pueblo, Colo., Feb. 21.—John Kane has suffered a stroke of paralysis, but it is believed that, because of his great strength, he will survive. RETAINS HIS SEAT Long Fight Against Senator Reed Smoot is Ended.

Senate Votes 51 to 37 in Favor of Member From Utah.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The four years' contest against Reed Smoot as a senator of the United States from Utah was ended yesterday when forty-two of his colleagues voted to sustain him as against twenty-eight for the resolution to unseat him. Added to this were nine pairs, making the actual standing on the resolution thirty-seven to fifty-one. Senator Smoot did not vote and Senator Wetmore was absent and not paired.

The Smoot resolution was called up soon after the senate convened. Every seat in the galleries was filled and during the voting the standing room on the floor was crowded by members of the house and employees of the senate. A resolution to unseat a senator affecting the standing of a senator that has attracted such marked attention. In the audience were representatives of a number of prominent women's organizations which have been active in circulating petitions against Mr. Smoot. These women secured many thousands of signatures to their petitions, which were sent to the senate in elaborately bound volumes.

There have been numerous speeches for and against Senator Smoot since the resolution to unseat him was reported from the committee on privileges and elections last year. Yesterday Senator Smoot spoke in support of his support.

At 4 o'clock, when by agreement the voting was to begin, Senator Hopkins offered his amendment to the committee resolution, and it was adopted. Under the amendment, a two-thirds vote would have been necessary to carry the resolution which declared that Smoot is not entitled to his seat. Senator Carmack offered as a substitute resolution declaring that Senator Smoot should be "expelled," the effect of this would be to displace the committee resolution if adopted, and it was defeated. Then came the vote on the committee resolution as amended, which was as follows:

Resolved, two-thirds of the senators present concurring therein that Reed Smoot is not entitled to a seat as a senator of the United States from the state of Utah.

Although it was a foregone conclusion that the resolution would fail and thus end the long fight against the Utah senator the roll call contained some surprises. Of the sixty-two votes in favor of Mr. Smoot, three were cast by Democrats, Blackburn, Clark (Montana) and Daniels. Senator Teller was paired in favor of Smoot.

Of the twenty-eight votes against Mr. Smoot, nine were Republicans, Burrows, Clapp, Dupont, Hale, Hansbrough, Homenway, Kittredge, La Follette and Smith.

At the conclusion of the voting there was a rush of Republican senators to the cloak room to congratulate Mr. Smoot. Members of the house followed and the Utah senator was patting on the back and his hands were shaken in hearty fashion by the men who expressed their admiration of his bearing in the long and trying ordeal through which he has passed. On the floor of the senate and in the galleries it was many minutes before order could be restored.

The following is the vote in detail on the Burrows amendment declaring Senator Smoot not entitled to his seat:

Yea: Bacon, Berry, Burrows, Campbell, Clegg, Clark (Mont.), Cullum, Dill, Duffell, Dyer, Egan, Edwards, Frazier, Gurnea, Hale, Hansbrough, Homenway, Kittredge, La Follette, Latham, McCarty, McLean, Money, Newlands, Overman, Pettus, Sawyer, Simmons, Smith, Stone, Tillman.

Nay: Aldrich, Allen, Ankeny, Beveridge, Blackburn, Brandegee, Bullock, Burdett, Burdett, Clark (Mont.), Clark (Wis.), Crane, Curtis, Daniel, Dugan, Dick, Dillingham, Doolittle, Egan, Frazier, Frye, Fulton, Gallinger, Gamble, Gurnea, Harlan, Hendon, Hiram, Hopkins, Jones, Keam, Kenzie, Lester, Lusk, McPherson, Miller, Mumford, Newlands, Newlands, Overman, Pettus, Spooner, Sunderland, Warner, Warren.

OWNERS REFUSE DEMAND OF DREDGEMEN'S UNION.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 21.—The Dredgers' association, at a meeting here yesterday passed a resolution refusing to grant the Dredgemen's union the same wages for an eight-hour day as prevailed last year for ten or more hours. The owners intimated that unless a compromise is reached the situation may lead to the adoption of the open shop principle in dredge work on the Great Lakes. They assert that they are now combating the federal eight-hour law in regard to government contracts, but they cannot pay the same wages for an eight-hour day as they paid for a ten-hour day. Many of the present contracts were figured on the basis of the long day. The dredge owners want the working day of ten hours or more to continue on other than government contracts.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

WILL PLAY IN ST. PAUL

Four Duluth Rinks Will Go to Saintly City.

Two Competitions Are Scheduled There for the Holiday.

Four rinks will represent the Duluth curling club at St. Paul tomorrow, and sixteen curlers will leave on the Northern Pacific this evening for the Capitol City for tomorrow's games.

The make-up of one of the rinks has not yet been decided upon, though enough men have expressed their willingness to go to make it a sure thing, but the three which have been picked, while the line-up of any of them is subject to change up to the last minute tonight, are the cream of the curlers from the club. McLeod will skip a fast rink in which Superior will play lead, Gibson second and Stocking third. Fochler will play the initial stone for Hurdson's four, Hargreaves will play second, and Fairbairn third, with the club president skipping. Sherwood, Cleveland, Jacoby and Jones, playing in order named, make up the third rink, and the fourth was to have been picked this afternoon.

Two of these rinks will play at the Capitol City rink for the St. Paul trophy presented by Former Governor Merriam, with which goes the state championship. Two rinks from the Duluth club will play at the Minneapolis rink and two from the Minneapolis club will be entered in this competition as well as possibly a few from other towns in the state. The Twin City delegation will include the redoubtable Dunbar and other rinks.

The other two rinks will go to the Nushka club and contest for the "MacKenzie" trophy. This cup was put up two years ago by the Nushka for competition exclusively between their club and the Duluth curlers, and was named in honor of George F. MacKenzie, who was leaving this city at about the time the cup was put up. The trophy has so far remained in the hands of the Nushka club, but the local rinks are going after it hard this year and if it is a possible thing it will rest in the Duluth trophy collection for a year to come.

A. H. Smith, who took a rink to Winnipeg, will not be able to return, but Jamie Myron may command the fourth rink in the local delegation. With yesterday's cold weather in mind, the curlers are playing during the evening, five games being played.

GOOD GAMES OF BASKETBALL

Two Interesting Contests Are Scheduled for Tonight.

Tonight's basketball program is an attractive one. The Y. M. C. A. five is due to meet the Blaine "Football" team of Superior which cleaned them up in a close contest in the evening of last season, and though Dunham and Skelton are out of it, the Duluth boys are playing a heavier and more consistent game than they did at that time and their team work has improved greatly. The line-up of these two teams will be:

Duluth	Superior
Winters rf	F. Buchanan
Fenton c	Nord
Deighton c	Deighton
Smith rg	Zeaman
Dunham lg	A. Buchanan
If Dunham is well enough he may be used in one half and Anderson may play one of the forward positions for part of the game.
At the boys' department the high school championship is to be settled between the Juniors and the Seniors' victory of 20 to 19 last Friday has inspired the third year men with a thirst for revenge and the regaining of lost laurels, but the Seniors are confident of repeating their little slurr of last week, tonight. Basketball has never taken so deep a hold in the high school life as it has this year and tonight's games will mark the close of a most successful season. The line-up of the teams will be:
		Juniors
Bois rf	McDonaghe
Cole c	Caulkins
Anderson c	McFarlane
Feldman rg	Burnett
Taylor lg	Clausen

APPROPRIATIONS OF $200,000,000

Passed by the Senate at Evening Session on Wednesday.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The senate last night passed the river and harbor appropriation bill, carrying a total of $200,000,000. All the committee amendments were agreed to. The bill occupied the senate an hour and twenty-five minutes.

An appropriation of $40,000 was added for the harbor at Algoma, Wis., at the suggestion of Senator Spooner. The total amount for this project is to be $100,000, exclusive of the amount appropriated.

The naval appropriation bill, carrying $100,000,000, was passed in fifty-two minutes. All the committee amendments were agreed to.

Basketball has had a very busy winter. The season comes to a climax tonight when two important games will be played. The high school boys who have been putting up a fine line of basketball in their league, will play their final game to-night, the Juniors and Seniors being the contesting teams.

The Y. M. C. A. team has also proved itself to be a fast organization, and tonight will meet the only team that has been able to hold it, the Blaine "Football" team.

It behooves the curlers to take advantage of this spell of good curling weather to run up the remaining games in the trophy events now in progress. After the end of February curling becomes a rather uncertain sport even in Duluth, and there are still many games to be played in the Manley-McLellan, Herald, St. Louis and Meador trophy events.

All five sheets of ice were occupied last evening, and if this rate of play is maintained for a week, the four unfinished events will be brought down pretty close to the final round.

"Harry Corbett, who died suddenly in San Francisco, last week, conducted a well known resort, which was frequented by sporting men," says a Buffalo article. "He acted as stakeholder in several big fist fights and was a warm personal friend of Jeffries and many other well known pugilists. A year or so ago 'Lil' Avthur' Johnson was in Corbett's place when Jeffries walked in. There had been talk that the champion was afraid to fight the negro. As soon as the big fellow stepped into the ring, Corbett and asked him to lend him $10,000. Corbett took the money out of the safe and gave it to the champion."

"Now," said the latter, turning to Johnson, "we will go down in the cellar and settle this thing right now. If you come up first the money is yours. If I come up I will turn the money over to any hospital or other charitable institution that will nurse you until you recover."

"As he spoke he asked Corbett to hold the stakes. Johnson almost turned white as he listened."

"Mistah Corbett, I ain't no celtah fighta. I likes to fight in the open, where lots of people are looking at me."

"Then he remembered that he had a pressing engagement elsewhere."

SPORTS FOR THE HOLIDAY

Program for Washington's Birthday is Not Lengthy One.

Ice Carnival at Curling Rink Will be the Feature.

Duluth's program for Washington's birthday sports is not as lively as it might be, and very few important events are scheduled for the birthday of the Father of His Country.

The skating carnival at the curling rink is perhaps the biggest affair on the program, and it looks as if the fair was going to be a big success in every way. Contests for the curling rink will be the feature of the day, and it will be a fantastic and many colored crowd that swings around the curling rink to the music of La Brosse.

The somewhat limited capacity of the rink is the only thing that can possibly mar the perfection of the affair, and the crowd from present indications is to be a record breaker.

At the Mat the evening's wrestling program will introduce a new wrestler to the Duluth sports, one Ernie Conklin of this city, who will go on with the Duluth team at 120 pounds for a side bet and a percentage of the house, two out of three falls. Conklin has been doing some hard work getting into shape for the match and his friends who have seen him trying out are enthusiastic about his work.

In the afternoon two basketball games will be played at the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. The Intermediates playing the first team from Nelson-Dewey high school of Superior and the Endon school aggregation meeting the second team from the Superior school. The first game will be called at three o'clock and members being admitted on showing their membership cards. The department is also planning a roller skating party at the Temple rink Friday morning.

In the evening the third of the series of indoor sports in progress at the Y. M. C. A. will be held, and as this is the round championship series will be decided by this evening's work. The victory has been won by the Duluth team, who has 55 points and George Albert Olson with 55 and as both of these men are entered tomorrow's work will decide the contest.

In the event of unusual interest in the program will be the heavyweight wrestling contest in which Frank Bradley, George O'Brien and "Red" Swetloff entered. The featherweight champion, William Redington, who was defeated by the little man who was to have gone with Bradley, is also planning a roller skating party at the Temple rink Friday morning.

If you are selling enough goods then your advertising in The Herald is sufficient.

VICTORIAS ARE COMING

Big Hockey Game is Cinched for Saturday Night.

Duluth Puck Chasers Are After the Dunbar Cup.

The Victoria hockey game is cinched.

In a letter received last evening Manager Fred C. P. Cook of the St. Paul seven, said that they would be on hand for a game here Saturday evening to decide the championship of the state. The Vics have a clear title to the St. Paul championship and the Dunbar cup, and reports of a game to play off a virtual tie between the Victoria and the Mac teams are said to have been unfounded.

Manager Cook suggested that as two of their men could not get off to come up for the game they might have to enter a couple of substitutes, and the local management is going to do some vigorous investigating to see that their substitutes are not picked from the other teams in the Twin City Hockey league as the locals have no desire to run up against an aggregation of all-stars.

The Vics have evidently decided that their rather exorbitant monetary demands were rather head policy, for bare expenses are all that the Northern Hardware team is planning to put up for the St. Paul men on this occasion.

A record breaking crowd is expected at the contest as the two teams' record is one of the fastest organizations in the state. That Minnesota is not so far behind the Copper country is also apparent. As was demonstrated at the game with the Houghton Juniors, which was played here two weeks ago, resulting in a victory for the Northerners, and that contest has done more to put the sport on its feet in this section of the country than any other one thing. With the championship of the state at stake and each of the teams with one game tucked under its belt and the rubber to be played, Duluth will have a chance to show again what she thinks of the great Canadian sport.

The Copper country trip is still up in the air, by the Northern are confident that if the weather holds, good they will receive word from Houghton within a few days to make the trip. Copper country papers are remarking freely upon the decrease of the Juniors here and are taking a lively interest in Duluth as a prospective hockey town for next season, and the Houghton and Calumet people are more anxious to see a Duluth delegation on their own ice.

The American Soo plays in Calumet and Houghton next week, so the boys will have a chance to see a couple of big professional games.

STEAMER SUNK BY FRENCH CRUISER

Disaster Occurs in Mississippi Off City of New Orleans.

New Orleans, Feb. 21.—In hazy weather the French cruiser Kieher last night rammed and sank the American fruit steamer Hugoma, in the Mississippi river just off the city. Capt. Lewis of the Hugoma said that seven coal passers and firemen had been drowned on his vessel. Most of them were Japanese. James O'Neal of New York suffered a broken leg. The cruiser was but slightly damaged. The Kieher, turned directly into the man-of-war's path. Capt. Lewis of the Hugoma says that his signal was mistaken by the warship.

The later struck the fruit ship on the port side, nearly cutting the vessel in two, and within five minutes the Hugoma plunged to the bottom in more than 100 feet of water. Several of her crew scrambled upon the bow of the cruiser before the latter backed, free, while others lowered boats and one or two jumped into the river. The launching of boats was extremely difficult, for when struck, the Hugoma rolled far starboard, remaining there until the cruiser backed, when the fruit ship immediately listed far to port and began to go down.

The Hugoma was a small tonnage and was built in 1901 at Wyandotte, Mich. It was owned by the New York & Porto Rico Steamship company.

HE WILL RIDE NO MORE.

AGED WALKER Breaks One of His Rides and is Injured.

Bellefontaine, Ohio, Feb. 21.—William Martin, age 91 years, declares he will never again ride in a wagon. He has always been an exponent of walking, and a few days ago, while walking from Huntsville to his home in Highland, a neighbor overtook him and asked him to ride. He was so tired and so old that he had not been seated very long when a wheel came off the wagon and he was pitched out and suffered a fracture of the shoulder. He is outspoken about his riding and says he will never ride again.

A RUBBER TEST

NOTE.—This is a pair of "light weight" Foot-Schulze which makes the test even more convincing. The heavier grades of Foot-Schulze rubbers, rubber boots and overshoes are even more sturdy.

Here is a Photograph of the Soles of a Pair of Foot-Schulze Rubbers

Taken at the end of two months wear by a man weighing over 200 pounds, who walked from 5 to 10 miles on hard city pavements, packed snow and stone sidewalks every day during the two months.

At the end of the two months, during which they covered over 600 miles, these soles were practically as good as new (the worn spots are accurately depicted in the photograph). It will be noted that they were not even worn smooth at all points.

Many people who tried to get Foot-Schulze last fall and who took the substitutes offered, will be interested in this test. Did the substitutes "stand the racket" as well as these Foot-Schulze have done?

The moral is—next time don't take the substitute, insist on Foot-Schulze. They cost no more than ordinary kinds and they wear and wear and wear after the ordinary kinds are out at the heel and gone to pieces all over. In the light of the following facts Foot-Schulze superiority is no mystery:

- Foot-Schulze contain more pure India rubber gum than any other brand of rubbers on the market. This rubber is what gives them their tough wear resisting qualities.
- Foot-Schulze are thoughtfully and scientifically constructed to fit modern shoes—there is no chafing and wearing on certain spots where the fit is uncertain. That's another reason.
- Foot-Schulze rubbers, rubber boots and overshoes are the original "Glove" brand known the world over, the first rubber shoe made. Its name and reputation is over 60 years old.
- "Glove" goods possess the old-fashioned honest quality that our grandfathers knew, together with the modern styles that we know.

THEY ARE THE BEST AND IT PAYS TO GET THE BEST

DECISION RENDERED

Text of Judge Morris' Ruling in Diamond Match Case.

Diamond Match Company Must Pay Costs of Action.

The decision of Judge Pape Morris, which was noted in last night's Herald, in the case of the Diamond Match company, gives as reasons for holding in favor of the local company that the bill of complaint does not set forth a cause of action against the defendant.

The case was begun several years ago, and since that time testimony has been taken on different occasions. The final hearing came up before Judge Morris Nov. 20. C. T. Benedict and H. H. Bliss represented the Union Match company, while John R. Nolan was the attorney for the Diamond concern.

The patent which was held by the Diamond company was first issued to Ebenezer B. Beecher in 1888, since which time it has been transferred to several different companies and finally in the Diamond Match Company of Illinois.

The following is Judge Morris' decision in full:

"The above entitled cause having come on for final hearing at the October, 1906, term of court, and the court, commencing on Nov. 20, 1906, having heard the arguments of John R. Nolan, Esq., counsel for complainant, and of C. T. Benedict and H. H. Bliss, Esq., counsel for defendant, and the court having read and examined the evidence and fully considered the same, and the law of the case, "Therefore finds:

"That the bill of complaint of the United States, dated Sept. 11, 1898, No. 388,435, were in due form applied for, signed, sealed and issued to Ebenezer B. Beecher for improvements in match machines; that said bill expired by limitation on Nov. 10, 1905, and subsequent to the expiration of this suit;

"That, therefore, by an instrument in writing, said Ebenezer B. Beecher, before the filing of the bill of complaint in this suit, and before the alleged infringement thereof by defendant, duly transferred said patent and all his rights, title and interest therein to the Diamond Match Company of Illinois, the complainant herein;

"That, as to claims one, two, three, four and five of said patent, the only claims of which infringement was claimed, or attempted to be proven, there was, especially in view of the prior art at the time of the alleged invention, no patentable invention involved in, or covered by, said claims in the generic and broad forms of said claims, and that each of said claims was unauthorized, and was illegal and void;

"Fourth, that if said claims were construed to cover and be for the specific mechanisms shown and described in the patent making up the generic mechanisms that are enumerated as the elements of said several claims, and being so construed to be for such specific mechanisms, such claims or either of them were held valid, that the defendant's machine does not contain such specific mechanisms in combination, and would not infringe said claims, or either of them;

"Now, therefore, it is adjudged and decreed that the bill of complaint does set forth a good cause of action against defendant, and that said bill of complaint, for want of equity, be and is dismissed, with costs to be taxed against the complainant on behalf of defendant.

CONCERNING WOMEN

This column has troubles of its own and does not propose as a general thing to give advice on things about which it knows nothing and to people who will not take it, but a piteous appeal from a young person cannot be set aside without a little consideration. The latest appeal for advice comes from a maiden of fourteen summers or maybe sixteen, but of not near so many sleighrides. She says: "I went to a sleighride the other evening with a boy who asked me, and I didn't know what to talk about. We talked about the weather three times. What do you do under such conditions? The column under stood perfectly that the 'you' was entirely impersonal, and what the maiden undoubtedly wanted to know was how to make conversation. The picture that the words bring before one is execrating in its delicious humor. A maiden that would send anyone just a little off one's head, a sleighload of jollity, an agonizingly self-conscious hero and heroine. They look at the moon and one of them fetching a deep sigh says: 'Dandy weather, isn't it?'"

The ball of conversation thus started is leaped at with eagerness. It is surprising the weather; perfectly grand for sleighrides; the ring around the moon means a storm; and if there are three stars in it that means that it is three days away. Then comes a soft enfolded silence, in fact so enfolded is it that it almost smotheres one it is so heavy and dense: it is thick and cumbersome, and awkward. It is senseless and paralyzing and it sticks. There is but one thing to advise in a case of this kind—escape it—escape it. But while one is on the subject of conversation—how little real there is. One runs over in one's mind the conversation of the past week or one starts out on a still hunt for it, and all one encounters is the Thaw trial and copper stocks and as the young heroine discovered—weather. You casually meet an interesting person for five or ten minutes and he says, "Pretty fine weather, we're having isn't it." "It sure is," you reply. "No sense in people leaving this climate for something better," he continues with brilliance. "My, no," you hasten to assure him. "Discovering a spot on the sun was a great bunch," he reports. "Wasn't it? I hope somebody does it again next winter." "I've got to leave you here," he says. "Goodbye," you ejaculate. That is a good example of brilliant repartee when both parties to the partnership are responsive, but one works just as hard or a little harder when the other person is uncommunicative. One enjoys such a conversation maybe eight times a day. Then perhaps one is invited out to dinner and copper stocks are talked. Talked by people who know a little about them and are eager to know more and by those who know nothing but are in a fair way of learning. The flashes of soul, which sounds like an experiment in dynamics, but which is really quite an enjoyable pastime, are ignored and copper holds sway. You think of several clever things you have read or heard recently and would like to pass them on to kindred spirits. But there is no opportunity. Copper is king of conversation. And then when that subject is in part exhausted, the Thaw case is taken up. The very first thing that is said is, of course, about the reprehensible conduct of the newspapers in printing it and for people who have been printed. Then there is an appalling amount of information among those present, about the whole sickening business are gone over. If people would but discuss the ethics involved instead of the narrow conditions of a limiting case, there might be conversation and also a gentle aid to restful sleep and an early departure of guests.

Du Lhut Chapter Holds February Meeting Tomorrow.

The regular meeting of the Grey-solon du Lhut chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be held tomorrow with Mrs. J. H. Darling, 532 West Third street, in response to roll call the sayings of Washington and Lincoln will be given and the study for the afternoon will be a sketch of "Lincoln as Lawyer and Man," and anecdotes of the Father of his Country will also be given.

PARLOR ANARCHIST.

New Variety of Near Sociologist—Feminine and Enthusiastic.

The parlor anarchist has arrived, says the New York Sun. This is a new variety of the prevailing species of near sociologist, is usually feminine, often young and always enthusiastic. "Last week," said one of them, "I joined the Kneecap Makers' union, and this week I am working in a shirt factory. I couldn't live as you do—I must identify myself with the working man, even dress as one of the proletariat." "I got it last year in Russia; it is the sort the peasants wear," said one. "I thought you didn't get it in New York. They'd charge $25 for it here," she frowned, then grew mysterious. "Ah, if I could win you! Why don't you do something—go into a shop or something?" Her visitor explained that she had in an unimpeachable moment applied for employment as cloak maker, but was told that she was too thin. "Oh, that wasn't the matter—you've no zeal," the parlor anarchist resumed. "You must meet some of my friends." "There's Lisk—she was in prison at Irkutsk. And come down to Rivington street and see Peronoff, not six months free from Tombs." "And Boris, he killed three guards in the escape from—I don't know how to spell it, but it was a prettier name than Sing Sing." She told about Katinka, who at the age of 14 was knouted for making a face at a policeman; of Rosie, who organized the cigarette makers' strike; of Able, who cuts out overcoats all day and composes inflammatory poetry all night; of old Gallagher, who was caught behind a tree box in Phoenix park; of Ludwig, the Hoboken bartender, who sleeps on a mattress filled with material for bombs.

The parlor anarchist was used to bombs. When Marienka evaded the police at Somersk she presented the parlor anarchist with her unimpeachable moment applied for employment as cloak maker, but was told that she was too thin. "Oh, that wasn't the matter—you've no zeal," the parlor anarchist resumed. "You must meet some of my friends." "There's Lisk—she was in prison at Irkutsk. And come down to Rivington street and see Peronoff, not six months free from Tombs." "And Boris, he killed three guards in the escape from—I don't know how to spell it, but it was a prettier name than Sing Sing." She told about Katinka, who at the age of 14 was knouted for making a face at a policeman; of Rosie, who organized the cigarette makers' strike; of Able, who cuts out overcoats all day and composes inflammatory poetry all night; of old Gallagher, who was caught behind a tree box in Phoenix park; of Ludwig, the Hoboken bartender, who sleeps on a mattress filled with material for bombs.

The parlor anarchist told about a dear consociated soul who lived with her husband in a tenement in Elizabeth street. She hated the thought of en playing a fellow woman as cook, so she lived on delicatessen and gloried in indignation. She no longer wore diamonds—she collected orchids.

The visitor learned that this season's crop of parlor anarchists was unusually abundant. Some time ago, she explained, but after a talk with Luther Burbank it was inferred that by grafting the taste for Tolstoid and cigarettes on the ordinary or garden sociologist you got a parlor anarchist. They thrive best in an atmosphere of warm fraternal sentiment and after the first year steadily produce a large crop of philanthropic enterprises.

Judy Immigration.

The regular meeting of the Daughters of Liberty chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dwight Woodbridge of Huntington.

ter's Park. The study for the afternoon was "Immigration," with Mrs. R. E. Denfeld as leader. Later in the evening a talk on the juvenile court of Duluth was given by Miss Moody. Much interest is felt by many people of the city in the need of a detention home for the young offenders. The present conditions are most undesirable. As the court is held but once a week any of the children who are brought from the range during the week to appear before the court must be cared for and under the present conditions almost the only possible place to send them is the jail. For those who are thinking and working and laboring for the good of the children, it is almost impossible to so dispose of them even for a day or two. The members of the chapter were deeply interested in the work of the local court presided over by Judge Ensign.

Reception for Rabbi.

The members of the Ladies' Aid society of Temple Emanuel entertained last evening at a reception in the vestry rooms of the church on East Second street, in honor of the new pastor, Rabbi Lefkowitz. The rooms were decorated with palms and flowers and receiving with the guest of honor were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Levy. Several of the members assisted about the rooms. At the punch bowl, Miss Lefkowitz, president, assisted by Misses Hattie Levy, Hortense Bondy and Marian Levine. During the evening an informal program was presented, vocal numbers being given by Emily Ellis Woodward and Otto Metzger, and piano solo by Miss Elizabeth Morton. A reading by Hattie Levy was enjoyed. During the evening a large number of guests called and among them were several of the pastors of the city who called to greet the new minister.

Winter in Southwest.

Many Minnesota people are passing the winter in the Southwest. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Washburn, who cannot get to San Antonio and the last winter from them are most encouraging. Mr. Washburn, who is a young man of the health, is improving and greatly enjoying the trip. Claude Washburn, a young man, is on a trip abroad, is with his parents at San Antonio.

What Retail Markets Offer

Strawberries, 65 cents a quart. Cocoanuts, 10 cents each. Apples, 20 cents a peck. Parsnips, 30 cents a peck. Beets, 30 cents a peck. Beef, 12 1/2 cents a pound. Shoulder of lamb, 15 cents a pound. Some nice, red, fat strawberries that look for all the world like real strawberries on the market. They are not, but they are not so much like a strawberry that a real strawberry is grown like real ones, they are put up in real boxes and cost real money.

Some time ago, she explained, but after a talk with Luther Burbank it was inferred that by grafting the taste for Tolstoid and cigarettes on the ordinary or garden sociologist you got a parlor anarchist. They thrive best in an atmosphere of warm fraternal sentiment and after the first year steadily produce a large crop of philanthropic enterprises.

Nourishing Food for a Business Girl's Diet

BY MARGARET MIXTER

People talk about the "new" woman, who adopts a business career and is "emancipated," but dear me! The newest woman has still the same old instinct that makes her wish to be pretty and attractive. The fact that she is working shoulder to shoulder with men in offices does not quench the eternal feminine. Indeed, I am not sure that such conditions do not stimulate and excite her rightly she wishes to look her best.

To achieve this, she must have pretty complexion, bright eyes and nice hair. To secure them there are absolutely essential two things, proper food and exercise, and I think I would add another, which is fresh air.

Now I am perfectly well aware that exercise is, for the average business woman, impossible. I am equally certain that it should not be so; that she should take ten minutes in the morning, and, if possible, ten at night, to develop herself physically. But isn't she always in a hurry in the morning and in the evening? If she takes a Spartan to go through physical exercises under these conditions, therefore she is probably going without exercise and stands in much less chance of being pretty, so it is all the more important that she should pay attention to her food, and select the right kind.

Nothing is done to help the organs to work off or digest food, and so she must not put any more on them than can be helped. That she frequently does is the explanation of pimples, "large pores" and blackheads and requests for cures with which my mail is daily filled. Don't get pimples and large pores, or if you have them already, change your diet. Make it what it should be, palatable, nourishing and not highly indigestible.

That you may know something of what this means, I am going to give a list today of food that will best suit a girl in office or shop. No one must think that by following this diet for a week, or even a month, she will become a beauty, but after a time she will find her complexion softens and cleared, the eyes have become bright and the hair prettier, as both are largely affected by the general physical condition.

It should be understood that brain workers and those whose duties prevent their having exercise should take not only simple, but easily digested food. Meats best for them are beef, mutton and poultry. Pork should never be eaten and veal seldom. Mutton requires to be well cooked, but beef should be well done. None of these things should be fried. It is not too much to say that a girl who takes little exercise should never eat anything fried.

Eggs cooked in any way, except fried, oysters, all fresh green vegetables, and all green salads taken preferably with mayonnaise dressing, if the oil is good. Better eat a cold salad than a hot one, but on the other hand, oil is so excellent in every way, that it should be eaten more than by girls. Above all, eat fruit. Let it take the place of sugar, sweets, etc. For bread, brown, graham or corn is better than white flour bread.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Piper of Minneapolis and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lowry of Minneapolis and George C. Howe were at San Antonio, at Silver City, N. M., Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Barrows of Sharpsville, Pa., formerly of this city and well known here, are among the winter guests. Richard Fairbairn of Duluth is also a visitor at Silver City. C. A. d'Autremont and daughter are on a several weeks' trip to Southern California and the Southwest.

Prayer Service.

The prayer service of the City Missionary union will be held tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock, at St. Paul's Episcopal church instead of today as announced. The meeting will be an all day service, the hours being in charge of the societies of the different denominations as follows: 13 to 12, Presbyterians; 11 to 12, Episcopalians; 12 to 1, Congregational; 1 to 2, Christian; 2 to 3, Methodist; and 3 to 4, Baptist.

Fashion Notes.

There are several little points that distinguish the blouse of 1907 from its predecessor. The fullness is held in very closely at the waist line, there being little, if any, crop. This crop, which is usually of course, if the front is not sewed into a band, but is adjusted at will by tapes fastened across the back as far as the under-arm seams. Another feature is quite elaborate trimmings on the sleeves, as well as on the front and back. Hand embroidery and insertion, medallions of lace and lace edging, are seen in the sleeves, giving a new and very modish effect to the whole blouse. Sheer handkerchief linen is the leading favorite, though, of course, fine Persian lawns and other transparent cotton materials are still used. The linen, however, gives much greater satisfaction as far as endurance is concerned.

English and Irish lace seem to be taking the place of valenciennes, which so long has held undisputed sway. Yoke effects are seen on almost all the French blouses. As for sleeves, they are still three-quarters, or elbow length even to the very plain models. The sleeve makers may continue to rejoice, and the girl with the scrawny or red arm to moan, or else turn her thoughts to developing exercise and whitening lotions.

Strawberries, 65 cents a quart. Cocoanuts, 10 cents each. Apples, 20 cents a peck. Parsnips, 30 cents a peck. Beets, 30 cents a peck. Beef, 12 1/2 cents a pound. Shoulder of lamb, 15 cents a pound. LADY ISABEL'S BAZAAR

By Mrs. Neish.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.) "I am awfully busy," said Lady Isabel, looking apologetically up from a large pile of correspondence, "but I'll be ready to talk in half a minute."

"All right," I said, as I took up a book, "I'll wait; don't hurry, I'm unemployed." She presently pushed her papers away. "There, now I'm ready," I've really been working fearfully hard."

"What are you doing?" I asked, "making more money, Isabel?" "My dear girl, how dreadfully sordid you always are."

"I am sure it is," I replied, "but will you have to take the whole of the things?" "To tell the truth, I was somewhat agitated at such reckless generosity."

"Buy them for the sake of the cause," I said, "I shall have to drive round and see managers, and arrange to get things freighted or unpacked. It is no nothing. By the way, dear, I think I'll go now—and will you come?"

"I suppose you will only go to your own tradesmen," I said, as we turned out from the door.

"My tradespeople! My dear child, I shouldn't dream of asking them; they would only take it out of me by adding something on to my books. No; I'm going to Mrs. Barrington-Brown's tradespeople, because, you see, I took her to them, and the least they can do is to give me some things."

"What sort of things?" "Oh, boxes, and satin cases, and cushions, and chocolates, and fancy soaps, and—well, it depends, of course, upon what they sell and where we go," she added, as she looked at the list in her hand.

It was 2 o'clock when we eventually reached the Berkeley, where we stopped and had some luncheon. Then I left Isabel to her errands while I went to be shampooed, and she was in the highest spirits when I met her again.

"Well, I said, 'and have you got your bazaar articles very cheap?'" "My dear," she said, "I can't tell you how nice they've been at the shops. They were just a teeny bit reserved at first—some of them, but Mrs. B.'s name is a sort of open sesame, you know, she added, sighing, 'even if it's only through cold or groceries, and fully worth the name of Brown's heads, money takes you everywhere nowadays, not only into shops, but into the hearts of the people.'"

"I suppose they will all go to Mrs. Brown's account?" she answered thoughtfully. "The duchess's bazaar was a great success," she said.

"My brother's chauffeur had some difficulty in finding the hall, as it was up at Camden Town—and Lady Isabel had told me Camden Hill, but I eventually arrived there, and found Babs and Lady Isabel presiding, somewhat to my surprise, over a limited fruit and flower stall."

"I tried, Isabel? I asked with sympathy. "Not a bit," she answered pleasantly. "In never tried—I can't bear warm things, and I'm not so good at it. It is thoughtless of them," I murmured gently. "Don't be silly, Marjorie; tell me how you like my stall."

"I thought you were going to represent the stores."

"Yes, I was," she admitted, "but Mr. Malcolmstein insisted on supplying me with a fruit and flower stall. Perhaps he has something to do with that lovely fruit and flower shop, Abrahams', between you and me, I don't know. There; or at any rate he must have got them cheap, because he said, with that funny look of his, that they would cost him anything; but perhaps he didn't mean to say that. Look here, my dear, do you want any of these things? They are 2 shillings each, but you can have them for 6 pence each. I'll give you a box, if you like."

"I think I'll take them for nothing. By the way, Isabel," she said, as I came once more round to the fruit and flower stall, "I thought you said Mrs. Barrington-Brown gave you checks for your other stall."

"Se they did," she answered, looking frankly at my puzzled face. "Then what did you do with them if Mr. Malcolmstein filled your stall?"

"Do with what?" "The checks, of course."

"My dear girl," answered Lady Isabel, as she bent to disentangle a fern from a small but very charming basket of smart questions you do ask. Whatever does one do with checks?"

Net Frocks Over Satin and Silk Ball Dresses

ATTRACTIVE BALL GOWNS.

Net frocks that may be worn over bath or silk ball dresses that are freshening, are particularly serviceable just now when the winter gayeries or black, are effective worn over material of the same or of contrasting color, and when this sheer material that are soiled and have been much used look like new, and save the expense of an entire new robe that could be utilized, at best, but for a few weeks more.

The simplicity with which these slips are made also adds to their beauty and makes it possible to drape them in graceful lines over a dress that has trimming on both skirt and waist. Naturally they look best used with a Prince or Empire style of gown, fashioned as they are in the semi-fitting model.

The $250,000 is the valuation the board of appraisers appointed last summer put on the property. The water company, however, refuses to consider this a fair valuation and yesterday's action indicates that it is determined to fight the case to the bitter end.

Mr. Willard declared that the water company was mortgaged to the Loan & Trust company of New York to the sum of $300,000. A demand may shortly be made by Eau Claire on the Loan & Trust company. There are also indications that the city may ask that a receiver be appointed for the water company on the strength of the fact that it is mortgaged for more than its value.

Eau Claire in December issued bonds sufficient to buy the plant at the value fixed by the appraisers.

SUSTAINS THE LOWER COURT

City Loses Lake Avenue Viaduct Case Against Northern Pacific.

St. Paul, Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The judgment of the district court at Duluth in the case of the city of Duluth, appellant, vs. the Northern Pacific Railway, respondent, was affirmed today by the state supreme court.

According to the findings, the trial court was justified in finding that the "filled" portions of the street, made in the construction of the viaduct over respondent's railway constituted a mess of mud and the street grade was no part of the viaduct or its approach and that respondent was not required to keep the same in repair.

This is another step in the long fought Lake Avenue viaduct case between the city and the Northern Pacific regarding the keeping in repair of bridges and viaducts over railroads in the city.

The district court found that the railway had to keep the bridge portion in repair, but that the approaches were not included in its responsibilities. This ruling was sustained by the supreme court.

BOATS ARE TRANSFERRED.

Bills of Sale for Three Yachts Filed at Customs Office.

John P. Thompson has filed a bill of sale with the collector of customs at the federal building for the transfer of his small steamer, the Fred B. Hall, to W. T. Johns for the consideration of $550. The boat is four-and-a-half feet long and has a gross tonnage of fourteen tons. Mr. Johns will take her to Isle Royale to use her in the fishing business.

A bill of sale was also filed for the transfer of one-eighth interest in the schooner, Arcene, from Andrew W. Comstock to Lily J. Comstock for a consideration of $150. The Arcene is 175 feet long. A half interest in the steamer Oscar T. Flint has also been transferred from Andrew W. Comstock to Lily J. Comstock, the consideration being $15,000. The steamer is 215 feet long and has a gross tonnage of 325 tons.

SAUCE FOR THE GANDER. New Yorker. The modern wife is beginning to stomach the modern husband. A man came home at 3 a. m. He took off his shoes on the front doorstep. Then he unlocked the door and went cautiously upstairs on tiptoe, holding his breath. But light was streaming through the keyhole of the bedroom door. With a sigh he passed. Then he opened the door and entered. His wife stood by the bureau, fully dressed. "I didn't expect you'd be sitting up for me, my dear," he said. "I haven't been," she said. "I just came in myself."

Turbine Engines a Success.

While there is little now that is experimental in the use of turbine machinery on large merchant vessels, such engines have not heretofore been used on large battleships, but the recent trials on the British ship Dreadnaught, have proved them a great success, allowing her to obtain a remarkable speed. Did you know that on account of the wonderful merit of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters it has been able to successfully cure ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys and that during the past 35 years it has obtained an unbroken record of sure cures? To prove this statement to your own satisfaction, we urge every sick man and woman to try a bottle without delay. We guarantee it to be absolutely pure. It will cure liver and kidney troubles, biliousness, constipation, headache, dyspepsia, indigestion, grippe or malaria.

WALKER ON THE METAL

Boston Writer Speaks of Bearish Tone of the Market.

Deals With Action of the Calumet & Hecla Company.

(Furnished by Gay & Sturgis.)

George L. Walker, in his copper letter this week, says of the metal market: "Copper continues steady and prices are unchanged. Lake is selling at 2 1/2 cents and electrolytic at 2 3/4 cents per pound. Producers are experiencing difficulty in filling the contracts they made three or four months ago, as production has failed to equal earlier expectations. Bearish reports and rumors concerning the condition of the iron and steel market, which have been circulating recently, seem to have reduced somewhat the inquiry for copper for distant future deliveries.

It is known that the condition of the money market has caused the abandonment of plans for new construction and equipment by a few railroad companies and also that the scarcity of labor has checked industrial expansion somewhat in other directions. According to the best information obtainable, however, the demand for steel and iron, as well as copper, still exceeds the supply. There is much doubt of cash copper available that it seems impossible that any surplus supplies could accumulate between now and the end of the year even should a general business boom develop. These in a position to pass competent judgment have expressed the belief that the average price of copper will not drop below 20 cents within the next three or four months.

Of the copper share market, he says: "Boston copperers have shown a disposition to break away from the depressing influence of the New York market and keep their upward course. The announcement that the Calumet & Hecla company had ordered $5,000,000 of Allouez stock transferred to its name was the final evidence needed to confirm the statements made long ago that the largest of the Lake Superior companies was becoming heavily interested in the stocks of companies owning neighboring mines.

Reduced to its final analysis the action of Calumet & Hecla means that the officials of that company, with their rise in prominence in the Lake Superior field, have become satisfied that Lake Superior shares were worth more than the public was willing to pay for them and thereupon proceeded to buy these stocks and make them assets of their company. It seems to me that this constitutes the strongest argument that possibly could be advanced that good copper stocks are still cheap, not only on the basis of their current earnings, but intrinsically as well.

If Calumet & Hecla officials feel warranted in buying for their company such stocks as Allouez, Contonville and Osoyoa, and putting money into prospects for the future, why should they not do so in buying and exporting tons of thousands of acres of mineral lands having as yet no demonstrated value? The Osoyoa interests are satisfied that the value of the lands is increasing in keeping a large corps of mining engineers in the field examining prospects, and they are not likely to be deterred by the fact that the public is not likely to be interested in the stocks of copper mining companies and copper prospects."

HIS RED HOT WORK. The chapters of Josiah Flynn's autobiography which are appearing in Success have an added interest since the death of that rather remarkable young man. In the current number he gives an account of his experiences as a compasser on a transatlantic steamer.

"My watches," he says, "were four hours long. They began at 8 o'clock in the morning and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, the rest of the time was mine, excepting when it was my turn to carry water and help clean up the mess room.

"The first descent into the fire room of an ocean liner is unforgettable. Although hell as a domicile has long since been given up by me as a mere theological contrivance useful to keep people guessing, going down that series of ladders into the bowels of the oil Etna the heat seemed to jump ten degrees a ladder and made me think that I might have been mistaken.

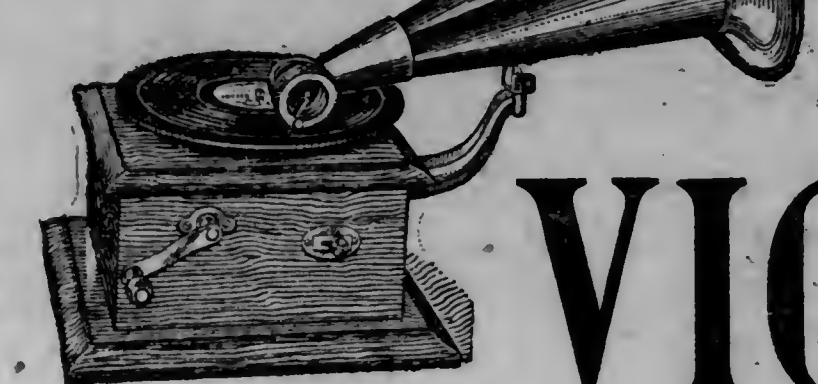

"At last the final ladder was reached and we were at the bottom—the bottom of everything, was the thought in more minds than one that afternoon. The head fireman of our watch immediately called my attention to a poker, easily an inch and a half thick and twenty to thirty feet long.

"Yours!" he screamed, "Yours!" and he threw open one of the ash doors of a furnace, pantomiming what I was to do with the poker.

"I drove for it madly, just barely raised it from the floor and got it started into the ashes—and then dropped none too neatly on top of it.

"Hurry up, you son of a pig," the fireman yelled, and I struggled again with the terrible poker, finally managing to rake out the ashes."

A Few Passengers Seen Clinging to Wreck of Berlin.

Afterpart of the Steamer is Imbedded in the Sand.

Hook of Holland, Holland, Feb. 21.—The afterpart of the wrecked steamer Berlin did not slip into deep water, as at first reported, but seems to be firmly imbedded in the sand. There are still a few persons on board, clinging to the wreckage, and it is hoped it may be possible to effect their rescue at low tide. During high water, at the height of the storm, the waves shut off all view of the wreck, which led to the belief that no trace of the Berlin had been left. The receding tide, however, revealed the remains of her stern with a handful of survivors.

The only person who has thus far succeeded in reaching the shore is Capt. Parkerson of Belfast, Ireland. He is now in a high fever as a result of his experience.

London, Feb. 21.—The result was that the Great Eastern Railway company this afternoon was able to issue a list of forty-eight passengers, including nineteen members of the German Opera company, who had just finished their engagement at Covent garden, and who had booked berth in advance on the Berlin. It is pointed out, however, that some of these may not have sailed.

With the exception of the members of the German Opera company, there were only four women and two children among the passengers, the other travelers being chiefly business men, many of them natives of Holland, returning home after visiting England. Among the latter are several diamond merchants who doubtless carried valuable parcels of diamonds, and besides the purse had in his safe, packed with diamonds valued at several thousand pounds sterling.

TIP SYSTEM IN GERMANY. The tip nuisance in private houses is described by Jean Huret in a Paris newspaper. He says that the hold-up system for the benefit of house servants and chamberlains is shameful.

It isn't the expense he cares about nor even the annoyance of having to search your pockets every time you make your exit from a house, nor yet the mortification you feel if you forget the tip; what overwhelms him with surprise is the consciousness of the practice. How would a gentleman feel, he asks, to be his guests distributing small change to his servants?

Huret relates what he says is a typical instance of the abuse. It took place under the eyes in Hartford. A resident of that city and his wife took a lady who had been lunching at their house to her home in Hartford. As she alighted she fumbled in her handbag until she found her purse.

Then she extracted a quarter and handed it up to the coachman with a polite gesture. The man touched his hat, Huret wished to sink into the earth, but the host and hostess seemed to take it as a matter of course. The couple drove on with him to his hotel.

His objection to the custom of making presents in houses where one stops several days or weeks to the servants specially infuriated with one's comfort. In France, too, it is not unusual to send New Year's gifts to servants in houses where one is a frequent visitor.

But in Germany the hand of the servant is held out at every form of private entertainment, and the gratuities are virtually solicited and given right under the eyes of the hosts. The only parallel he knows to it is in some country places in the North of France, where he has seen guests slip pieces of money into their plates at the close of a dinner party to be found by the servants who waited on them.

INSPECTOR OF WATCHES. Kansas City Star: Next to the train dispatcher, the one man in the railroad service upon whom the safety of life and property most depends is the official watch inspector.

Not many persons know that every railroad entering Kansas City has in its employ an expert whose duty it is to inspect the watches of the employees. One of these looks after 500 watches belonging to railroad men, and keeps them regulated and in good running order. The lives of hundreds of passengers depend upon him doing his work well. He is the official "watch, inspector and timepiece regulator" for three roads.

If a watch is no more than thirty seconds "off" when it is inspected, it is "set" and returned to the owner. If the watch is more than thirty seconds off it is regulated, cleaned or repaired, as the case may demand. The watches are taken to him for inspection once a week. The railroad requires all employees from the depot agents and engineers down to porters to have their watches inspected. When a watch is submitted the name of the owner, the number of the watch and the number of the seconds it is "off," if any, are recorded. These reports are submitted to the railroad officials at regular intervals. Should an employee be blamed for a wreck or accident, and pay the blame to his watch, these records will show the exact condition of his watch and how it has been keeping time.

Some of the watches inspected are remarkably accurate. A watch owned by J. H. Cadden, an engineer on the Union Pacific, with a run between Kansas City and Junction City, Kan., sometimes does not vary a second in six weeks. The watch with the best next record is owned by Thomas D. Pickett, another Union Pacific engineer. Frequently his watch does not vary more than a second in a month.

The railroads are very strict in requiring their employees to have their watches inspected. The Union Pacific has a system of demerit marks for the employees who neglect the watch inspection. The Chicago Great Western railroad suspends employees who persist in neglecting the watch inspection. The Rock Island railroad has no system of demerits, but its employees who neglect this matter are reprimanded, and if they persist in neglecting the inspection they are discharged.

PUT ON MORE THAN SADDLE. Cassell's Journal: A cookery teacher was giving a lesson to a class of children and questioning them on the joints of mutton. The neck, shoulder, leg and loin had been mentioned.

"Now," said the teacher, "there is another joint no one has mentioned. Come, Mary, I know your father was a groom; what does he often put on a horse?" "A dollar each way, miss," was the unexpected answer.

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

American Markets Have a Lower Tone at the Close.

Flax Active and Stronger in the Local Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Feb. 21.—Wheat closed with weaker tendencies in the American markets today. The declines were not heavy and in Duluth and Winnipeg, the July option showed an advance. Receipts continued good in the Northwest and cables were lower, which induced selling here. The foreign demand which has been a big factor in the Duluth market this week was not so great today, although a little wheat was worked for export. Liverpool closed 1/2 to 3/4 lower, Berlin 1/2 higher, Budapest 1/2 higher and Paris 1/2 lower.

Broomhead estimates the Argentine shipments this week at 4,000,000 bushels. The May option closed 1/2 lower in Duluth, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis and Winnipeg, 1/2 higher in New York and 1/2 lower in Kansas City. The July option closed 1/2 higher in Duluth, 1/2 higher in Chicago, a shade lower in Minneapolis and St. Louis, 1/2 lower in New York and Kansas City and 1/2 higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed 1/2 higher in Chicago and was 1/2 higher in Liverpool. May oats closed 1/2 lower in Chicago.

Cash receipts at Duluth were 50, against 12, a gain of 38 over yesterday, making a total of 1,000 bushels. Northwest of 27, against 12 last year, Chicago received 7.

May wheat opened 1/2 higher at 80c, declined to 79c, and closed at 79c, a loss of 1c from 80c. July wheat opened 1/2 higher at 80c, advanced to 81c, and closed at 81c, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Minneapolis, Feb. 21.—The general flour market was quiet and prices were steady. The market was quiet and prices were steady.

Wheat Opens Strong on Good Demand by Mill Traders.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Wheat market opened strong today on a good demand by mill traders and commission houses. Prices were a shade easier in the first few minutes of trading because of lower cables, but after a few sales became firm on reports of colder weather in the Northwest and probable increase in the movement. May wheat opened unchanged at 79c and closed at 79c. Local receipts were 30 cars against 30 cars last week and a total of 1,000 cars.

The market was unsettled and irregular, fluctuating on slight provocation. The heavy tonnage of wheat was due to the close of the season and the advance in price with rather flat closing owing to evening up in anticipation of the holiday. Cold weather was the cause of much of the uncertainty regarding growing crops, the liberal yield in which foreign buyers are coming after our wheat, fed like advice purchasing wheat on any soft spots.

Corn—Western dispatches indicate that another ten days will bring the country to the busy farm season and that wheat will then fall below the present volume. In view of the concentrated holdings which the speculative situation is a strong one.

Oats—Everything is on the side of the buyer. Provisions—Fairly good local support exists and these buyers inclined to liquidate on an easier market at the close.

Two Harbors, Minn., Feb. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—After some little delay at Duluth, the special train, carrying the legislative iron ore tax committee and brother members of the legislature, to the number of twenty-two, started on its three-days' tour of the ranges at 8:30 this morning.

Two special sleepers attached to the morning Northern Pacific train from St. Paul brought the legislative delegation to Duluth, and were transferred to the special on the Duluth & Iron Range, composed principally of private cars. RAILWAY TRAIN WRECKS YACHT

Crashes Into Craft That is Being Moved Across Tracks.

Beulah, Minn., Feb. 22.—A collision between a steamboat and a passenger train on the Ann Arbor road occurred near here, which did minor damage to the boat, but completely wrecked the boat and narrowly missed killing several men and horses.

The wreck occurred at the big curve just north of this place at a point called Bay Point. The boat was a "Jump," belonging to Skipper Mark Crane of Frankfort. The craft was being "towed" by a tug on big bob sleighs. At Bay Point the road crosses the railroad tracks, and is so situated that an approaching train is hidden from view until within a few yards.

Horses, sleighs, boat and men had just reached the tracks at the crossing when the headlight of passenger train No. 5 suddenly shot through the darkness.

Engineer J. C. Walter's first thought was that he had met another train. It looked spectral. With a bound he shot in the air and reversed the throttle. "Jump!" he cried as the trainman, B. Mills, both men landed in deep snow banks unharmed.

The pilot crashed into the stranded boat stern. There was a ripping of seasoned lumber and a crashing of iron. Along the wrecked craft was dragged 100 feet.

The men in charge of the boat shook with fright at the close shave. In the confusion, passengers were jostled and rushed from the car doors, some of a catastrophe had occurred. One woman was in the sled and was thrown to the floor. The passengers had their heads bumped and injured.

After an hour's work the debris was cleared, and the train resumed the interrupted schedule.

SCANDAL AT DES MOINES.

Mrs. Harvey Lozier Arrested at the Instance of Her Husband.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 22.—Mrs. Harvey Lozier, wife of a prominent florist here, was arrested at midnight with Louis Schermerhorn, a society man and secretary of the Des Moines Treasury company, on a charge preferred by Mr. Lozier. The arrest has caused a sensation. Mrs. Lozier at 1 o'clock this morning took apartments in the Chamberlain hotel and refused to be seen. Her husband cannot be found. Schermerhorn is regarded as one of the most dashing young society men of the capital. Mrs. Lozier was formerly Miss Neil Jackson of Knoxville, Iowa.

UNIVERSITY DAY

Observed at Madison by Speech by Secretary Leslie Shaw.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 22.—The second observance of university day was held at the University of Wisconsin today. A convocation of the faculty and students at the gymnasium was addressed by Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw, who spoke on "Some Achievements in Self-Government in the United States Since the Civil War." The speaker said there has been marked progress toward the centralized government and that the tendency toward autocracy is not over. He headed for substituting the merchant marine. Tonight a banquet with 1,000 covers will be served, and Secretary Shaw is expected to be one of the speakers.

THE RECORD IS BROKEN

Already 506 Bills Have Been Introduced in the House.

Anti-Pass Bill Will be Favorably Reported by Committee.

(From a Staff Correspondent)

St. Paul, Feb. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house broke the record yesterday when it closed the week with 506 bills to its credit. At the close of business on the same day two years ago the number was 280 and that figure was considered fairly large.

The average number of bills to date has been about 20 for each legislative day so that if the ratio continues until April 1, when the bill for the session will be introduced, the number of bills will be about 500.

The house and its rush action on the Thayer 2-cent fare passenger bill and the Czech prison farm machinery bill, with the senate concurring in the latter, was easily the topic of conversation about the corridors and retiring rooms yesterday and today. It was the real gossip.

THEATRICAL TRUST

Secures Permission to Inspect Minutes of the Grand Jury.

New York, Feb. 22.—Permission for the attorneys for the so-called theatrical trust to inspect the minutes of the grand jury which recently returned an indictment against Klaw & Erlanger, Al Hayman, Charles Frohman, and Nixon & Zimmerman for conspiracy in restraint of trade, was granted by Judge Crane in the federal court yesterday. The motion for permission to inspect the minutes was made with particular reference to the case of Klaw & Erlanger, the only ones indicted who have been served with papers. Counsel for the defendants have announced an intention to move for a dismissal of the indictments, after inspection of the minutes on the ground that they were found on illegal evidence.

IN EXCELLENT HEALTH.

Thaw Reads Newspaper Reports of Trial With Interest.

New York, Feb. 22.—Thaw was in his usual health today, and in his cell in the Tombs read the newspaper reports of his trial with lively interest. He declared that he was feeling fine and expected his wife to call before noon. Mrs. Evelyn Thaw had not reached the prison at that hour. The commissioner of correction gave permission for any of Thaw's family to visit in the Tombs today, although visitors are excluded on holidays.

INDEX OF GAMBLERS.

A Unique Directory is Prepared by Police of Europe.

Vienna, Feb. 22.—The Vienna police, with the assistance of the police of other most important capitals, have prepared a "Gambler's Index" containing the names of the greatest professional gamblers and card sharps of Europe. This index is in the form of a small lithographed book and it has now been sent to the authorities of all of the large cities and health resorts of Europe.

It contains more than 1,000 names, among which are a number of high-sounding titles such as prince, marquis and count. Most of these titles are, of course, self-assumed, but some are genuine.

To each name a personal description and some biographical details are attached, and a reference to the particular methods and tricks employed such as railway card sharps; billiards, playing dark; false cards; card sharpening with accomplices, etc.

TERRORISTS ARE ACTIVE

Kill Postmaster, Two Clerks and Two Soldiers.

Also Secure Much Money From Warsaw Postoffice.

Warsaw, Russian Poland, Feb. 22.—The postoffice in Vashola street was attacked at noon today by a band of terrorists, who shot and killed the postmaster, two postal clerks, and two soldiers guarding the office and wounded a score of bystanders. The terrorists robbed the safe of the cash and stamps and escaped in cabs. The robbers belong to the organization known as the fighting socialists, and displayed a red flag while making their escape. The authorities admit the robbers got away with several thousand rubles. This was the first important raid in two months, and shows that the terrorists were not suppressed, as the authorities alleged. The incident has caused intense excitement in Warsaw, and arouses fears of a recurrence of the sanguinary events of the early winter.

NICARAGUANS VICTORIOUS

Army Takes the Towns of Eltruinfo and San Bernardo.

Managua, Feb. 22.—The Nicaraguan forces on Feb. 20 captured without opposition, the town of Eltruinfo, in Honduras, and yesterday after six hours' hard fighting the Nicaraguan army occupied San Bernardo, an excellent position, owing to the fact that it is in communication by land and water with the Nicaraguan base of operations, Managua. Honduras were killed and wounded and the retreating army left the scene of battle in confusion. The Nicaraguan side were a few men wounded.

CONSCIENCE DRIVES

Man Long a Military Fugitive to Surrender Himself.

St. Louis, Feb. 22.—Peter Gulf, an iron molder, has surrendered himself to the army officers at Jefferson barracks, and confessed that twenty-nine years ago he deserted from the Fifteenth infantry, stationed in Wyoming. Gulf said that he had lived in St. Louis ever since and gave himself up because he was tired of being a fugitive. He was informed that his confession would be punishable under the law, but he was not deterred. He expects to return to Chicago tomorrow and after a run around the city will return to Milwaukee. The engine of the car is said, so far, to be running very smoothly.

TEN PERSONS RESCUED FROM DEADLY PERIL ON WRECK OF THE BERLIN

Had Been Menaced by Terrific Waves for Many Hours.

Great Difficulty Experienced in Reaching the Steamship.

Superhuman Efforts Were Made by Life Savers and Others.

(From a Staff Correspondent)

The big passenger steamer Berlin was wrecked in almost the dead end of the Matana, and several of her crew drowned and frozen to death in the great storm of November 1905, at the mouth of the river Maas, when the mountainous waves brouched her to and before she could recover herself, she struck the pier. She was broken in two and went on to adjacent sand bars, her forward part rolling off and sinking in deep water, while the afterpart became imbedded in the sand, where it still remains, and on which there were seen several survivors. After thirty-six hours of almost superhuman effort the Dutch life-savers succeeded in reaching the ship and rescuing the ten persons who had survived the terrible ordeal.

A Saskatchewan Homesteader, Wife and Three Children Found Dead.

Estevan, Sask., Feb. 22.—David Trapper has arrived here with the startling information that a farmer named Radcliffe and his wife and three children have frozen to death.

Radcliffe was a homesteader, who came here for coal about a fortnight ago. A neighbor named McAlpine called on the Radcliffes in the husband's absence and found his wife and children frozen to death and no fuel or food in the house. Further search also found Radcliffe and his wife frozen stiff on the ice in a neighboring creek, with his sleigh loaded with coal and provisions. It is thought he lost his way in a storm and perished.

Radcliffe arrived from England last May and homesteaded in June. Sergeant Left of the mounted police confirms the report by who adding that the bodies were brought into Macoun.

RELEASE ORDERED

U. S. Court Takes Hand in One of Wilfley Cases.

Directs That S. R. Price be Admitted to Bail.

San Francisco, Feb. 22.—The United States circuit court of appeals has issued a writ of habeas corpus in the case of S. R. Price, in prison at Shanghai. Price was convicted, on Jan. 15, by Judge Wilfley of the United States court for China at Shanghai, of assault with a deadly weapon and sentenced to six months in jail. An appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals was granted, but Judge Wilfley refused to send to the court of appeals a transcript of the papers in the case. Price's counsel in China put the matter into the hands of local attorneys. Yesterday the circuit court of appeals issued an order that the Shanghai court admit Price to bail on the proper securities being furnished, the bail being fixed at $4,000. The clerk of the court was ordered to forward a transcript of the papers in the case.

CARUSO ASKS MORE PAY

Italian Tenor Tells Con-reid He Wants $3,000
a Performance.

New York, Feb. 22.—The competition of two opera houses in New York to secure the services of singers was certain to result advantageously to the artists and the first to take advantage of this situation is Signor Caruso. He has just notified Mr. Conried that he will not renew his contract unless there is a very decided increase in the pay. Signor Caruso's present arrangement with the management of the Cornet Metropolitan Opera company has one more year to run. Mr. Hammerstein told a reporter that he had been approached by a representative of the Italian tenor's services might be available for the Manhattan after next season. Mr. Conried's engagement of a noted Italian tenor in Signor Anselmi is not without its significance.

Signor Caruso made his proposal to Mr. Conried last week. He now asks $4,500 a performance.

Signor Caruso told Mr. Conried that he must receive at least $3,000 for every performance and that he must have at least fifty appearances guaranteed to him in the season. He now sings at least sixty times, as he is able to appear three times a week and occasionally sings as often as four. He has been compelled to rest for a period this winter, however, and the condition of his vocal cords has made him reluctant to sing in such operas as "Huguenots," which require delicate singing. He is gradually inclining more and more to the robust roles.

The tenor told Mr. Conried that he could afford to pay the sum asked as he has never before he sang and that it was not important who appeared with him. Mr. Conried has not yet given an answer to this ultimatum and Signor Caruso's agents have intimated to Mr. Hammerstein that he may be able to get the tenor.

The highest price ever paid to Jean de Reszke was on his last two visits. Then he received $2,500 each for thirty appearances. Signor Caruso never received more than $1,000 and never exercised any drawing power with the New York public. Signor Caruso is much younger than either of these emperors was in the heyday of their popularity. He appears in New York and goes then to Ostend, where he sings in Alcazar. In September he sings in Italy and spent last October in Germany.

BREAKS LEG OF WOMAN WHO REFUSES TO WED.

Oakland, Feb. 22.—Because she refused to marry him after an acquaintance of two days, Capt. Charles O'Neil, a retired master mariner, attacked Mrs. Catherine Norbie, ending by kicking her as she lay prostrate at his feet and breaking her leg. Her screams aroused the other occupants of the house at 54 Washington street. O'Neil was overpowered and arrested.

Mrs. Norbie, a widow, said that she was engaged to the first time two days ago. The shipmaster came to her home and, after a short conversation, asked her to become his wife. Thus woman refused to consider such a proposal on so short an acquaintance, when O'Neil, the woman asserted, struck her a heavy blow in the face. He followed up his attack by beating her until she fell to the floor, when he repeatedly kicked her, one of the blows from his heavy shoe breaking her leg. Mrs. Norbie was taken to the Receiving hospital.

HER TOURS IN EUROPE

Described by Mrs. Thaw Under Jerome's Cross-Examination.

Justice Fitzgerald Finally Decides to Adjourn Until Monday.

New York, Feb. 22.—Just before the adjournment of court in the Thaw trial yesterday, Justice Fitzgerald reconsidered his decision of holding court Friday and Saturday and adjournment was made until next week.

When Mrs. Thaw resumed the stand after recess yesterday she told of going to various lunches and suppers at the Twenty-fourth street house and to the Madison square tower room. She often went alone in a carriage trusting to White's promise that there would be others present. She did not go often to the Twenty-fourth street house, White having largely abandoned that place because he told her, actresses who had been there had told about it "all over town."

"Were there improprieties at these lunches and suppers?"

"I don't remember anything very bad. There were some stories told."

"Looking back a little, now, do you remember any improprieties?"

"It seems pleasant."

"Was there conduct worse than Miss Winchester's cake walk in the 'Dead Rat'?"

"I never saw Miss Winchester do a cake walk in the 'Dead Rat'. You are mistaken about that."

"Was it in the Cafe Paris?"

"Yes—she was a professional dancer."

"Was the dance indecent?"

"I wouldn't make such a broad statement as to that. I don't think it would have been above the stage."

"Was Stanford White present at all the parties you attended in 1902 and 1903?"

"Not all of them."

"Mrs. Thaw told of going to a supper as the guest of Frances Belmont."

"She was an actress?" asked Mr. Jerome.

"Well, she was on the stage," replied Mrs. Thaw. "She was in 'Florodora'."

"Mrs. Thaw said that on her 18th birthday, Dec. 25, 1902, Mr. White was to give a supper for her at the Tower room. White went to the Madison square theater, where she was playing the night before, but she quarreled with him and he went away. Later he returned but she had not yet decided to go with him. He went away again and later Thaw came to the stage door for her."

"He was in the Cafe Paris?"

"No. I think it was a carriage."

"Are you sure?"

"No, but I think so."

"Was there any one else in the carriage?"

"Yes, one man and one woman."

"A man named Belmont, doorkeeper at the theater, who testified early in the trial, said that White returned to the theater later and was alone. A revolver threatened to kill Thaw, and also stated that Thaw arrived in an electric automobile and was alone."

"Was there a man named Kennedy standing outside the stage door that night with another man?" asked Mr. Jerome.

"I never heard of any Kennedy."

"Hadden Thaw told you he had employed two detectives because of White?"

"No."

"You went to Rector's from the theater that night?"

"Yes."

"And left there about 4 a. m.?"

"I don't know what time it was."

"Did there seem much wine drunk?"

"Yes."

"At that time it was your custom to drink considerable wine with your meals?"

"Yes. At that time in 1902."

"Did Thaw seem to drink a good deal?"

"Yes."

"Was he easily affected by wine?"

"Not particularly."

"After leaving Rector's, didn't you go to a house in West Twenty-seventh street?"

"No."

"When you came out of the Twenty-seventh street house, didn't you see Kennedy and the other man standing outside?"

"I've already told you we didn't go to any Twenty-seventh street house, so how could I see anybody coming out?"

"Well, were you in such a condition that your memory was clouded?"

"No."

"Were you intoxicated?"

"No."

"Did you have to be assisted out of Rector's?"

"No sir."

"Warned did you go after leaving Rector's?"

"To an apartment house somewhere in the Sixties."

"Where in the Sixties?"

"Somewhere off Central park west."

"Where were you living then?"

"At the Audubon."

"Were you then receiving money from Stanford White?"

"Not then."

"Didn't White give you a letter of credit for use on that trip to Europe and wasn't some of that left?"

"My mother got that."

"Whose apartment was it that you went to?"

"Mr. Thaw's."

"Did you remain all night?"

"Yes."

"When did you return home?"

"Next day."

"Did you have any quarrel with White about that?"

"No."

"When did you move to the Grand hotel?"

"I think it was a few days later."

"What name did you register?"

"I did not register."

"Where you alone?"

"My maid was there. Mr. Thaw was in the same hotel."

"Where were your rooms?"

"On the second floor."

"Where were Thaw's rooms?"

"On the same floor."

"Did they connect with yours?"

"Yes."

"During the time you were living at the Grand hotel did you ever spend a night at the York hotel?"

"Yes."

"Alone?"

"Yes."

"You had a considerable amount of jewelry at that time?"

"Yes."

"You took it with you?"

"Yes."

"Did some one take you to that hotel?"

"No."

"Did you go to dinner and the theater with him?"

"What do you mean by him?" she asked.

"The person who took you to the hotel," replied Mr. Jerome.

"The person who took me there was a female."

"Who?"

"Who?"

"Who?"

"Who?"

"Who?"

COTTON EXPORTS

$500,000,000

Amounted to More Than Quarter of Total Domestic Exports.

Washington, Feb. 22.—America's pocket-book was enriched by practically $500,000,000 through its exportations last year of cotton and the products of that staple, according to a statement of the department of commerce and labor. The exports of these products amounted to one-fourth, or 25 per cent of the $1,733,000,000 worth of the domestic exports.

The following figures show the kind of cotton products exported last year and their value:

Unmanufactured cotton, $13,137,586; manufactures of cotton, $4,910,041; cottonseed oil, $13,982,931; cottonseed oil cake and meal, $1,155,285; cottonseed, $26,022; cotton-tolene, lardene, etc., chiefly from cottonseed oil, $4,884,785. Bringing the total exports of these products up to $48,040,611.

Of the $13,000,000 worth of raw cotton exports, $12,000,000 went to the United Kingdom, $10,000,000 to Germany, $4,000,000 to France, $3,000,000 to Italy, nearly $7,000,000 to Belgium, $5,000,000 to Russia and $1,000,000 to the Netherlands, while to Japan the exports were valued at over $11,000,000 and to Canada $7,333,000. The figures show a reduction in the exports of cotton sent to Japan compared with 1906, while to Canada they show a slight increase.

In quantity the records show a falling off as compared with 1906, the total number of pounds shipped during that year being 4,132,154,485, while for 1906 they were only 3,850,223,090. The falling off in quantity, however, was more than offset by the increase in price of cotton exports, the increase in value in 1906 exceeding the previous year by $21,000,000. Of the cotton manufactures exported, the bulk of it went to Europe. The value of cotton clothes exported last year was $2,500,000, of which a little over $200,000 went to Europe, $16,500,000 to China, $5,000,000 to other Asiatic countries and about $3,000,000 worth went to the West Indian islands, exclusive of Porto Rico, $1,500,000 to Central America and more than $500,000 worth to Canada.

and was productive of all kinds of talk and conjecture. Bob Wells of Breckinridge, who is the house floor leader and the real head of the movement which brought about present consideration of the 2-cent fare, gave his side of the story and said that he was because the committee was tired of the stories that were being set about these stories were to the effect that some of the members of the house were pledged to a 2-cent fare bill, said Mr. Wells, and that one would have to be reported out, so we simply got busy. As far as the house is concerned I think the people have got what they demanded. The bill as it stands now is a compromise based on the Wisconsin law was talked of, but we could not tolerate it. It had to be a 2-cent maximum straight and that was what we insisted on giving out.

As far as the house committee is concerned all the trouble makers, with the exception of an anti-mass measure, are now out of its hand. Demurrage, 2-cent fare and anti-mass have either been dropped or are now before the house, and all that remains is the correction of the pass evil. If statements count for anything, this bill too will be reported out to pass at an early date.

The house committee on training school gave up its time yesterday afternoon to members of the Women's Federated clubs and heard from them their views on the bills proposing a new girls' industrial school. According to their views the new institution should be located at some other point than Red Wing where the girls are now confined, and this does not mean the approval of the residents of Red Wing. The arguments advanced by Mrs. Dorr, the chairman of the movement, and Mrs. Oberhall, one of the officers of the state club, was that complete separation of the sexes was necessary. They contended that the present environment was not conducive to good conduct and the future of the girls confined in the institution at Red Wing. Mayor Pierce of Red Wing characterized the movement as mawkish sentiment and held that there was no valid reason for the removal of the institution from Red Wing. He talked for the Putnam bill, which proposes a new girls' school to be located in Red Wing three miles from the present institution and to be governed along the same lines as proposed in the bill backed by the Federated clubs.

Red Wing is up in arms over the attempt to take the girls' school away from it. Mayor Pierce colored the sentiments of a delegation from that city when he said: "This is becoming tiresome. Every session we are asked to come to St. Paul and light a movement like this. There is nothing but mere sentiment to the entire movement. It is not entirely from charitable motives. There are certain persons who have designs and they are the prime leaders in the movement. I think the bill will be killed at any rate we have assurances to that effect."

The house committee on express, telegraph and telephone companies gave a public hearing on the Thursday bill which proposes the placing of telephone companies of the state under the control of the railway and warehouse commission. It compels competing lines to exchange business too. The proposition involved was vigorously combated by J. G. P. Walnwright representing the Northwestern Telephone company. He said that state supervision was impracticable, and as to forced connection with rival lines it would practically be a confiscation of private property. Their lines would be burdened with the business of other companies from which they would not derive any benefit. Representatives of a number of other city companies spoke against the bill.

The St. Louis, Ramsey and Hennepin delegations met and discussed several unimportant measures among them the Hamilton bill limiting the extension of cemeteries located within the corporate limits of a city and the Roderberg bill allowing county boards to employ road and bridge crews seven instead of four months. The first named bill was amended so as to leave the matter of expansion in the hands of the council. A three-fourths vote, however, is necessary before such expansion can be made. The Roderberg bill was approved.

COLD DELAYS TRAINS.

Railway Companies Have Situation in Dakotas Will in Hand.

The operation of the railroads has been seriously interfered with by the cold spell of the last three days, but it is not thought that there will be any suffering in the Dakotas as a result of it. The companies have the situation so well in hand out there that there will be no more famine. The demand for coal is still heavy, but it is being supplied by the roads rapidly.

Many of the trains have been delayed to some extent during the cold spell, and on this account the loads are being made lighter for the present. But as there is an absence of heavy snow, the railway officials are confident that there will be no more blocking of the trains.

Since Monday the order giving coal preference over all other merchandise has been lifted, and the freight which had accumulated in the warehouses is being rushed West with all dispatch possible. The officials claim that if the warm weather had lasted for another week, all back orders would have been filled and the roads would have been able to handle all business offered.

MANY CASES REPORTED

A Home Prescription for Rheumatism Which Anyone Can Prepare.

Makes the Kidneys Take the Poisons From the Blood.

Thousands of men and women who have felt the sting and torture of this dread disease, which is no respecter of age, persons, sex or rank, will be interested to know that while for many years rheumatism was considered an incurable disease, now it is one of the easiest afflictions of the human body to conquer. Medical science has proven it not a distinct disease in itself, but a symptom of a general condition of the system, and that by inactive kidneys, rheumatism is uric acid in the blood and other waste products of the system which should be filtered and strained out in the form of urine. The function of the kidneys is to sift these poisons and acids out and keep the blood clean and pure. The kidneys, however, are of sponge-like substance, the holes or pores of which will sometimes, either from overwork, cold or exposure become clogged and inactive, and failing in their function of eliminating these poisons from the blood, they remain in the veins, decompose and settling about the joints and muscles, cause the untold suffering and pain of rheumatism and backache, often producing complications of bladder and urinary disease, weakness, etc.

The following simple prescription is said to relieve the worst cases of rheumatism because of its direct action upon the blood and kidneys, relieving, too, the most severe forms of bladder and urinary troubles: Fluid Extract of Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. The ingredients can be had from any good prescription pharmacy, and being entirely vegetable, are absolutely harmless and safe to use at any time.

TEN PERSONS RESCUED

as the heavy seas would have dashed her to pieces. The lifeboat, however, port that they heard an occasional shout for help, but they ultimately were forced by the rising tide and increasing dangers to temporarily abandon their efforts to rescue the survivors.

Capt. Parkinson of the Holt Steamship line, who was on his way to Amsterdam on board the Berlin to join his vessel, left Duluth on the morning of Feb. 21. The Berlin is the sole survivor of the disaster who thus far has reached the shore. He said this morning that the Berlin was in the fact that the Berlin had reached the shore, and that she was entering the waterway, and that before she was able to recover herself she was dashed upon the pier-head, immediately "crushed up like a can of tomatoes," and that the wreckage of the Berlin, and heartrending scenes are witnessed at the improvised mortuary where thirty of the bodies which already have been washed ashore are laid. Most of these are battered beyond recognition and some are without heads and others without arms or legs.

Veteran pilots and seamen who watched the Berlin being driven to her doom say the gale was the fiercest in many years. One of the eye witnesses described the scene as follows: "As the vessel approached, it was noticed that she was being carried out of her course by the wind and waves, and the tremendous driving power of the waves. The trained eyes of the officials on the jetty who were awaiting the steamer's arrival, and seeing the vessel in imminent peril and a flare from the Berlin, showed that the inevitable had been realized by those on board. Before the flare died out the crash came. It could be heard above the din of the storm. Waves the height of the waves were sweeping the northern parts of the pier which is little more than a breakwater, from end to end, and the tremendous seas which washed over the Berlin from how to stern quickly battered her to pieces. For a short time the helpless vessel lay at the mercy of the wind and waves. Huge rollers struck her and carried off her deck gear and swept some of the passengers into the churning waters. Suddenly a great rent zapped amidships and the boat's bow and stern parted, hurled nearly all on board into the sea."

SCHOOL TEACHER

And Coffee Drinking.

Many good people are loth to give up coffee, even though they admit that it is doing them harm, because they fear that nothing else in the way of a hot beverage will satisfy them. A school teacher says: "I always enjoyed coffee for breakfast. The day seemed lost without it. But in time I began to experience bad results from its use. I grew very prostrated by a complete nervous breakdown. Then I was compelled to abandon the use of coffee. I adopted Postum Food Coffee, and my health is restored and I am able to take an interest in life once more."

"My whole family, children and all, drink Postum Food Coffee, and we all thrive and keep healthy on it. It is to us a delightful drink, delicious and temperate, and with none of the harmful effects that usually followed the use of coffee. The choicest brands of Java and Mocha, offered free, would not tempt us to quit the use of Postum Food Coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There is a reason," says the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in p. 163.

yesterday about an hour after the ill-fated Berlin was wrecked. The Clifton stood by the remnants of the Berlin all day long and made strenuous efforts to rescue the survivors. An officer of the Clifton today gave a graphic account of the scene, as follows: "On our arrival at the Hook of Holland we found the Berlin broadside on the north pier and we at once set to work in an endeavor to succor the stranded steamer. A tremendous sea was running. The sea waves were forty feet high, for the tide was flood and a fierce gale was blowing bang on shore. We got in close to the rocks, but nearly went on them ourselves and had to put about in order to escape the fate of the Berlin. It was impossible for us to get out a life boat, as it would have been smashed to pieces in the raging waters. We could see people in groups on board the Berlin, some on deck and some in the smoke room, on the forepart of the vessel. As we approached in an attempt to rescue them the persons on board raised a cheer. Apparently the best of discipline prevailed on board. All the passengers and crew were swept out her deck in batches and drowned within a few yards of safety. We could hear their shouts for help but could do nothing to assist them. We saw scores of people struggling in the water, many clinging for help to the floating wreckage, but in their benumbed state they were unable long to resist the tremendous force of the waves and dropped off one by one."

In the course of the morning the Great Eastern Railway company received a dispatch from the superintendent at the Hook of Holland as follows: "Have been out in the vicinity of the wreck with a tug and life boat all night long and have just returned. Was unable to rescue the people still on board the Berlin. The captain of the life boat reports that there are still three or four alive. Will try again when the water falls."

Hook of Holland, Holland, Feb. 22.—Prince Henry of the Netherlands, the prince consort, arrived here this morning and twice went out in a steam pilot boat as near the wreck as it was possible to approach. Subsequently the prince visited the building which is being used as a morgue and passed down the line of white draped figures, stopping with bowed head for a few moments before the body of a fair-haired child. The life-boat put out again at noon.

Berlin, Feb. 22.—The wreck of the British steamer Berlin off the Hook of Holland, yesterday, caused a sensation in Berlin, as the Rotterdam-Harwich route is the one usually followed by Germans in traveling to and from England. There have been hundreds of inquiries at the offices of the line here. Several members of the German Opera company, who were among those drowned, resided in Berlin.

IRON TAX COMMITTEE

Miller, ex-Maj. H. V. Eva, secretary of the Commercial club; County Auditor Odlin Halden and Dwight E. Woodcock, Ex-J. A. Van der Meer, superintendent of schools at Coleraine, is a guest on the train. The remaining members of the party are as follows: Representatives J. J. Opsahl, O. Christensen, R. H. Jefferson, N. J. Holmberg, John Snaar, C. M. Benson, Louis Kauter, Senators F. R. Fall, P. B. Phillips, Clerk Alex Anderson; A. E. Johnson, chief clerk of the house; Charles Smith, Steller, C. C. Steller, stenographer, and newspaper representatives of Duluth and Twin Cities. The itinerary of the trip is still incomplete. The length of the stops at range towns will depend largely upon the pleasure of the members and the time it takes to secure the desired information. Ely will be the first stop, so far as the obtaining of information and conference, and the last will probably be at Coleraine. The return to Duluth is liable to be any time between Sunday morning and Monday afternoon.

The committee on ore taxation has granted a hearing for Duluth on Monday, at the Commercial club. Probably the meeting will be held in the evening. Duluth will then have an opportunity to present her side of the case in the ore tax matter. The Commercial club is hoping for a large attendance. Men well loaded with facts in defense of St. Louis county's attitude will be on hand to make arguments before the committee.

The legislators appear to be in excellent spirits at the prospect of the range tour. This is the first trip to the ranges for many of them.

S. A. PALDOCK.

THAT CHRISTMAS TREE ONCE MORE

No Possible Way in Settling the Controversy is Open.

Whether "it" was a man or a Christmas tree or a bunch of holly leaves, the controversy in Duluth, the morning paper is still unconvinced that the objects seen on the ice last Wednesday afternoon were only a bench and a Christmas tree.

Mr. Richardson of the weather bureau has been unwillingly drawn into the controversy. He stated this morning that he had no desire to blame any person or cast any reflections on the efforts of the police, the diver and life-savers, as he has done all in his power. He maintains, however, that he saw the man, and immediately left the telephone call up some people near the ice. He did not watch the man until 9 o'clock, and admits that when the life-savers went to investigate, the man had been gone.

There is probably no method of settling the controversy, and "affidavits" without number might be obtained on both sides. The only way to decide the matter would be for some lone fisherman to find a bottle with a last despairing message from the drowning man, or to locate the Christmas tree and get an affidavit from it.

DIED FROM INJURIES. Austitz, Minn., Feb. 22.—Louis Rex Clay, in whose behalf a verdict of $5,000 damages was rendered by the St. Paul & Northern Pacific railroad a few weeks ago for injuries received while acting as brakeman, is dead here as a result of his accident. He was less than 19 years old. On Dec. 7, 1905, while working as a brakeman, he was broken in an accident at Lytle.

DEADLOCK MAY OCCUR

Democratic Aldermen Cannot Agree on Candidate for Sealer.

President Tessman Will be Re-Elected for Another Year.

Who will be the next sealer of weights and measures in the city of Duluth? This is the question which is troubling the city council, and more especially the Democratic portion of the body, which, with its ten to six majority could easily control things if an agreement could be reached.

At the caucus held last Monday evening no agreement on this point could be reached, and informal meetings since have brought no more harmonious agreement among the members. The actions of Aldermen Mork and Meuller are said to be out for the re-election of Noble Sampson, present holder of the office, and the choice of the six Republicans in the council. This, if the question goes to a vote in its present condition, will result in a deadlock $ to a tie between Sampson and the Democratic candidate, and unless some more harmonious agreement is reached at the caucus which will be held Monday evening after the council meeting, a tie vote may be the result.

President Tessman is slated for re-election to the chair and W. B. Getchell will preside in the present absence. This also being a re-election, Thomas Burke will be harbor master again, and H. W. Cheate, clerk.

William McEwen was prominently mentioned for the presidency, but it was decided that he was more of a floor leader and it was considered advisable to keep him in his present position, especially as President Tessman had proved such an efficient presiding officer.

DATE IS AT LAST FIXED

Northerns Will Go to Copper Country March 4 and 5.

Will Play Two Games With Houghton Amateur Teams.

The dates for the invasion of the Copper country by the Northern Hardware hockey team have been fixed and the seven will leave for Houghton a week from Sunday for two games to be played there on Monday and Tuesday, March 4 and 5.

The players have been anxiously awaiting news from the Houghton boys who on leaving here after their game said that they would arrange a return game and also one other contest with some of the Copper country teams. At that time it was expected that the Calumet amateurs would be the second aggressors, but the game was received today that the Houghton high school team would be the organization which the locals would stack up against, and on Monday they will play the high school, meeting the team Tuesday. Should the Northerns win tomorrow night from the Victorians these games will practically be for the amateur championship of the Northwest, as the Houghton amateurs have shown themselves the fastest of the amateur teams in the Copper country.

The Houghton high school and amateur teams are practically the same organization, all but two of the amateurs being high school men and playing on the school team. The goal and rover of the amateurs are the exceptions. This practically makes a series of three games to be played between the two teams of which the Northerns have one already to their credit.

Whether or not any big games are on at that time is not known, but it is thought that a professional contest will be on at Calumet if not at Houghton, and a goodly crowd of rooters is expected to attend the games attracted by the professional contests in addition to the Northerns' game.

SEIZURE OF LOGS

Made by Special Land Agent Layman Southwest of Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. W. Layman, of Duluth, special agent for the general land office, yesterday made a seizure of a quantity of logs, on the Mississippi river, about twelve miles southwest of Bemidji. The logs had been cut from a stand of Norway and white pine on a fraudulent homestead in section 23-14-25, near Booting lake. The logs had been piled on the river and on the bank. Mr. Layman seized the logs and put the government mark on them. It is said that at least one arrest will follow in connection with the seizure of the logs.

STYLES FOR THE SPRING

Men's Clothing for Coming Year Will be Quieter.

Extremes in Every Form to be Strictly Avoided.

The balmy weather which prevailed for a few glorious days a week ago, awoke Duluth tailors to the fact that even in this climate spring, real, balmy spring, not the kind that comes on March 1, but the genuine, tired-feeling sort of spring, was looming dangerously near on the horizon, and spring styles for men have been looked up and studied diligently until if you strike a tailoring shop around this town nowadays the proprietor is loaded for you. They are not at all agreed on the fine points of the question but there are a number of essential features that most of them say may be incorporated in the clothes of the man who aspires to be up to date, and as usual the little changes are just big enough to make a last summer's suit, that you don't feel you can afford to cast off, look just a little bit of color when lined in the latest creations of the tailor's art.

A round of the principal shops in Duluth resulted in the general impression that no striking changes are to be introduced, and fashions for men for the coming year will be one more sensible than they have been for some time past. Extremes in everything are to be tabooed, even to the radicals in dress, and the quiet, more subdued lot of men's furnishings which will be turned out by the fashionable men's furnishing stores this spring than for some time past.

This season the correct coat is long, but still a trifle shorter than that of last. It has a slight "dip" in front, or in other words, is a bit longer forer than aft. There are four pockets with flaps, two on the side, the breast pocket and the ticket or match pocket. The flaps are essential. It was incorrect last year to have the ticket pocket on the outside. It was proper to have it concealed. But it was so unhandy that the fashion makers warmed their hearts enough to put it this year where it can be used.

Another striking feature of the coat this spring is the absence of shoulder padding. The old "blocky" style, the kind that made a puny desk man look like a prize fighter or boxer, is entirely changed. In its place will be seen a graceful, rounded roll, in no way suggestive of the "blocky" coat. The coat will barely follow the curve of the body.

A number of novelties are shown in waistcoats. The oddest is the one with no back. This novel piece of suiting fits snugly over the shoulders, with a mere neck band behind. A sort of belt fastens it at the waist. The only excuse for this waistcoat is that it is cooler than the other kind. The waistcoats will be worn in light colors. None of them, however, borders on the gaudy. Trousers will be only slightly peg-topped. The "topped" trousers, the kind that made a puny desk man look like a prize fighter or boxer, is entirely changed. In its place will be seen a graceful, rounded roll, in no way suggestive of the "blocky" coat. The coat will barely follow the curve of the body.

Indications are that gray will again be the prevailing color, a tailor said. "The grays come in such pretty shades last year that fashion makers have decreed they shall reign another season. Medium shades of brown, club checks and the irrefragable blue will be popular. Clothing in general will be more conservative. Even the vests or 'spliffs' in the back of coats are forbidden. I really believe the clothing is more sensible than any shown in several years."

There is little change in the style of men's hats, the medium sized with slightly curved brim. The telescope or flat-topped soft hats will be generally worn. Neckties are of "soft" colors, in no way gaudy. Small checked plaids will be popular. Shirts will show a small dot or delicate stripe. "The spring overcoat shows absolutely no changes from last year," one tailor said, "excepting the lack of shoulder padding. The colors and shapes are the same. Spring overcoats are nice to wear, but it is surprising to find that they are perfectly proper for good dressers, but as a rule, a man will save the money he might put in a spring overcoat for his summer suit. A fellow had much rather fall into a nice new suit, good for all summer than don a spring overcoat."

LOCKED IN BATH ROOM

Chicago Man Spends Unpleasant Two Hours in Hotel.

Other Guests Thought Noise Was Made by Carpenter.

Because his efforts to get out were taken by several persons to be the noise of a carpenter at work, a Chicago clothing man who arrived in Duluth last night, came very nearly spending Washington's birthday in the bathroom of one of the city hotels. As it was, he spent two long hours hammering the walls and doors and, finally, he found that the bolt refused to work. He worked away at it for half an hour, but the piece of iron seemed obstinate and the clothing man groaned as he was at the situation, decided that he would try a different tactic for assistance. He began pounding the door with his fists, and then the walls, keeping up a vigorous tattoo for over an hour, with no results. The guest in the room next door, who was a hotel manager, thought that the noise was made by a carpenter and demanded if anybody was killed or hurt.

The clothing man explained the situation, punctuated with emphatic opinions of hotel locks in general. "Say, mister," the porter responded, "you just try a little against that door when you throw the bolt and see what happens." The frate guest did as he was bade and the door, with scarcely any effort on his part, flew open.

Then the comedy of the situation struck the clothing man and he showed that his sense of humor had not been dulled by his imprisonment. Gazing at the lock and the door for a minute he remarked: "That's one on me. For heaven's sake don't let anybody."

WATERPOWER IN THE MISSISSIPPI

To be Developed and Electric Power Furnished to Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Boltram Electric Light & Power company has let a contract for the machinery which will be used in connection with the plant that will be installed for developing the water power in the Mississippi river, eight miles east of Bemidji, section 8-14-22, with which power can be utilized that will operate many manufacturing plants in Bemidji for years to come. The machinery will consist of a large water wheel and all the necessary wires and other paraphernalia that go with a large power plant.

It is the intention of the promoters of the power company to install a complete plant at the site of the dam, one that will be large enough to properly care for any manufacturing establishments that may be located in this city. The power is estimated to be 25,000-horse power, and can be utilized for any purpose. It is the purpose to transmit the power to the city by means of a high-tension line, which will be eight miles in length, and right-of-way, 100 feet wide, has already been secured from the sight of the plant to the city limits.

The work of building the dam will be commenced just as soon as the plans are completed and the necessary material can be gotten on the ground. It will probably take a year to complete the work ready for use of the power.

MURDER CHARGED

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 22.—As a sequel to the supposed accidental killing of Chalmers Vestal at his residence at Baxter, Putnam county, on Sunday, W. S. Bryant, Vestal's bookkeeper, was arrested here while on board a train in the coming Stone mills at Steinsville burned early today. The loss is $80,000.

While wailed and whined wheezed, while wintry winds whined wearily. While wailed while whined wheezed wearily. Wisdom whispers, winter winds work wheezes. Wherefore we write, "The Kennedy's Latest Cough Syrup." Nothing else so good. All druggists.

Weather Man Says Warmer Weather Will Soon Prevail.

The cold spell has about been broken and the temperature today has been steadily rising since 7 o'clock this morning. By tomorrow the weather will be 3 degrees below and steadily rising until several degrees above this afternoon.

Out in the Dakotas the cold spell is over and above zero temperatures were reported from most of the stations this morning. Tomorrow will be much warmer although cold weather may be expected. It is not likely that there will be any snow.

London, Feb. 22.—The house of commons today by 263 to 34 votes adopted the second reading of the bill legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister. PROVISIONAL Government Has Been Established by the Honduran Revolutionists.

Managua, Feb. 22.—Gen. Miguel R. Davila has arrived at Danli, Honduras (not far from the Nicaraguan frontier), from the interior of Honduras. A provisional government has been established across the frontier in Honduras, by Maximiliano Rosales, Miguel Quel and Ignacio Castro, prominent Honduran revolutionists, who are serving with the Nicaraguan forces. The secretaries of this provisional government are Constantino Fillos and Col. Guadalupe Reyes. The general in chief of the Honduran revolutionary expedition is Dionisio Gutierrez and Gen. Miguel R. Davila in second command. It is asserted that there is no truth in the report that the Nicaraguan army has met with reverses.

ONE HUNDRED DEAD BODIES

Have Been Taken From the Las Esperanzas, Mex., Mine.

Eagle Pass, Tex., Feb. 22.—A dispatch from Las Esperanzas, Mex., says that 100 dead bodies have been taken from the coal mine of the Mexican Coal & Coke company, in which an explosion of gas occurred four days ago. There are known to be twenty-three men still entombed in the shaft and it is practically certain that all are dead. Nearly one-half of the dead miners are Japanese. In nearly every instance identification is impossible and women and children crowd about everybody that is brought up. Eight vehicles are engaged in the work of carrying the remains to the cemetery and their progress is entirely blocked at times by the press of women who furiously demand for their opportunity to prosecute their hopeless task of attempting to identify the dead. The ten doctors on duty here have been working without intermission.

ENDS REFUSE GATHERING.

New Pure Food Acts Stops Busy Scavengers for Commerce.

Chicago Post: When the pure food law went into effect on Jan. 1 it directly affected the livelihood of thousands of persons in the United States, most of them dwellers in the large cities, who gained a subsistence by gathering various substances used by a certain class of manufacturers in the making of adulterated products.

Few of the consumers have any adequate idea of the extent of the industry which has been stopped by the new national law. Most people have given passing glances at some ragged boy or girl going through the alleys with a basket, but usually no thought has been given to the real significance of the proceeding.

A south side woman, recently encountering a sickly appearing girl coming out of an alley with a covered basket, asked the child what she was doing.

"Getting leavings for our chickens at home," was the quick reply. Afterward, in talking of the incident at the bureau of charities, the woman learned that "getting leavings for our chickens" is the common excuse under which scores of children have been sent out in Chicago to play scavenger—not for the chickens, but for commerce itself.

The pure food law, strict and sweeping in its provisions against injurious and unwholesome adulterants, will make it largely impossible for this atrocious traffic, and equally impossible for children to be debased to the degree where they are compelled to take part in it.

One of the commonest of adulterants used in cheap powders and medicines is said to have been ground bones. Bones were obtained in large quantities, and although they brought a small price, they were in steady demand.

Another article which had a good market was leather. Old shoes may not be palatable as a matter of diet, but ground up into minute bits and mixed with pepper or other spices they made a profitable article of commerce. The alley scavengers were able to gather a large number of shoes in a day. The best of them, of course, were not used for food purposes, but were kept for repair and disposal to old shoe shops. It was only the most dilapidated specimens of cast-off footwear that went into the hopper of the get-rich-quick foodman.

Cocoanut shells, too, were used extensively for imitation spices, and, while not as plentiful as old leather, were rather in large quantities. In the summer time a big business was done in overripe fruits. The gatherers haunted South Water street and the streets in the vicinity, and quickly gathered anything and everything cast out. Dealers often found it easier to give up of their waste in this way than to have it carted away. Perhaps they gave no thought to the use made of the unfit fruits and vegetables, but at any event, the poorer consumers paid the penalty.

The same thing was true in regard to tainted fowl and fish. All these found a ready sale, and the gathering of them kept scores of families in food and shelter.

PAYS BIG JUDGMENT

Prominent Chicago Financier Has to Settle for Typewriter Stock.

Duluth Attorney Figures Prominently as Instrument of Justice.

When Douglas Smith of Liquezone fame, a Chicago man who has figured quite prominently in the current magazines of recent date, paid over to Mrs. Oliver of that city, yesterday, a judgment of $14,775, there came to light a very interesting story in which a well-known Duluth attorney figured prominently, and which bears out the old adage that facts are sometimes stranger than fiction.

Oliver, the man who invented the typewriter which bears his name, was a nihilist. Douglas Smith was supposed to be an intimate friend of both Oliver and his wife, Mrs. Mary A. Oliver, at the time the invention was placed on the market.

Mr. Smith afterwards bought out and became the president and controlling factor of the Liquezone company, which special writers have been vigorously attacking of late.

Some time after Mr. Oliver placed his typewriter on the market, it is claimed that his conduct with one of his employees caused Mrs. Oliver to start an investigation that finally resulted in her securing a divorce.

With her divorce she secured practically all the stock in the typewriter concern, which had not then grown to its present immense business proportions.

It is claimed that shortly after her divorce had been granted, Douglas Smith approached Mrs. Oliver, and, presuming on their friendship in the past, he secured her confidence and made the proposition that he would take all her typewriter company stock and look after it in her interest.

Smith was said to have been confined to her bed with sickness. Worried in the past over her husband's conduct, she believed the information claimed to have been given her by Smith that if she did not turn it over to him she would lose all of it.

Having full confidence in Smith, Mrs. Oliver is said to have turned over all her typewriter stock to him.

In the course of a few years the stock became valuable as the company became known to the public. Mrs. Oliver went to Smith and asked for her share of the stock. He refused to deliver it.

In the spring of 1905 A. E. McManus, an attorney of this city, was called in by Mrs. Oliver. He learned that her husband was a lawyer, introduced him to his mother. This woman happened to be Mrs. Oliver. In the course of their talk Mrs. Oliver told her story and the case. Mrs. Oliver retained his legal services and Mr. McManus became associated in the case with Frederick Brown, a prominent Chicago attorney.

Messrs. McManus and Brown visited Douglas Smith in his offices in Chicago and demanded that he restore to Mrs. Oliver her share of the stock, but he merely laughed at the attorneys, it is said.

They next instituted suit against Smith in the circuit court in Chicago and won judgment against him for the higher court sustained the decision of the lower court and, yesterday, Smith satisfied the judgment, which check for $14,775 being turned over to Mrs. Oliver.

Absolute Divorce. For Mrs. Courtland Smith From the Well Known Horseman.

Washington, Feb. 22.—In spite of every effort to preserve secrecy in the matter, it has leaked out that a decree has been entered by Judge C. E. Nicol in the circuit court for Alexandria county, granting Mrs. Carlyle Herbert Smith an absolute divorce from Courtland H. Smith, the well known horseman and gentleman jockey.

The decree was entered after a long conference in the judge's private office, in which Judge Nicol, John M. Johnson, representing Mrs. Smith, and J. C. M. Norton of Alexandria, and R. Walton Moore of Fairfax, representing Mr. Smith, participated. The papers in the case, it is said, were carefully sealed and are to remain sealed forever. It is understood Mr. Smith did not contest the suit, and agreed to the judge's settlement upon Mrs. Smith that they were satisfactory to her and her attorney.

The differences between Mr. and Mrs. Smith have been the subject of considerable comment since it became known last fall that she had left their home at Hampton stocks farms in Alexandria county, and had taken a cottage on Seneca hill.

Mrs. Smith was Miss Carlyle Herbert, a member of a family prominent socially in Baltimore and her marriage to Mr. Smith was an important event in that city several years ago. Mr. Smith is a son of the late Captain H. Smith, at one time mayor of Alexandria, and is the proprietor of Hampton stock farm. Both he and his wife have been familiar figures at all of the big horse shows in the East for several years. It is said that Mrs. Smith will retain the custody of their two children.

Mr. Smith's color is seen at all the Benning meetings, and he has ridden in steeplechases on probably all the Eastern tracks.

REVISION DEMANDED. Wisconsin Legislature Adopts Resolution Calling for Special Session.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 22.—That Wisconsin Republicans are in favor of immediate revision of the tariff was shown yesterday when the senate concurred in the assembly resolution demanding such revision, and memorializing President Roosevelt to call a special session as soon after March 4 as possible for that purpose. The only dissenting voice in the senate was that of Senator E. E. Burns, of Congressman Babcock's district, who said that, while he favored a revision of the tariff, he did not believe it was necessary to call a special session of congress for the purpose. The resolution will now be forwarded to President Roosevelt and congress.

New York, Feb. 22.—Oscar Hammerstein, director of the Manhattan opera-house, says that office boys are useless in the run of business in his line, so he inserted the following advertisement in a newspaper:

"Office Girl.—To replace office boy; must be neat and bright. Apply at Manhattan opera-house."

"Forty clean, bright-looking girls were in line at the Manhattan opera-house before the offices opened this morning. Mr. Hammerstein finally got the applicants together and after many questions selected one for the position. She took up her duties at once."

STEPMOTHER ASKS Custody of Her Husband's Children, When Seeking a Divorce.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—World-old traditions of stepmothers were shattered by Lillian E. Calvert, who declared in a divorce plea that Alfred B. Calvert brought to her home only his trunk and children.

Mrs. Calvert declares that she did not object to what Calvert brought her. Despite the fact that she was their stepmother, she loved the children, and objected to Calvert throwing them to the floor and putting his foot on their heads, she said. Now she asks that she be given an absolute divorce and the custody of the three girls.

The separation was caused, Mrs. Calvert asserts, because of her husband's habit of striking her and the children.

DOCTORS MIXED STOMACHS. The Change Turned a Church Member into a Drunk.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 22.—The novel excuse that it was his brother's stomach that led him to drink was offered by Peter Jordan of Philadelphia in police court here, when he was up on a charge of drunkenness.

"My brother, John, was addicted to drink, while I was a teetotaler and a church member. While we were unconscious in the hospital, and were being operated on, the bottle, or something else, exploded, and the doctors and nurses ran out and left us. Not much damage was done by the explosion, and they came back. "We both got better, and later I found I had contracted the liquor habit, while my brother joined the church."

"I could not understand the change in me. Neither could my friends. I became discouraged and went West. A year ago, while I was in San Francisco, I got a letter from the doctor who performed the operation in the hospital. Here it is. It says: 'In the pause during the explosion at the time of your operation, a nurse has confessed to me she mixed your stomach and your brother's. Jordan's excuse was accepted and when he left the court he said he was going to get his own stomach.'

EXCITING CONTESTS

In Curling Games Played at St. Paul for Merriam Medal.

The Duluth Men Are Making an Excellent Showing.

St. Paul, Feb. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—With ideal weather, perfect ice, a good list of entries and keen competition, there was nothing left to be desired to enliven the play for the Merriam medal, which began at the Capital City and Nushka Curling club's rinks this morning.

Local followers of the game were re-enforced by ten outside rinks. Sixteen rinks were scheduled to take part in the opening rounds. The Kiehlhoffer rink of Minneapolis was unable to get together, and so forfeited to Dunbar of the Capital City. One of the other rinks, Duluth sent down five, Minneapolis had three entered and Mapleton and Winnebago one each. Each of the local clubs were represented by three rinks.

The play followed the regular bon-a-style and will be concluded this evening.

There were exciting contests this morning. Perhaps the most closely contested of all was the game played at the Nushka rink, between Lorimer of the Capital City, and Jones of Duluth. Jones finally won by a score of 9 to 10. All through the contest the score saw-sawed and not until the last stone was shot was the game decided. Labatt of Minneapolis and R. J. McLeod of Duluth met at the Capital City rink, the former winning by 12 to 7. Labatt took the lead in the first few ends and held it to the close.

Hurdon of Duluth defeated John McLeod of Minneapolis, 12 to 8. The latter led at the fourth end, but Hurdon made three in the fifth and was never headed after that.

The most one-sided contest was that played on the Nushka rink, between White of Duluth and Stewart of the Nushkas. This game resulted 14 to 3 in favor of Stewart, who scored in every end but the third, ninth and last. This afternoon at the Capital City, Dunbar of the Capital City club played Hurdon of Duluth, and Stewart of the Nushkas will meet Jones of Duluth.

SENATOR BAILEY CROSS-EXAMINED

Assures Committee That His Enemies Forget His Good Works.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 22.—Senator Bailey was on the stand before the legislative committee on the Texas case this afternoon. The principal testimony outlined was the assurance from Senator Bailey that while his enemies had been busy with their attacks, he had been performing public service for private citizens. He said he had been in his work in his interests without a moment's rest. He said he had been in his work in his interests without a moment's rest. He said he had been in his work in his interests without a moment's rest.

"I have done a great deal of work," he said, "and I have done it in a way that has been to the benefit of the state. I have done it in a way that has been to the benefit of the state. I have done it in a way that has been to the benefit of the state."

he hardly knew what to say, but quickly recovered himself as a bright thought flashed into his mind.

"What do you want them for, auntie?"

"Well, you see, Bill Crippin, ma husband, am a powerful wakin' nighgah, an' he mightn't be with them wenches up round Myrtle avenue way, an' he an' me, we're in a lawfully wed-

Ah objects to dot an' Ah wants to stop it."

"Ah lubes de ole fool—can't help it, but Ah want to make him lub me."

"I sez," said the clerk, "I understand your position exactly, and I will fix you up, but you must not tell a soul about it, auntie."

"You know it's against the law, and we must manage it very carefully, for if it leaks out I'll be sent to jail."

"Auntie," solemnly promised that upon her word and honor the matter would be an entire secret between her and the obliging apothecary.

"Ah's going to make a nice mince pie tomorrow," said the woman, "an' Ah wants to put it in that."

KENTUCKIAN RESENTS QUERY.

Denver Post: An irate Kentuckian, who felt that he and the land of his birth had been insulted, caused consternation around the lobby of the Albany hotel, one evening, and it required the combined efforts of the night clerk and the bookkeeper to assure the gentleman from the blue grass region that no offense was intended.

It was shortly before 9 o'clock in the evening that a tall, determined looking individual walked up to the desk and asked for a room. The stranger was fully six feet two in height, broad shouldered and carried himself as one who is accustomed to having his own way. He wore the loose frock coat and black slouch hat typical of the state from which he came.

"European or American?" said the clerk, after the Kentuckian had written his name and the place of his residence. This was the challenge to battle, and without a moment's hesitation, the big man took up the gauntlet.

"Young man," he said, "I want you to distinctly understand that I am a free American citizen, and it is entirely unnecessary for you to inquire into my nationality, sah. There is nothing European about me, and I beg of you to remember that, sah."

With that he made a grab for the offending clerk to wreak vengeance on the man who dared to intimate that he was anything but an American. The bookkeeper went to the aid of his fellow employe and together they explained to the gentleman from Kentucky that the clerk had intended no insult, but was merely asking whether the guest would take the room on the American or European plan. The Kentuckian seemed to doubt the statements of the two and went to his room muttering something about "unpardonable impudence."

MORE DON'TS FOR GUESTS.

Don't, if you are able to play or sing, make your hostess waste a quarter of an hour pressing you to do so.

Don't, when you are leaving, forget any of your possessions. It is tiresome to have to send such things on by post.

Don't keep retelling how much you enjoyed yourself at the Browns when you were staying there last month.

Don't beg a book and ask if you may take it home to finish. Your hostess may not want to lend it, but it will be difficult for her to refuse if she suggests your taking it, that is quite another matter.

BITTER IN HIS DENUNCIATION

Representative Clark of Florida Attacks Government's Colonial Policy.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The so-called "colonial policy" of the government came in for bitter denunciation today on the floor of the house by Representative Clark of Florida, in connection with his resolution calling upon the secretary of war for a statement of the amount the Philippine Islands have cost the United States. He contended the war with Spain as unnecessary and pronounced the purchase of the Philippines a serious blunder and a most grievous wrong.

"When we purchased these islands and this alien race with them," he said, "the deed was nothing more nor less than the traffic in human beings, and it is no greater wrong for individual to traffic in humanity than it is for nations to make bargains and sales of human beings."

"Within the last few days I have heard of settlement on this floor speak of 'our colonial possessions.' This smacks of empire. It breathes of imperialism. It suggests a royalty. It does not indicate the simplicity of a republican government where every citizen is a sovereign, but it produces visions of kingly rule."

On motion of Mr. Payne of New York, the resolution was laid on the table, yeas 160, nays 162.

The house today resumed consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill in committee of the whole.

REAL JOLT FOR PAPA.

Finds Young Daughter Has Been Married Three Months.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 22.—To say that Charles L. Hoke of Des Moines was astonished when he found that his 16-year-old daughter has been married to Samuel Speck for three months and living in a home of her own not two blocks away, is putting it mildly. The girl had been home as much as usual, and only last Wednesday night did the father find her missing. He started out to locate her and ended up at his daughter's own home around the corner from the parental residence, where the girl was getting supper for "babby."

The irate father has sworn out a warrant accusing his son-in-law of kidnapping the girl, and he will seek to have the wedding set aside.

THE SMALLEST SCHOOL ON EARTH

Has Only Two Scholars—German Government Supports Teacher.

Berlin, Feb. 22.—Almost at the mouth of the Kiel canal in the Baltic sea, is situated the smallest school in the world. It is a government school, and costs far more money than the school board of district receives in school taxes. The government built the schoolhouse and supplies a resident teacher. Yet there are only two scholars and it may be some time before the class roll increases.

This record-breaking school is on an island, Suderoog. There is only one family occupying the island. Martin Paulsen is both fisherman and farmer, and also lord of the isle. He is in comfortable circumstances and has a growing family of youngsters. Three years ago young Martin, his eldest child, became of school age. Paulsen found it impossible to send the boy daily to the mainland. Being advised what to do, he made application to have Suderoog created a school district. He showed his tax receipts, proving that for many years he had paid school taxes for the whole island.

The government replying to the application, said that under the law it was not obliged to supply a school for only one child, and as Martin Paulsen, junior, was the only scholar, Suderoog must wait. In two years Katrina Paulsen became of legal school age, and again the father applied to the government, this time demanding the establishment of a school.

And so last year Germany sent bricks and mortar and lumber and workmen and built a small but regulation national schoolhouse. Then the government teacher, Heinrich Arp, was sent from Kiel. The two scholars were enrolled and the smallest school in the world began its sessions.

Paulsen is 35 years of age, married, and the sole society of the Paulsens and their children is on Suderoog. But the government moved slowly. It has been six months since Teacher Arp asked to be moved. Now he has amended his petition by asking to remain at Suderoog. In the summer there were many excursions to the islet from the mainland and the teacher met a pretty fraulein at one of these parties. The girl was sent to become Mrs. Arp and live on Suderoog. For a married teacher the government supplies quarters, so a dwelling is soon to be erected near the tiny school.

In a few years, if all goes well, the teacher may be teaching his own children and Suderoog school will lose its record of the smallest school in the world.

SENATORIAL COURTESY.

Urbane Colloquy of the Gentlemen From Oregon and Indiana.

Washington, Feb. 22.—An unsuccessful effort was made in the senate a few days ago to fasten upon one senator the distinction of being "a warm member." Vice President Fairbanks was not in the chamber at the time, having relinquished the chair to Senator Gallinger.

Senator Beveridge sought to interrupt Senator Fulton of Oregon. The Oregon senator agreed to yield, but "not for a speech." This angered Mr. Beveridge, and he sharply retorted it.

"The senator needn't get so heated," observed Mr. Fulton.

"It's the senator from Oregon who is heated," replied Mr. Beveridge.

"Oh, no," replied Mr. Fulton, "I am perfectly cool. On the contrary, the heat of the senator from Indiana fills the chamber. It radiates in all directions." Later in the debate Mr. Fulton admitted to the fact that Mr. Beveridge had said that he was a farmer, and that the senator had deserted the farm for politics. "I cannot imagine," said the senator from Indiana going on a far Western farm where no one could hear the sound of his voice, "that I could go somewhere and avoid hearing the sound of the voice of the senator from Oregon. I would go gladly."

"I can't understand how one voice could be heard so far," said Mr. Fulton.

"You hear the senator's voice too often here in the senate," snapped Mr. Beveridge.

RICH NEED MORE CHILDREN

Noted Sociologist Says That the Poor Have Plenty.

Milwaukee, Feb. 22.—Russian babies have to be left at home with nothing of bread left to their hands and feet, so that they may feed themselves. In consequence one-half of these born die within five years, instead of the normal one-sixth. Over population has ever been a curse. We are confronted with its specter here for the first time.

This remark was made by Prof. E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin, a sociologist, in discussing the social condition of the poor.

"President Roosevelt's much talked of condemnation of race suicide was not by any means a plea for the unlimited propagation of human species. The president said the wealthy who have the means of education should be the parents of children but who decline the honor and happiness of parenthood. I haven't heard that the president had any complaint to make of race suicide among the poor, nor have I heard that he told the workmen who are father of half a dozen children that it was his duty to become father to half a dozen more."

Accused of the murder of a mill owner at Plaquemine, Fla., in June, 1905, Robert Engelman of Stratford, Wis., will be held without bail until March 21, by which time the authorities will have time to investigate his statements in denial of the charge. Upon the complaint of Walter Weaver, German consul in Chicago, Engelman was arrested Thursday and taken before United States Commissioner Foote.

President Roosevelt was on Thursday given a splendid cup of honor two feet high, a sample of Silverware. The cup was given to the president by Gen. Count von Helldorf, president of the Slavonic society of Moscow, for his noble work in bringing about peace between Russia and Japan.

A BOY DIES WHILE BEING CHASTISED.

Ravenna, Ohio, Feb. 22.—Robert Finch, 12 years old, dropped dead yesterday, at a district school, near here, while being punished by Miss Nora McManus, his teacher.

The boy had been called to the desk for some alleged disobedience and the teacher had started to chastise him when he collapsed. The boy had been subject to heart trouble, but this was unknown to the teacher.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

BLAINE IN HARD GAME

Defeats Duluth Y. M. C. A. Five 38-22, Burr Starving Throughout.

Juniors Win High School Championship in Sensational Game 21-16.

Too much Burr tells the story of the fast and exciting game played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last evening when the local five went down to defeat before the Blaine "football" basket team 38 to 22. The big center on the Superior team got 16 of the 38 points which his team scored, and was the star of the game from start to finish. In the second half he got 12 points in rapid succession. If Buchanan at forward made 10 points. The visitors appeared to outclass the locals at times. They were quicker on their feet and took advantage of every opportunity to score. They clinched the game in the first half, the score being 15 to 10 at the first call of time.

For Duluth, Deighton made the majority of points, getting 9, and Fenton did some capturing while the Blaine boys worked hard and did some brilliant work at times.

Very little rough play was indulged in, considering the small playing space, and one of the very best plays of the night filled every seat in the gallery.

Superior excelled in field goals, getting 16 to 6 for the Senators. The juniors made one foul and Superior 2. Rough work was rarely indulged in, excepting when 14 fouls called on them to 10 against Duluth.

The line-up:

Duluth:	Position:	Superior:
Fenton	C.	H. Buchanan
Deighton	F.	Nord
Dennis	G.	Burr
Maxwell	Referee:	Clemons, umpire.

In a furious game in which the two extra five minute periods had to be added to the regular time in order to break the deadlock, the juniors defeated the seniors and carried off the high school championship by 21 to 16 last evening at the boys' department gym.

Feldman and the juniors, and Burnett and Clausen for the juniors in the backfield positions, covered themselves with glory and the long continued deadlock was largely the result of the brilliant play of the guards in preventing field goals.

The first half ended with the score 6 to 6 for the Senators. The juniors made one more point than the fourth year men in the second half, bringing the score to 12-10. One five minute period of play resulted in no score for either side, but a seventh minute period, at the time the juniors by some of the most brilliant and heady work of the game made 8 points and carried off the championship. The game was attended by a record-breaking crowd and the galleries were packed.

The teams faced each other as follows:

Seniors:	Right forward	McDonagie
	Left forward	Chalkins
	Center	McFarlane
	Right guard	Burnett
	Left guard	Clausen

AMERICAN SOO WINS AT CALUMET

Clean Fast Game Results in Defeat for Home Team.

Calumet, Feb. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a score of 9 to 4 the American Soo hockey team defeated the Calumet here last evening in a fast exciting game. Calumet played its best game in the first half, holding the visitors to a 4 to 3 score, but went to pieces in the second and the Soos defeated the home team by a score of 9 to 4. The game was a clean cut and pretty a contest as has been seen here for some time.

The Soo defense was perfect and Calumet's attack was a multitude of times. Over the evening for the big Washington's birthday carnival. Costumes have been the most serious topic of discussion among the more socially inclined of the curlers and their friends for the past month, and the event of this evening promises to be one of the most elaborate fancy dress affairs ever held in this city.

The character of the holiday will doubtless bring forth a multitude of costumes, in spite of the London atmosphere.

LEWIS GETS DECISION.

Out Points Twin Sullivan in Ten Round Bout at Denver.

Denver, Feb. 22.—Harry Lewis of Philadelphia received the decision over Mike (Twin) Sullivan of Boston in a 10-round bout in this city last night.

Lewis was stronger and had much the better of the early rounds, but Sullivan came back strong later, not sufficiently however to gain him a draw.

RICHES OF A SEATTLE WOMAN GO TO CHARITY.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 22.—Mrs. Caroline Kline Galloway, one of the wealthiest residents of Seattle, who died on Wednesday, left a will, by the terms of which nearly every dollar of an estate estimated to be worth $1,500,000, goes to charity. This will, which was made nearly two years ago, was read at the funeral yesterday by Mrs. Galloway's legal representative, Mrs. Galloway was noted for her work in behalf of the poor.

The greater part of the estate is to be used in purchasing a site, in or near Seattle, for erecting thereon an institution to be known as the Caroline Kline Galloway Home for Aged and Feeble Persons. The will provides that the first home shall be for those of the Jewish faith, and for those who are members of the denomination known as the Society of Universal Religion. If, after this home be built, sufficient funds remain, a second home of a non-sectarian nature is to be erected.

Benjamin Galloway, the husband, is to receive $200 a month as long as he shall live. This and about $30,000 in personal bequests comprise all of the estate not given to charitable institutions.

Will Wrestle Tonight.

Followers of the wrestling game are anticipating a very exciting contest at the Metropolitan this evening, when the local man, Conklin, will meet the main mat expert from Superior, Watson.

Both men weigh about 130 pounds and are said to be evenly matched in other ways. More is known of Watson from Conklin, but friends of the Duluthian declare that he will give the main from across the bay, a good drubbing.

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I am permanently cured."—Hon. John R. Garrett, mayor, Girard, Ala.

Myron W. Townsend, sporting editor of the St. Louis Star-Chronicle, has just unfurled a banner on which is emblazoned the following words of wisdom:

"No writer ever was smart enough to fool the readers of a sport page. They soon take his measure. If he is on the square and writes things as he sees them, without regard to outside influences, he will be forgiven even if he gravely predicts that John L. Sullivan can whip James J. Corbett."

"Like and dislike, personal prejudices, private opinions, must not sway the writer from exact justice to every actor in the world of sports. Private quarrels are not public quarrels."

"Pennant winners cannot be directed from sporting sanctuaries, but good ball teams can be broken up and disorganized, and good players discouraged and rendered useless by indiscriminate criticism."

"If a fielder makes errors and loses the game, why unnerve him and destroy his self-confidence by attacking him? He feels his position more keenly than the critics possibly can."

"Why should a manager release, bench or try out this man or that?"

"Hold him responsible for results, but give him free rein to exercise his judgment. His bread and butter depends on his success. No amount of carping or fault finding adds one iota to the playing strength of his team."

"Indiscriminate boosting is even more harmful than indiscriminate knocking. The public loses confidence in a writer who has not the courage to call a spade a spade. Black isn't white, and no puny pennant can make it so."

"Class county. Continuous chapters of praise cannot perform miracles by turning tailenders into pennant winners."

"As the fans will forgive anything but stupidity in a ball player, so they will overlook everything but dullness and density in the historian of the game."

"An entertaining and epigrammatic sporting writer sparkles forth like a trolley wire on a sleazy morning."

Schoolboy athletes should take warning from the experience of E. C. Jessup, the former Brooklyn high school star sprinter. When Jessup was a school lad he trained long and hard for the games. He made work of the sport and, as a result, very soon became a champion.

Jessup entered Princeton with bright prospects, but a great athletic future, but the hard work he did as a schoolboy told on him, and he soon showed signs of a breakdown. Hech, Jessup is now away from college for an extended rest. The schoolboys will do well to follow the example of America's greatest athlete, Mark Hubbard, and make play of athletic sports.

CARNIVAL AT RINK TONIGHT

Curlers All Away But Skating Section Will Be Busy.

With twenty curlers in St. Paul playing for the Merriam and MacKenzie trophies, and four rinks playing in Superior for the Anderson medal today, things will be rather quiet on the curlers' section of the Third avenue east rink. The skating portion will more than make up for inactivity on the curling legs, however, as a tremendous crowd is expected on the ice this evening for the big Washington's birthday carnival. Costumes have been the most serious topic of discussion among the more socially inclined of the curlers and their friends for the past month, and the event of this evening promises to be one of the most elaborate fancy dress affairs ever held in this city.

CONVENTION OF WORKMEN

State Gathering in Minneapolis Comes to a Close.

Duluth Delegates Fare Well in Election of Officers.

Minneapolis, Feb. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The thirty-first annual session of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, which convened in this city on Tuesday morning at the Masonic Temple, came to a conclusion yesterday afternoon. In some respects it was one of the best conventions that has been held by this organization, both in point of the number of delegates and in the enthusiasm shown.

Tuesday was occupied solely with the initiation of over 200 members to the grand lodge, an address of welcome by Mayor Haynes, who tendered the freedom of the city, not only as mayor, but also as a member of the order. The response was made by Grand Master Workman Titt. An address by Supreme Master Workman Narvis of Iowa, and the reports of some of the committees followed.

Duluth delegates held a caucus on Tuesday evening at the Brunswick, and the delegation at the Head of the Lakes resolved on J. A. Schumacher for grand inside watch. Mr. Schumacher is past master of Fidelity lodge, No. 165, Duluth, and one of the hardest workers for the order in St. Louis county. After adjourning Tuesday evening, it was resolved that the election of officers would be a special order of business.

Grand Master Workman M. C. Titt of Long Prairie was re-elected. J. F. Cramer of Crookston also won the election for grand foreman. Peter A. Nelson of Red Wing, one of the most popular young men of the order, was promoted from grand guide to grand overseer, on the resignation of J. T. Sanborn of Brainerd. Charles E. Larson of St. Paul, probably more than any of the grand lodge officers, received a unanimous re-election, accompanied by several bouquets, for the office of grand recorder. Grand Receiver McGuire of St. Paul had opposition, but was easily a winner.

August F. Floerke of Minneapolis was elected grand guide, and J. A. Schumacher of Duluth grand inside watch. For grand outside watch, R. W. Richards of Moorhead was elected, and for grand trustees, J. New-sault of Owatonna, Minn., William H. Smith of St. Paul, and Alexander Van Praagh of Little Falls, Minn.

The officers elected were installed by the supreme master, Earl Swenson. The ceremony was a very imposing one.

Besides J. A. Schumacher, who was appointed an officer of the grand lodge, the following Duluthians were also honored: Fred H. White, supreme representative; Charles T. Pressnell, chairman on state of the order; W. J. Stephens, committee on laws; T. A. Pinto, committee on distribution; C. G. Elvovod, trustee per tem.

The Degree of Honor, auxiliary to the A. O. U. W., met Tuesday evening and adjourned Wednesday evening after electing the following officers:

Past grand chief of honor, Myra L. Sprague of Minneapolis; grand chief of honor, Elizabeth Schaefer of St. Paul; grand lady of honor, L. Duffy of Shakopee; grand chief of ceremony, Agnes McMan of Anoka; grand recorder, Frances Ruell of St. Paul; grand receiver, Mina Armstrong of Minneapolis; grand adviser, Elmer Davies of Mankato; grand inner watch, Mary McCleary, Staples; grand outside watch, Clara Bender of Buffalo.

LOST CASH RETURNS.

The $500 Which Wind Blew Away is Mysteriously Found.

Muskegon, Mich., Feb. 22.—"I read in the papers that you lost a package of money," said a man to Robert Fuller, United States express agent at the depot.

Fuller allowed that the papers told the truth. Fuller is the express wagon driver who, two weeks ago, was coming up from the depot at night in a storm with a package of bills, amounting to $500, on his seat beside him. The wind blew the package away. It is supposed to have landed in the snow somewhere. The driver who accused Fuller handed him the missing package and walked away. Fuller says he doesn't know who the man was or how he found the package.

EDITORS FINED FOR FIGHT.

Scraps Followed Nose-Pulling Incident at Charleston, West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 22.—Two fights between O. L. Borton, editor of the Charleston Mail, and George A. Laughlin, chief owner and editor of the Wheeling Intelligencer, furnished the sensation of the legislative day. The two scraps followed a nose-pulling the previous day. Borton had published a story about Laughlin, and the Wheeling man called him to account, and after expressing himself in vigorous language, proceeded to pull the Charleston man's nose.

Borton said he was feeling bad and did not care to fight, but would see Laughlin later. When the senate recessed at noon, both men were seated at the reporters' table, and Borton immediately attacked Laughlin, striking him in the face, but doing little damage. Laughlin claimed that Borton had struck him from the back, but this is denied by those who witnessed the affray.

After the adjournment in the afternoon, Laughlin followed Borton down the street and proposed that they fight the thing out. At it they went and Laughlin received a pretty bad beating. Both were fined in an magistrate's court.

Laughlin is a prominent citizen of Wheeling and former president of the board of trade. He is wealthy and bought an interest in the Intelligencer a few years ago. He has been making severe criticisms of members of the legislature who oppose the administration and Borton's act has given that faction keen enjoyment. Borton is an Ohio man who came here about a year ago.

CHANLER CUTS OFF HIS FAMILY

Gives All His Estate to the University of Virginia.

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 22.—To make more certain that none of his relatives, following estrangement over his being incarcerated in an insane asylum, get no part of his fortune, John Armstrong Chanler has conveyed to the rector and visitors of the University of Virginia his Merrie Mills estate near Cobham, containing 400 acres of land, residence, paintings, statuary, books, furniture, chattels, farming implements and live stock.

The conveyance is subject to the right of Mr. Chanler to continue in possession during his lifetime, and also to the life estate of Eric G. Money of Clement, described as Mr. Chanler's friend and agent.

The purpose of the conveyance is to secure eventually a home for such retired professors of the university as the rector and visitors may designate. Mr. Chanler takes occasion to the preamble of the deed to give the history of his estrangement from his family, his incarceration in Bloomingdale and his adjunction to be insane by the supreme court of New York. He refers to the fact that in 1895 he made a will leaving the bulk of his property to the rector and visitors of the University of Virginia.

In the memorandum accompanying the conveyance, Mr. Chanler speaks in bitter terms of the late Mr. Stanford White of New York, who he says, was "false friend" and aided in investigating him to New York to be put into an asylum by his relatives, and declares it his wish that none of them get any of his estate.

Among them are Lieutenant Governor Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler and Robert Winthrop Chanler, Sheriff of Dutchess county.

No valuation is put on the Merrie Mills estate. The donors retain the right of the gentry of the surrounding country to use the swimming pool in the neighborhood on certain days.

John Armstrong Chanler is a brother of the lieutenant governor of New York and under the attitude of the courts there is an insane person. By the decision of the United States court in Virginia he is a sane and legally competent person in this state.

In New York Mr. Chanler was committed to Bloomingdale asylum and he was an inmate of that institution for four years, and his personal estate, estimated at $1,000,000 was tied up. The question of his legal standing soon to be again reviewed in the United States court here.

After escaping from Bloomingdale Mr. Chanler went to Virginia, legally vindicated his claims to sanity and established himself in the country place, near Cobham, Va. He has since occupied.

He is a grand nephew of Mrs. William Astor, and John Jacob Astor is a cousin. He married Amille Rives, now the Princess Troubetzkoy. They were divorced. For intimating that he was again on friendly terms with his divorced wife, Mr. Chanler sued Town Topics, asking $50,000 damages. That action is pending.

He has written about his incarceration at Bloomingdale and describes what he calls his X-factory. His views on this psychic peculiarity were in a large part responsible for the proceedings incident to his commitment to Bloomingdale.

SHEA ACQUITTED OF CONSPIRACY

Jury Finds President of Teamsters' Union Not Guilty.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—President Cornelius P. Shea of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and his fellow defendants, who have been on trial on a charge of conspiracy committed during the teamsters' strike against the department stores in Chicago two years ago, were found not guilty by a jury in the criminal court last night. The jury reported to the court after being out nearly four hours.

This was the second trial of the case, the jury disagreeing the first time. The second trial was a direct contrast to the first, owing to the quick progress made both in securing the jury and in presenting the evidence. It was begun on Feb. 1 and the jury was completed nineteen days later, whereas seventy-eight days were consumed in securing the former jury, and the trial lasted in all 131 days.

One of the features of the second trial was the liberty extended to jurors by Judge Cavanaugh, who permitted them to visit their homes, accompanied by deputy sheriffs, so that they might give attention to important personal business and see their families. Special arrangements were made also for gymnasium and other privileges for the men. The cost of the trial is estimated at $10,000. The former one is said to have cost $100,000.

WASHINGTON'S

Little late in the season you say? Yes, and your chances to buy good Columbia Overcoats at prices of poorly made stuff will soon be over.

A coat bought tomorrow will be good for you next winter—but not for us. Big as our store is, we have no room to carry things over. $25.00 ones are $17.50, $20 ones are $14.50, $15 ones $10.50 and $10 ones are now $7. But few of the higher-priced coats and of the fur-lined coats left now.

COLUMBIA
CO.HOLIDAY IS OBSERVED

Banks and Many Other Places of Business Are Closed.

There Are No Market Sessions Anywhere in the Country.

George Washington, the hero of the original hatchet and cherry tree incident and of the Revolutionary war, was born on the 22nd day of February, and today Duluth and all the other cities, villages and hamlets in these glorious United States are observing a national holiday.

The banks were closed all day and holiday hours were observed at the postoffice. There was no session on the floor of the board of trade nor in any of the grain, stock, or other exchanges throughout the country. Consequently, there was nothing doing in the local copper stock market and the brokers took advantage of it by catching up on their books and by taking at least an hour and a half for their lunches, a rare treat for those men who usually put 50 cents in the office boy's hand about noon and tell him to go across the street and bring back a tray of grub.

The stores were open along Superior street and the streets of business in the wholesale district were such that to observe the holiday was impossible. But in many of the offices about town, the workers enjoyed a complete holiday or else engaged their labors for the day at noon. The city and county offices were closed.

The railroad offices all closed up at noon and the offices of the Steel corporation in the Wolvin building observed a half holiday.

The fact that the banks were closed and that the brokers' blackboards were here, lent a holiday aspect to Superior street.

The weather was rather pleasant all day. The breezes had chill qualities but they were tempered by a radiant sun, which shone from morn till night. Many of those whose labors did not occupy them during the afternoon, sought recreation of one kind or another, out of doors. Skating was indulged in to a considerable extent at these places where it still to be enjoyed and the ski enthusiasts were out on their hills, although the snow conditions are not as good as they were.

WEST DULUTH WANT ONE MORE CAR

Last Car at Night Leaves Duluth Much Too Early.

Lakeside Car Should Run Clear Through at 1:10.

Many of the West Duluth people who attend parties and entertainments in Duluth and who wish to remain until they are over, are complaining because the last car which runs through to this city leaves Duluth too early.

It is very inconvenient to have to break away from an entertainment in order to catch the last car, but this is what the West Duluthians are often compelled to do.

The last car for West Duluth at present leaves Third avenue west at 12:20 and to catch this car it is often necessary to start for Superior street several minutes before the leaving time.

Others who work until early morning and who live in the western part of the city find that it is necessary for them to remain until the cars commence to run at 6 o'clock.

It has been proposed by some of these that if the last Lakeside car which reaches the central depot of Duluth at about 11:50 minutes more for West Duluthians. A petition may be started to have the street car company allow about fifty minutes more for West Duluthians.

ADVANCE IN EGG PRICES
SOON BEGIN FITTING OUT

Big Demand and Small Supply Results in Increase. Boats Will be Overhauled Before Navigation is Opened.

Also an Advance in Apples—Cranberries Are Cheaper.

With the coming of Lent the demand for eggs increased to a very noticeable degree. With a reduction in the available supply came an increase in price, and the wholesale market is now holding firm around 30 cents. With a continuation of the present cold weather further advances are quite probable, and there is little chance of a falling off in price for the next week or two, even with more favorable climatic conditions. The hens are not as industrious as their owners desire, and there is no danger of the market being flooded.

There was an advance in the price of apples this week. Some varieties are selling at 50 cents more a barrel than they were a week ago. Even at that the cost is reasonable when compared to the prevailing prices a year ago. Two dollars and $2.50 more a barrel was demanded than now. A choice selection of the fruit is still to be had.

With the railroad situation getting better right along, oranges are coming forward more freely from California, together with other products of the Western states. Cranberries are lower in price this week. Strawberries are a trifle cheaper. The first of the Louisiana strawberry shipments are expected in Duluth tomorrow. From now on the shipments will be more frequent, and prices will begin to drop more rapidly within a short time.

The market is fairly well supplied with green stuff at practically the same prices that have prevailed for several weeks past. The potato market is strong, chiefly owing to the scarcity of cars and to the fact that there is an unusual demand from Southern and Western territory, which has resulted in some of the shippers advancing the price of the tubers 4 and 5 cents a bushel.

Speaking of the scarcity of cars, the California shippers are bothered as much in this respect as are the local shippers. The desired number of cars cannot be obtained, and some of the packers have quit shipping operations for the time being because of their inability to get cars. The small and independent shippers in particular are said to be in bad straits. The large association seems to be more successful with the railroads, although they are having trouble getting their cars filled. All this is likely to affect prices in Duluth and other points dependent upon the California market for supplies.

Among the green stuff offered in tempting array by the Michigan street commission houses are a selection of cabbages, cucumbers, cauliflower, California celery, carrots, lettuce, parsnips, radishes, turnips, and sweet potatoes are selling at $4.50 a barrel and Duluth seems to have taken a liking to them, judging by the demand.

Lent doesn't seem to have any effect on the poultry market. The demand for poultry is very heavy, but the supply seems sufficient to meet it. Shipments of poultry are being made in liberal quantities. Prices remain about the same, but the indications are that a good demand will be met in the future, although there is nothing sure about it.

The call for fish is always heavy at this season. The prices are holding up pretty stiff, and the housewives of Duluth do not pay much attention to the test. The dealers are doing their best, however, for the supply is none too plentiful, and prices are high all along the line. Pike are wholesaling at 11 cents a pound, and white fish at 12 cents a pound. Fresh salmon is to be had on the wholesale market at 12 cents a pound, and trout at 11 cents.

ALL FLIRTS MUST PAY FINES DURING LENT.

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 22.—Forty young men in this city have formed a Lenten club to enter a contest for the next forty days. They will meet on Sunday and Tuesday evenings. Court will be held, with a presiding judge, James Kelly, whose associates are William Cronin and Patrick Reilly. For every violation of the club's rules, blasphemy or lying the fine of 5 cents, which goes into the club's treasury. William Murphy is president of the club and William McGillicuddy secretary. It was not because the youths were not leading righteous lives that the moral club came into existence; it was a voluntary effort on the part of the young men who believe that their example will be followed by many others. The court sessions promise to be very interesting. Any member of the club who may bring charges against a fellow member if he has good testimony to substantiate his charges. The organization of the club is said to be the result of some pointed sermons on morality by Catholic clergymen. The girls some time ago organized a White Lily club, the influence for good of which has had a salutary effect on some of the young men whose sweethearts belong to the organization.

PET DOG A SUICIDE.

Grieves Over Separation From Master and Chokes Himself.

Sayville, Long Island, Feb. 22.—Wood, a bird dog owned by former Assemblyman G. A. Robinson, and for which he would have refused $1,000, is dead, and was apparently a suicide.

The dog was found strangled by what appears to have been a self-inflicted strain upon his chain and collar. The affectionate creature had shown great despondency since he was left him in the fall for a winter's sojourn in Florida.

The animal was given an elaborate burial in the dog cemetery on Dr. Robinson's premises here.

AMERICAN TO BE A PRINCESS

Miss Ingraham Engaged to Prince Colonna Cecaldi of Rome.

New York, Feb. 22.—A Paris cable to the World says: The ranks of American princesses will shortly receive another notable addition, as Miss Ingraham has just become engaged to Prince Colonna Cecaldi, who belongs to the Cornetan branch of the Roman family of the Colonnas.

Miss Ingraham is about 25 years old and has lived here for some time with her mother in an apartment in the Clammy Elysee. She is a great friend of the Vanderbilts, seeing them very frequently, and is much envied for the entrance she enjoys to the more exclusive homes in the Faubourg St. Antoine.

The prince, who, although nearly 30, nevertheless looks like a mere boy, is the nephew of Prince Colonna Lecca. He lives in bachelor quarters in a modest little street near the Bois de Boulogne. It was mainly through Prince Lecca that Prince Cecaldi has been introduced to a large circle of Americans.

Prince Lecca himself has been engaged for years in quest of a trans-Atlantic heiress for himself, in the hope of rehabilitating his ancestral glories, which have become somewhat faded by impoverishment. He has made a heroic fight for consideration in society, and has long been accepted as the queerest character in the cosmopolitan set here.

He is called the "knight of the sorrowful face," but he is gay enough to have made a considerable reputation as an improviser of polite parlor verse and an amateur actor of no mean ability. He is much more popular than his nephew, Prince Cecaldi, who, except for his old name, has little to recommend him to women. Anyhow, the future bride's family is delighted with the projected alliance. The wedding date has not yet been fixed.

Miss Stevenson, the daughter of a Western millionaire, has been pursued during her entire visit here by the arduous attentions of the young marquis de Montebello, son of the former French ambassador in Russia.

When the young nobleman was not engaged in paying attentions to the young lady, he was busy engaged in wheeling her friends into giving him a comparative estimate of the Stevensons' wealth, and when he was assured of the size of her fortune he redoubled his efforts to ingratiate himself with the trans-Atlantic society.

Mrs. Stevenson and her daughter were at first amused by his superlative style of love-making, but soon these continual factories failed on Miss Stevenson's wealth, and she finally rebuffed his efforts to come suit.

Finally the marquis and his mother were invited to a box party at the theater, and the marquis, seeing that affairs had apparently progressed so favorably between the two mothers, felt that the realization of his fondest hopes was near at hand.

During the entrance, the door of the box suddenly opened and a stalwart young American entered.

"Allow me," said Mrs. Stevenson, "to introduce my daughter's fiancé."

There was a perceptible frigidity on the part of the noble guests, who soon departed, leaving the Americans to enjoy the joke. The intruder was an old friend of the family who lent himself to the deception.

LEARN TO WINK IF YOU WOULD BE MARRIED.

London, Feb. 22.—Prof. Starling has aroused some criticism in staid society by glorifying "the art of winking" in a lecture on "Eyes."

It requires, he says, "veritable education to wink, although blinking is very simple. The effectiveness of the eye is enhanced by a really artistic and expressive wink. Half the beauty of Spanish women's eyes lies in their peculiar gift of half-closing them, conveying at will, by fine graduations of the same act, either languorous love, fascinating invitation, or withering fury. Without their predatory genius for utilizing their eyelids, Spanish women would lose half their charm. It is a sixth sense to them."

If our women devoted some of their time to the management of their eyelids that they waste on the Swedish drill and strumming the piano they would be far better employed for their matrimonial prospects.

LAUGHING BRIDE REBUKED.

Judge Refused to Continue the Ceremony Until She Became Grave.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 22.—Brides must not laugh while a marriage is being performed in Kansas. Because the bride laughed while the marriage ceremony was being performed, Judge McCabe stopped in the middle of the ceremony and refused to continue until the bride stopped laughing. The bride was Miss Brown of New York, who was being married to Walter Jones.

"Marriage is not a laughing matter," said Judge McCabe when he stopped the ceremony "and I will not perform a marriage ceremony which is regarded as a laughing affair. When you can stop laughing and seem to realize just a little more that this is not a side show perhaps we will resume the ceremony."

Then the judge walked out of the clerk's office where the ceremony was being performed. The couple were just half married. Jones had sworn to love, cherish and support Miss Brown, but Miss Brown seemed to enjoy the situation of being single herself and still having a husband.

When Judge McCabe left the room Jones told Miss Brown to "straighten up and behave herself," but Miss Brown was "tickled" and she did laugh and a hearty laugh it was. Jones expostulated with her for some time and at length informed the judge that the "lady isn't laughing now," and the judge went back to the performance of the ceremony which made a Jones of a Brown.

The ceremony was finished without a smile from the young woman, but after the judge had informed the judge that the happy couple started to leave the office, Mrs. Brown-Jones looked over her shoulder at Judge McCabe and burst into a hearty laugh.

MERRY MONARCH

Has an Amusing and Exciting Experience in Motoring.

London, Feb. 22.—If he has just been learned that the king had an amusing, and, for the time, exciting motoring adventure last Sunday.

Among the monarch's many friends in high finance are the Wernhers. Sir Julius Wernher, though a Hessian by birth, is an English baronet, having received his title in 1905. The explanation of the title and the king's friendship lie in the fact that Sir Julius is the senior partner of the firm of Wernher, Belt & Co., from which firm his majesty has received many a good tip on the South African market.

The Wernhers live at Bath House, Piccadilly, and Sir Julius Wernher, who thanks to the king's friendship, is a great leader among society millionaires, is accustomed to give quiet little Sunday lunches, at which the king learns what is doing or likely to be doing in the hands.

Last Sunday afternoon the king was on his way to one of these functionaries, when his motor car broke down. The chauffeur hurried on to Bath House, leaving the king seated in his motor car, and Sir Julius Wernher promptly dispatched one of his cars to the relief of the stranded monarch.

The delay had made the king late. He had, at any rate, the virtue of punctuality, and the luncheon hour being past, the king instructed Sir Wernher man to put on power. The king's car went screeching along, and was just entering Piccadilly, when a policeman, seeing the vehicle coming

JESTS AND SONG CHECK MAN'S FLEETING LIFE.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 22.—Although it may not save his life, Seth Velsky of Lokansport, Ind., was given a new temporary lease on existence Saturday by the kindness of stage folk who shared his special train.

Velsky, sick unto death with gallstones, insisted on being brought to Battle Creek as a last hope, to have an operation at the Kollong sanitarium. Doctors said he would die on the train, but Velsky insisted, and his car was hitched to the special bringing the "Bankers and Brokers" company, a musical comedy organization, here, for a belated matinee performance.

The dying man heard their merry laughter, and being told they were theatrical people asked if they would give him his last show on earth. The company came in, sang solos, choruses, and recited numbers, and even went through the jokes. Velsky, with the death rattle in his eyes, could only smile feebly, but it kept up his hopes until when the train reached this city he was not only alive, but was able to ride in an ambulance to the sanitarium.

Chances of recovery are ten to one against him, but if he lives it will be because the actor people kept him alive until he reached the sanitarium city.

The affair affected the actors, however, and there were many tearful oases in the chorus.

Piles of people have Piles. Why suffer from piles when you can use DeWitt's Carbolic Witch Hazel Salve and get relief. See that the name is stamped on each box. Sold by all druggists.

MEANS CONFISCATION OF RANGE PROPERTY

County Auditor Prepares Startling Figures on Tonnage Tax.

In Some Towns Yearly Tax Would Exceed Value of Property.

Following close upon the storm of protest that has come from the people on the iron ranges and the taxpayers generally of St. Louis county over the proposed iron ore tonnage tax legislation, County Auditor Halden has prepared and published in neat pamphlet form a concise statement showing exactly what the taking away of the tax on the mines in St. Louis county will mean to the range school districts, towns and villages.

It was with an idea of placing something concrete before the members of the state legislature that County Auditor Halden attempted the compilation, which required a long and careful research and figuring to get the computations exact.

Copies of the statement showing the assessed valuation and tax rates in the iron district of St. Louis county have been mailed to prominent range interests that have been active in the fight against the proposed tonnage tax legislation, and other copies were to be placed in the hands of every member of the legislative committee that was here today on a trip to the iron range to investigate the conditions preparatory to making a report to the legislature.

County Auditor Halden has not only prepared a table showing the total valuation and tax on the mines for the years 1896 to 1906 inclusive, but he has named each mine and stated its tax valuation. The main portion of the publication, however, is given up to the school districts and towns and villages, Mr. Halden showing for each the total valuation, including mines and other property, the levies and what the rate of taxation is with and without the mine valuations assessed.

The argument that can be derived from a perusal of the auditor's comparative figures is most convincing of the irreparable injury that would be done St. Louis county if the legislature should substitute a tonnage tax for the present system of taxation. It shows that the tax rates would be raised to such an extent that the taxes would simply wipe the real and personal property taxpayers of the earth, to put it in figurative language.

The tonnage tax would mean that a tax rate of from eight to ten mills in a town or school district would be increased to over 20 or 300 mills, in some instances to as high as 354 mills, a condition that would be the nation of a Northern Minnesota taxpayer, or a taxpayer in any part of the state, for that matter.

Mr. Halden cites the case of the Missabe Mountain school district No. 22, where the value of the mines is $4,757,796, and the valuation of all other property is only $4,206. The 1906 tax rate, including the state, county, town and school rate, is eighteen mills, with the valuation of the mines included. If the valuation of the mines is not included the tax rate would be 28 mills, a condition of affairs that would be bound to continue any length of time.

World Mean Confiscation.
The district's tax is $45,000. The town and school rate if paid with the mine valuations would be 36.77 mills, if paid without the mine valuations the rate would be 1,061.68 mills, a state of affairs that would be simply astounding and would spell utter ruin.

Under the present taxation conditions the taxpayer in the city of Duluth pays taxes $4.60 on every $1,000 worth of property. Without the mine valuations this same taxpayer would have to pay in taxes $63.80 on every $1,000 worth of property.

Tax Would Exceed Valuation.
The amount to be paid on $1,000 valuation in the town of Breitung, with the mines, is $7.90; without the mines it would be $63.10.

Other Instances Showing the enormous increase that would be made in the taxes on every $1,000 valuation are as follows:
City of Virginia, $23.00; without the mines, $23.00 per $1,000; without the mines, $23.00 per $1,000 valuation. Village of Hibbing, with the mines, $10.18; without the mines, $25.77; city, $10.18; without the mines, $25.77; town of White, with the mines, $3.30; without the mines, $33.90; town of Chisholm, with the mines, $3.30; without the mines, $33.90.

In the recapitulation County Auditor Halden shows what the changes would be in the total tax rate were the mine valuations taken away from the county. The table, in part, follows:

SOME FAMOUS OLD CLOCKS.

Marks That Determine Age of Timepieces Are Worth Having.

New York Sun: The first record of a clock in the Massachusetts colony was in 1628. Dechford mentions in his notebook for that year that Joseph Stratton had of his brother a clock and a watch. In 1690 Henry Parks of Hartford left a clock by will to the church.

These lantern clocks have a square body and a dome top, and the dial often is so large that it extends beyond the sides of the body. The weight extends below the works on two chains, but in some of the specimens found in this country the chains have been shortened and the works altered. The date of these clocks can be told with some degree of accuracy by the style of the fret or brass ornament in front of the dome. The earliest and a favorite pattern for years has two dolphins with crossed tails, and is called the dolphin fret.

It was said to have originated with Thomas Tompion of London, a famous clockmaker who lived during the last half of the sixteenth century and died in 1713. He was called the father of English clockmaking and has left a more enduring fame than any of his contemporaries, and incidentally more clocks.

Next to Tompion the two most famous watchmakers of this time were Daniel Quare, who succeeded Tompion and died in 1726, and George Graham, who followed Quare and died in 1775. It is a curious fact that they all belonged to the Society of Friends.

Besides the dolphin fret there were other patterns, the heraldic fret following the dolphin. This was a coat of arms with scroll work on either side; this design was not used until 1650, so any clocks bearing this design are after that date.

Bracket clocks, that is short clocks made to stand on a shelf or bracket, many of them in this country, are very fine one being sheltered at White Plains, N. Y., where it has been in the owner's family for more than a century and a half, and it still keeps excellent time.

Indeed there are probably more of these old clocks tucked away than people suppose. Many of the modern clock-makers cannot repair them. Modern clocks are cheap, but there has been such a tendency to tuck away old things that the old clock went too. The bracket clocks were followed by long case or grandfather clocks, and there are many admirable specimens of the latter to be found here.

To the best English clocks it was usual to apply the word "grandfather" pendulum of Harrison or Graham's mercurial pendulum. A good fact to bear in mind is that the length of the pendulum in most longcase clocks made before 1800 was thirty-nine inches; that is, after the long pendulum came into use at all. The first pendulums were called bob pendulums because they swung so far to the side that it was necessary to cut slits in the side of the case to allow them to swing free. Many clocks which started with bob pendulums were later supplied with long pendulums which came into use about the year 1680.

Tompion and William Clement were both making longcase clocks by 1680, and these clocks have peculiarities which are plainly marked. In the first place the dials were square, and the wooden hood which covered the clock and works had to be lifted off to permit the clock to be wound.

Now, a word as to these early dials. The first thing to be observed are the hour circles. Before the minute hand came into use the double circles seen on the mantle were used. Between the two the hours are divided into quarters, the half hour being shown by an extra ornament like a dagger or a fleur-de-lis.

After the minute hand was added, besides the double circles showing the minutes denoting the hours and the smaller figures showing the minutes, there were marks on the outer edge of the larger circle showing the quarters. The dials of the period of William III and Queen Anne were enriched by beautiful engravings, and the metal cases were inlaid with silver, and there were ornaments of ormolu in the form of figures and scrolls. Not a scrap of the face was left undecorated. On the extreme edge was placed a border of leaves or a herringbone pattern. The whole interior of the hour circle was filled with flowers, scrolls, or set patterns, either engraved or etched, and about the winding holes were extra circles and wreaths.

The earliest seventeenth century clocks had the names of the makers put on in Latin and set straight across the bottom of the dial. The next period showed the maker's name placed between the lower part of the dial face and the figures V and VI.

It is safe to say that these two methods of marking were prior to 1750. The dials of the period of William III and Queen Anne were enriched by beautiful engravings, and the metal cases were inlaid with silver, and there were ornaments of ormolu in the form of figures and scrolls. Not a scrap of the face was left undecorated. On the extreme edge was placed a border of leaves or a herringbone pattern. The whole interior of the hour circle was filled with flowers, scrolls, or set patterns, either engraved or etched, and about the winding holes were extra circles and wreaths.

Waiting to seize it, vigilantly wait!"

The cases as well as the faces had peculiarities of their own. On the upper part of the case will be found carved spiral pillars, such as are to be seen on the carved chairs of the same period. These pillars were occasionally finished off with gilt glass-toppers, and on Tompion's clocks there were pillars at the back, as well as on the front of the case.

When everything Dutch was in fashion and a Dutch king sat on the throne of England, marquetry cases were in vogue, and many clocks show English works housed in Dutch cases. In some cases the marquetry of colored woods was enriched with mother of pearl, and there are in this country clocks set in cases of splendid lacquer, like the one which belonged to Thomas Hancock and descended to John Hancock, and is now in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Besides the names already mentioned of Tompion, Quare and Graham, there were other makers whose clocks are now in the collection of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Edward East sent over some clocks by 1690 in splendid cases. Joseph Knibb and James Cloves made clocks about 1700, and James Lowmes was noted for his long case clocks as early as 1706.

Almost all clocks before the eighteenth century had straight tops. Tompion's last clocks, made about 1709, shortly before his death, show an arched top, in which was placed a register for the equation of time.

This arched top was regarded as a great improvement in the appearance of the clock, and was used for ornament if not for the register. Sometimes name plates were put there, and these plates, bearing either the name of the owner or maker, have proved most annoying to collectors, since if the name is not to a well known maker, it is difficult to tell which it is, owner or maker.

In this country by 1774 watches and clocks were common enough. They were made here in small numbers from almost the first, but it was not till about 1780 that the manufacture was carried on to any great extent. New England started the business, and Eli Terry of Windsor, Conn.; James Harrison of Waterbury, and Benjamin Hanks of Litchfield, were among the first makers.

All these men made brass works, which made the clocks expensive, and then Eli Terry began to use wooden works in his clocks, some of which kept good time to this day. In 1807 Terry undertook to make 500 clocks with modern works, but this overstocked the market to such an extent that he was forced to reduce the price from $25 to $15 and then to $10.

In 1814 what was called the short shelf clock was invented by Terry, and the case was made of wood with wood works, but after the invention by which blank wheels could be struck out of a sheet of brass and the teeth of a watch by machinery the brass wheels could be made cheaper than those with wooden wheels. This was not, however, until about 1837.

The next improvement was making springs which could be substituted for weights. Springs had been in use in Europe for 200 years, but they were so costly that they could be used only on the most expensive clocks. An American ingeniously invented a steel spring which could be used in low-priced clocks, and which revolutionized the business.

Perhaps the most famous name in clock-making in America is that of Willard. There were at least four clock makers of this name—Simon, Aaron, Benjamin and Simon. It is supposed to be the last who invented that peculiar style of clock known as the Willard or banjo.

SPARROW'S GRATITUDE.

Louisville Courier-Journal: It is a rare occurrence for animals in a wild state to select man for a companion and friend, yet well authenticated instances when this has been done are a matter of record. The following incident is vouched for by a young woman who is a close and accurate observer: "Last week my brother, a lad of 12, killed a snake which was just in the act of robbing a song sparrow's nest. Ever since then the male sparrow has shown his gratitude to George in a truly wonderful manner. When he goes into the garden the sparrow will fly to him, sometimes alighting on his shoulder, all the while pouring out a tumultuous song of praise and gratitude. It will sit upon him about the garden, never leaving him until he reaches the garden gate. George, as you know, is a quiet boy, who loves animals and this may account in a degree for the sparrow's actions."

EIGHTEEN-HOUR NEW YORK-CHICAGO FLYER GOES OVER BANK INTO CONEMAUGH RIVER

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CRITICISES THE FAULT-FINDING MEN OF NATION

Prompt to Condemn Administration But Offer Nothing Themselves.

Advocates of State Control Really Wish No Control at All.

Characteristic Address by Executive to the Men of Harvard.

Boston, Feb. 23.—President Roosevelt addressed the students of Harvard union, speaking in part as follows:

In speaking here at the Harvard union I wish to say first a special word as one Harvard man to his fellow Harvard men. I feel that we can none of us ever be sufficiently grateful to Col. Higgins for having founded this Harvard union because each loyal Harvard man should do all he can to foster in Harvard that spirit of real democracy which will make Harvard men feel the vital sense of solidarity so that they can all join to work together in the things that are of most concern to the college.

One reason why I so thoroughly believe in the athletic spirit at Harvard is because the athletic spirit is essentially democratic. Our chief interest should not be in the great champions in sport. On the contrary our concern should be most of all to widen the base, the foundation in athletic sports, to encourage in every way a healthy rivalry which will stir to the highest possible number of students the chance to take part in vigorous outdoor games.

It is of far more importance that a man shall play something himself, even if he plays it badly, than that he shall go with hundreds of companions to see some one else play well and not get any healthful for either students or athletes if the terms are mutually exclusive.

As I emphatically disbelieve in seeing Harvard or any other college in a molasses puddle instead of vigorous men, I may add that I do not in the least object to a sport because it is rough. Rowing, baseball, lacrosse, track and field games, hockey, football are all of them good.

A word also to the students. Athletics are good, study is even better, and best of all is the development of the type of character for the great champions of individual as in a nation, no amount of brilliancy of mind or of strength of body will alone. Harvard must do more than produce students; yet, after all, she will fall immeasurably short unless she produces a great number of true students, of true scholars. You here when you graduate.

BOMB FAILS TO KILL THE CHIEF

Col. Von Hessberg of Odessa Police Has Narrow Escape.

Odessa, Feb. 23.—A bomb was thrown beneath the carriage of the chief of police, Col. Von Hessberg, as he was driving in the center of the city this afternoon. The explosion of the bomb wrecked the carriage, severely injuring the chief of police, and shattered the windows of all the houses in the vicinity. The would-be assassin escaped.

Chief of Police Von Hessberg is accused of being the instigator of the last anti-semitic riots here.

DEXTER, MAINE, HAS BAD CONFLAGRATION.

Dexter, Maine, Feb. 23.—With the temperature several degrees below zero and with no other fire-fighting apparatus than hose and hydrants, the citizens of this town today fought a disastrous blaze that started in a nest of wooden buildings in the business section, and by heroic work confined the loss to four large three-story blocks at a total loss of $20,000. Several firms were burned out, and several families were driven out into the cold. The flames, fanned by a strong northwest wind, for a time threatened the entire town.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

Calumet, Mich., Feb. 23.—Art Downs was found dead in the snow a half mile from a lumber camp, near Calumet, Delta county, a few days ago. He and a companion had been to town and had drunk considerable whisky. His companion staggered into camp that night and fell in a stupor. When he awoke in the morning he asked for Downs, and the other men in the camp went out and found his dead body near by.

Strong Presentation at Ely of Injustice of Tonnage Tax.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Bwabik, Minn., Feb. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The legislative ore tax committee and associates arrived in Ely at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and were escorted to the magnificent Ely high school building, where C. L. Newberry, superintendent of schools, and M. E. Gibson, president of the school board and business man of the town, delivered very brief addresses. The remainder of the afternoon was taken up by an inspection of the Pioneer mine.

The trip from Duluth to Ely was made without incident. No witnesses were examined, no delegations met, and no special effort made to obtain information regarding the iron ore industry, further than the fact that Dwight Woodbridge was questioned slightly on unimportant details by individual members of the party. Before the journey to an end, some mining experts will be questioned, but the main object of the range tour appears to be to give the legislators an opportunity to see for themselves what an iron mine looks like, get a hint of the immense expense of operation, and learn something of the difficulties with which the mining companies have to contend in getting out the ore.

Most of the senators and representatives appeared to have been of the opinion that it was an easy matter to get at the ore—that the mere working of a steam shovel or series of them constituted iron mining. These men

LOT-JUMPERS AT GOLDFIELD

Marched on by Chamber of Commerce in a Body.

Goldfield, Nev., Feb. 23.—The chamber of commerce has given warning to all lot-jumpers that they will have to cease operations or get out of town. Thursday squatters moved on a lot at the corner of Main and Hall streets, where the owner had already begun excavating for a four-story building. A cabin was hauled on the ground and an armed guard established to keep off the contractors. A fence was thrown around the place, which the owner last week $30,000, and the jumpers asserted their right to $5,000 as the price of a compromise.

An emergency meeting of the chamber of commerce was called, and 200 members marched to the corner under the leadership of Dick Colburn, first vice president. The entire body rushed at the jumpers, threw them into the muddy street, and then proceeded to rid the lot of the cabin.

The jumpers were lined up and told that if they attempted to repeat operations they would be escorted down the road and shown the trail across the desert. In the attacking force there were ten millionaires, most of whom had suffered from some blackmarket tactics. During the past week there have been daily complaints of jumpers, who are taking advantage of the fact that the title to the townsite is in dispute.

WOLVES ATTACK TWO MEN.

Club Used Effectively on Brutes Until Gun Could be Loaded.

Watson, Sask., Feb. 23.—While engaged in erecting a dwelling north of Winner two men by the name of Bailey and Bannister were attacked by three wolves. The leader sprang at Bailey's throat, but encountered an upper cut that sent the animal back, while Bannister ran for his rifle. The gun would not work, but was used effectively as a club, Bailey defending himself with a billie wood. At last an opportunity was had to change cartridges and Bannister shot one of the brutes and the others ran off.

ANY MOVE BY JEROME

To Have Lunacy Commission Appointed Will Be Fought.

Mrs. Thaw in Much Better Condition Than on Friday.

New York, Feb. 23.—Any attempt which may be made by District Attorney Jerome to have a commission in lunacy appointed to examine Harry K. Thaw will be vigorously opposed by Thaw's attorneys, according to an announcement today by A. Russell Peabody. Mr. Peabody's statement was called forth by persistently repeated rumors that it is Mr. Jerome's intention to apply for such a commission as soon as he completes the cross-examination of Dr. Bingham and Desmar, the alienists. "If Mr. Jerome makes any such move as that, either at the reconvening of court Monday, or later," said Mr. Peabody, "Mr. Delmas, supported by other counsel, will fight against it to the last ditch."

Mrs. Evelyn Thaw visited her husband early today and remained with him the full three hours allowed visitors. She appeared to be in much better condition physically than at the time of her visit yesterday.

GIRL IN ROBBERS' BAND.

Beautiful Young Woman is Arrested With Three Alleged Thieves.

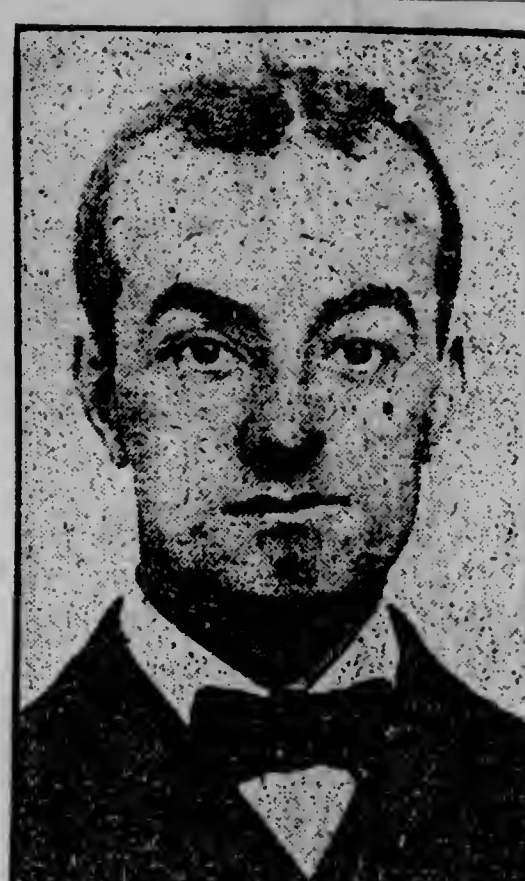

New York, Feb. 23.—By the arrest of a beautiful girl and four young men the police believe they have solved the mystery of jewel robberies on the upper West Side which for three months have terrified residents and baffled detectives. Thefts amounting to more than $15,000 have been reported during that time.

Diamond rings and pins valued at $3,500 and pawn tickets for jewels worth about $10,000 were found in the girl's apartment on West Sixty-fourth street. Owners who had reported their losses identified some of the property and the police believe they will be able later to restore most of the $15,000 losses.

The girl was Amelia Russell. Detectives yesterday arrested five other persons suspected of complicity in the robberies.

A BIG FLEET FOR PACIFIC

Seven Battleships to be Stationed in Western Ocean.

San Francisco, Feb. 23.—It is authoritatively, although not officially, reported in local naval circles that the formation of a strong armored fleet on the Pacific coast will be inaugurated by the dispatching to this city at an early date of the battleships Indiana and Iowa. These two battleships will form the nucleus of the Pacific battleship squadron, which will be further strengthened by the addition of the new battleships Nebraska, now nearly completed at Seattle, and the battleships Wisconsin and Oregon, which are now being extensively overhauled at the Puget Sound naval station. These five battleships may be reinforced during the next few months by two more from the Atlantic.

It is said to be the policy of the navy department at this time to unite the Asiatic fleet and the Pacific squadron into one great fleet, its component vessels interchangeable, and all under the command of one of the three vice-admirals, which it is thought congress will authorize at an early date.

SERIOUS CHARGES

Made Against Former Attendants of Ohio Insane Asylum.

Grand Jury Returns Indictments Against Five of Them.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 23.—The Athens county grand jury today returned five indictments against former employees of the state asylum for alleged cruelties practiced against inmates of the institution. Herbert Reeder, Henry Harkins and C. F. Bobo were indicted for second degree murder. They are charged with the murder of William J. Barnes, an inmate committed from Monroe county. It is charged that Barnes was "tramped out" by the above employees and that he died from the injuries inflicted.

Edward Hunter is charged with assault and battery on one of the inmates. Hunter is a former attendant of the asylum.

William Blackburn of Athens, a former attendant, is charged with the same offense.

The grand jury says in its report that the rules of the asylum are flagrantly violated and that there is a marked absence of co-operation among the attendants, physicians and supervising officers, and that it is a common thing for the attendants to use rubber hose, clubs, straps and paddles in the punishment of the inmates.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Feb. 23.—Jumping to avoid a collision, R. D. Pelton, cashier of the State Bank of Underwood, was killed here yesterday afternoon, being caught and rolled under the wheels of a train for thirty-five feet.

Wreck on Pennsylvania Road Due to High Speed.

Cars Partially Submerged in Waters of the River.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 23.—A statement issued by the Pennsylvania railroad, at 11 o'clock, is to the effect that fifty-four passengers and a train crew of about a dozen were injured in the wreck of the Pennsylvania special, the fast 18-hour train on the Pennsylvania between New York and Chicago, which occurred at a sharp curve at Black Diamond, Pa., seven miles east of Johnstown, shortly after midnight. No one was killed and all the passengers have been accounted for.

The engine and combination smoking car remained on the rails, but the three Pullmans plunged over a 60-foot embankment in the Conemaugh river. Fortunately the cars were not submerged.

A scene of wild confusion resulted. All of the passengers were in their berths and were thrown promiscuously around the cars.

All the passengers on the train were injured more or less, but with the exception of John P. Kline, Joliet, Ill., it is said none of the injuries were fatal. The train was running fifty minutes late, and was trying to make up lost time. Nobody

WARNER GETS $12 PENSION

Commissioner of Pensions Not in Need of It, However.

Washington, Feb. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vespasian Warner, commissioner of pensions, it was officially announced today, has been granted a pension of $12 per month. Commissioner Warner comes into this pension because he has declared that he is 62 years of age and furthermore has served in the Union army ninety days or more and produced papers showing his service.

It may be said in passing that Vespasian Warner does not need $12 per month very greatly, in view of the fact that he draws $5,000 annually as commissioner of pensions, but he is entitled to it as a Civil war veteran, and his "hired men" in the pension bureau made his case special and pushed it through to celebrate the fact that their boss had passed the sixty-second mile post in life's journey.

The President's Family Divides After Arriving at Boston.

Boston, Feb. 23.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who came to Massachusetts to pay a flying visit to their sons at Harvard and Groton school, arrived here today after an uneventful journey from Washington. The president planned to spend the forenoon with Dr. Bigelow, to attend the christening of the son of Capt. Guy Murchie, a classmate, and then go to Harvard where, during the afternoon and evening he was to be the guest of the undergraduates at various fraternal and society events.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel Roosevelt were to remain at the Lee house but a short time before taking a train for Groton, where Kermit Roosevelt is at school. They planned to remain at Groton until joined by the president tomorrow at noon, later in the day the whole party will return to Boston preparatory to the homeward trip to Washington, leaving at 8 o'clock in the evening.

NEWS OF THE WEEK AT CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

Debating Society Discusses Duluth Street Railway Service.

Basketball is Booming—Patriotic Program for Washington's Birthday.

The members of the Public Speaking club of the high school gave a very entertaining program at their meeting last Monday. The meeting was held in one of the rooms on the second floor and this will be continued in the future, as it is more convenient and offers better facilities for speaking.

Edward Cole handled the topic of current events in an interesting way. He spoke of the San Francisco school trouble in regard to the exclusion of the Chinese from the public schools, and said that a delegation had been sent to Washington to settle the matter. As a result the Chinese will be admitted to the schools as soon as a bill is passed excluding Chinese coolies from the country. Mr. Cole also told of the Kingston earthquake and its disastrous effects, dealing with the Davis-Sweetnam affair. He spoke of the awarding of the Panama contract to Contractors Oliver and Bangs, and told of the Brownsville affair, and the Thaw trial.

A new feature for the program has been introduced to promote the efficiency of the members in extemporaneous speaking. Topics were given out by the president at a brief conference and were handled without preparation by those called upon. The following subjects were treated: The ski tournament, by Ray Segog; the recent freight shortage, by Mr. Pierce; a hockey rink for Duluth, by Fred Johnson. These were all well handled and many good points were brought out. This feature of the program promises to be a popular one and will be continued at all future meetings.

Discuss Tractation Company. The interest of the meeting centered in the debate. The question under discussion was, "Resolved, that the present method of managing the Duluth street railway system is a hindrance to the growth of the city." Oscar Heim and John Quinn supported the affirmative, while Frank Boerner and David Feldman took the part of the street car company.

The affirmative devoted most of its time to showing the inefficiency of the present service and calling attention to the refusal of the company to make the needed improvements. They said that the company will not listen to the demand for half-fare rates for workmen and school children. They said that the refusal of the company to extend its tracks to such places as Arnold and Proctor was delaying the expansion of the city. They cited examples where such extensions have increased the value of the adjacent property 50 per cent and also materially increased the population.

As for the service in the city, they said it was entirely insufficient to handle the traffic, and that many of the cars are cold and unheated. They asserted that the extra cars are run in slip-shod, unsystematic manner, and do not run on time. They also found several flaws in the management of the Duluth-Superior and Duluth heights lines. The arguments were advanced that cars should be run all night as in most progressive cities of the size of Duluth. Further, they urged that not enough power was furnished to give good service, and said that this was the fault of the company, as it is their duty to see that they have sufficient power.

In summing up their arguments they claimed that in proving the inadequacy of the service they had shown that the management was a hindrance to the growth of the city.

The champions of the street car company, on the other hand, endeavored to show that the service of the company is comparatively satisfactory. A map of the street car system was drawn on the board and they proceeded to demonstrate that the street cars lines are distributed liberally throughout the city. They called attention to the peculiar lay of the land, and the remarkable length of the city, saying that these facts make it difficult to give perfectly satisfactory service. They asserted that many extensions have been made to accommodate the people on the hill and at each end of the city. The distribution of the street car lines, they said, is proportional to the population, and there are very few places in the city where one cannot get a car by walking two or three blocks. The regular service, they said, is almost beyond reproach, and the company has had many troubles which have prevented them giving good extra service. Further, they explained, that the rush hour shifts every year and it takes considerable time to adjust the service to the various changes. Judges, after a brief conference they returned a verdict in favor of the negative, supporting the side of the street car company.

Mr. Lambert complimented the speakers on their concise and able arguments, and said that the speeches were all strong and well delivered. He said that after the boys have had some more practice, a preliminary debate will be held in chapel, and a contest may be arranged with Superior. The club may also join the Duluth debating league of the city.

The program was closed by a humorous recitation, which was well given by Prof. Lambert. The next debate will probably be on the subject of capital punishment. The members of the club are planning to hold a mock trial. If this is a success it may be given in chapel.

Basketball Finals. In a close and exciting contest the Junior basketball team of the high school took the championship plunk from the Seniors, defeating them to the tune of 21 to 18. Twice it was necessary to play off a tie, and the game belonged to either side until the last second.

Basketball has jumped from comparative obscurity into the line light of the school activities at the high school during the past year, and has taken the place that was formerly held by hockey, now a back number as far as the high school is concerned. With a gymnasium at the high school there is no doubt that it would be even more popular. There is hardly a high school in the country, of any size, that has not some sort of a gymnasium connected with it, and it is unfortunate that the Duluth school cannot have one. The grade school students will be rejoiced from the high school building next year and this it is hoped will provide sufficient room so that a gymnasium could be fitted up for the benefit of the students.

Patriotic Programs. A combined Lincoln and Washington program was given in chapel Thursday morning. The program was prepared on short notice, but the participants gave an excellent entertainment.

The first number was a song, "The American Flag," by the choir, Margaret Cuklin recited an original poem, entitled "Lincoln, the Martyr and President."

An oration on "Abraham Lincoln" was well given by Richard Johnson. He closed with Lincoln's Gettysburg speech, and was vigorously applauded. The hit of the program was a song, entitled, "Why Can't a Girl Be a Soldier?" Leon Cooley sang the solo part with a rich tenor voice. An encore was called for and Mr. Cooley repeated the last verse of the song.

Jessie Johnson read an essay on "George Washington," dealing with the part which he played as a general, a statesman and a citizen. She also described his character and prominent qualities in an interesting way.

William Smith's oration on the "Character of Washington" was delivered in an able manner by David Feldman.

The program was closed with the singing of the "Soldiers' Chorus," by the choir.

Small Class Meeting.

A small attendance of Juniors was present at the meeting of the class which was held last Monday. The proceedings were about as lifeless as they possibly could be and, as the president remarked, did not speak well for the spirit of the class. He said that there are eighty-one boys in the class according to the roll but that one would never know it by the number present.

The most important business of the meeting was the election of the baseball and track captains. David McFarlane was chosen to captain the baseball team, and George Clausen was given unanimous vote for track captain. Clausen is one of the best all-around athletes in the school, with the exception of Ryan, and he is particularly good in the distance events. He is also a good man at the running broad jump, and he ought to bring many points to his class at the meet. The president urged all the men who are good at track athletics to get out early this year, and work hard, as he would like to keep the Seniors from getting a corner on the events. He urged basketball men to get out for track work at the beginning of the season, as this is a good means of keeping in training. He said that it would also be a help to any who expect to try for the football team next year.

Good Program.

An interesting program was given by the girls of the Philomathesis society last Monday. Hattie Stahlbush gave the criticism of the preceding program, commenting on the delivery, enunciation, and other phases of the program. A piano duet was well played by Cordelia Gode and Marie Agatin.

Miss Robinson gave an interesting talk on the great Yellowstone park and Lucile Bradley gave a humorous recitation which brought out much laughter. An interesting talk on the private life of Florence Nightingale was given by Lillian Meier. Frank Meier told of the work which Florence Nightingale did as a nurse.

The program was closed by a violin solo which was ably played by Edith Harrington.

Principal Smith Speaks.

For the benefit of those students who are going away to college after completing their high school course, Principal Smith explained in chapel about the entrance requirements of the various institutions. Most of the colleges and institutions will admit students who have graduated from the high school and have secured the proper certificates from the principal. However, Mr. Smith said that not all schools have an average of seventy-five in every subject, but Mr. Smith said that a boy who just goes through on this basis is not ready for college, and a certificate will not be given to him. The lowest average required to secure a certificate is 75, and he thinks that this is rather low, and that 85 is more proper.

"We have the reputation of the school to sustain," he said, "and we must not let it down by allowing unprepared students to enter college from our institution."

High School Notes.

The Zenith board of the sale of the advanced slips for the book early this week. About $50 was taken in.

The school month closed last Thursday and the report cards are due Monday. The members of the senior class who have parts in the play "The English work on account of the great amount of time which they have to put on the play.

Although nothing definite has been decided in regard to the spelling lesson, a rumor is going the rounds that they will soon be coming to a head.

The Schillerbund did not hold its regular meeting Thursday afternoon. The program which was to have been given then will probably be given next Thursday.

The work on the senior play is progressing rapidly. Rehearsals have been held nearly every night this week and the players will soon have their parts learned. It is thought that they will have them by Friday.

The Zenith board held a meeting Tuesday afternoon. A committee was appointed to select a class officer, and several other matters were decided.

NORMAL NOTES

The senior class members and the faculty were delightfully entertained by the Juniors at a military heart party.

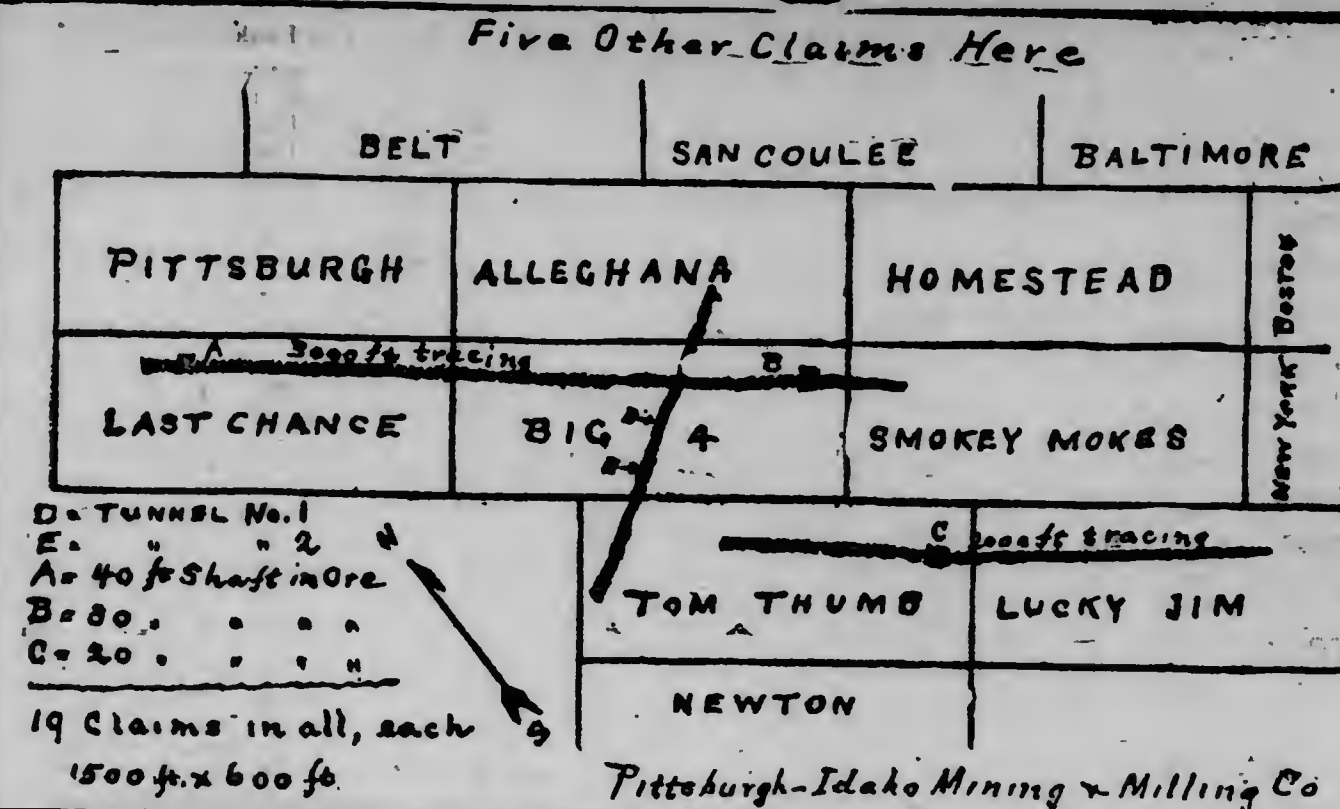

The affair was given in the drawing room at the home. The room was gallantly festooned in red hearts in honor of St. Valentine. Crepe streamers in colors of the two classes, gold and blue of the seniors, and red and grey of the Juniors, were wound about the chandeliers. The game was a very unique one. The playing cards, score cards and tally holders were delicately made and decorated in heart shapes. Six players won the prize, which consisted of six half-blown red roses. Dainty refreshments were served after the game was finished. Besides the senior guests the following members of the faculty were entertained: President and Mrs. Bohannon, Mr. and Mrs. Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Blair, Miss Horne, Miss Hoyer, Miss Ely, Miss Carey, Miss Shoemith, Miss Post, Miss Bairbridge, Miss Eaton and Miss Mason.

Thursday the Senior Domestic Science classes held a meeting. Miss Carey of the art department at the Duluth high school gave a highly instructive and thoroughly enjoyable discourse on "Art in the Home and Furnishings." Miss Carey gave the historical steps in the making of a home and gave suggestions on color schemes, curtains, hangings and furnishings.

The classes of the art department are planning for an exhibit of their work to be given Friday, March 1, in the Normal studio and drawing room. This work includes all done during the last two years with Miss Bairbridge, the art instructor. The exhibit consists of art work in charcoal, pencil, water color, and the manual training products, including wood and leather work, and the basket work. The work in baskets has been taken up here this term for the first time in this school.

Two more weeks remain before the conclusion of the present winter term, and then a vacation of ten days will be given. The examinations will take place Thursday and Friday, March 7

Pittsburgh, Idaho Mining & Milling Company

There has been a great feast of good coppers on the market lately, but the best of the wine has been kept for the last of the feast, and that is the treasury stock of the Pittsburgh-Idaho Mining & Milling Company. The mine is located 58 miles above Lewiston, Idaho, on the Clearwater river, and consists of 19 full claims, or 380 acres. It is developed by tunnels, shafts and open cuts for more than 2,000 feet, disclosing thousands of tons of copper, gold and silver ores of both high grade and low grade. There are between 1,000 and 2,000 tons of ore ready for shipment. The entrance to the working tunnel is only 2,000 feet from the track of the Northern Pacific railroad, to be reached by gravity tramway. There are two parallel veins running lengthwise of the claims, one cropping out on the surface for 2,000 feet and the other over 3,000 feet; a third vein crosses the former, running into the mountain (See above diagram). These veins are from 50 to 200 feet wide. One ore chute has been crosscut 60 feet and is solid ore from wall to wall. A full description of the ore bodies can be found in the prospectus. Let me send you one!

I am not asking you to buy in a prospect. That risk was taken by the promoters. I am asking you to buy in a developed, proven mine. Seven years of continuous work and the expenditure of thousands of dollars have proven one of the greatest mines in Idaho. That mine is now ready to pour out its red and yellow wealth to the world, with the installing of an up-to-date production plant. It is for that purpose that 200,000 shares of its treasury stock, fully paid and non-assessable, are offered today at 50c per share. Within six months from the completion of a 100-ton plant the mine can be put on a dividend paying basis, and those dividends will be substantial and permanent. I have made a personal inspection of the mine and know its possibilities. Let me tell you about it. There is no better investment offered before the people today. Office open evenings for the accommodation of the local trade.

THE THAW MURDER TRIAL AS THE "YELLOW" SEE IT

Some Extracts From Case As They Might Have Appeared.

Some Unpublished Testimony From the Notorious Legal Battle.

(Note—Believing that the Thaw trial has been sorely neglected, arrangements have been made with the New York Screamer to secure their special dispatches daily. The first is herewith published, having been received by special Marconi service.)

During the early morning session it was plain that Mr. Delmas was laying the foundation for some important testimony.

The climax came shortly before noon. Rising and walking toward the witness, with his forefinger leveled, Attorney Delmas shot out the question: "Is it or is not true that Harry Kendall Thaw had a corn on the little toe of his left foot?"

"I object," shouted Mr. Jerome springing to his feet. "I object for sixteen reasons. The testimony on this point is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. It is not the best evidence, and no foundation has been laid for it. It has nothing to do with the subject under consideration. I object."

"May I please your honor," said Mr. Delmas, "this is decidedly relevant. In fact, it is the meat of the whole case. We claim that the prisoner at the bar was mad when he shot and killed Stanford White, and we propose to show that a corn on the little toe of the left foot would make any man mad. I can cite cases without number where corns have made men mad."

The jury was then dismissed for a week until the attorneys should have an opportunity to argue this point.

The attendance this morning was encouraging. The news that Mrs. Thaw would tell what Harry was accustomed to eat for breakfast, brought out a record-breaking crowd, and the house was sold out long before 9 o'clock. When the hour for opening arrived, there was a long line in waiting at the door.

Society was well represented. The front row of the dress circle was occupied with a brilliant assemblage of New York's upper crust.

Paris. She had a fetching little bow under her left ear, which was noted as an important piece of evidence, and it was evidently not lost upon the jury.

Her hair was done in a Marcel wave, and she wore patent leather shoes and long black gloves.

Mr. Delmas was plainly attired in a suit of black broadcloth, while Mr. Jerome was simply attired in a plain business suit.

No sense in running from one doctor to another. Select the best one, then stand by him. Do not delay, but consult him in time when you are sick. Ask his opinion of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds. Then use it or not, just as he says.

STUBBORN coughs and colds are dangerous because the irritated membranes get no rest, hence cannot recuperate. Robbed of their power of resistance, they are unable to throw off germs of bronchitis, pneumonia or consumption.

Scott's Emulsion soothes and heals the affected membranes with glycerine, restores the tissues and builds up the blood with cod liver oil, strengthens the nervous system with hypophosphites.

Scott's Emulsion will break up and cure the most stubborn cold.

MINING MEN ARE IN TOWN

Denn and Shattuck-Arizona Officials Arrive to Attend Meetings.

Sessions Will be Held in Duluth on Tuesday.

Prominent officials of the Shattuck-Arizona and Denn-Arizona Copper companies arrived in Duluth this morning from Bisbee, Arizona, to attend the annual meetings of the two concerns, which were adjourned from Bisbee. The sessions will be held at the local offices of the companies Tuesday afternoon.

In the party which came today are L. C. Shattuck of Bisbee, original owner of the Shattuck mine; Maurice Denn of Bisbee, original owner of the Denn mine; J. M. O'Connell, attorney at Bisbee for the two companies; Byron M. Patterson, superintendent of the Denn-Arizona mine, and Dr. David Broderick, mine physician for the Shattuck-Arizona and Denn-Arizona companies.

Martin Patterson and other officials of the two companies who reside in Duluth are already here and will be present at the meetings to be held next week. Thomas Barlow of Ashland is expected to arrive Monday.

A number of important matters will probably be disposed of at these meetings. There is talk of building a smelter and there is business in connection with the taking over of the Denn-Arizona Development company by the Denn-Arizona Copper company, the mining corporation.

"This talk of labor troubles at Bisbee has been greatly exaggerated," said Byron M. Patterson, today. "It is true that there have come into the camps grumblers who have tried to make trouble and have succeeded to some slight extent, but the cordial relations between the mining companies and the majority of the miners are as pleasant as they ever were, and the Bisbee camp has always been a peaceful one. Bisbee is moving along the same as it ever was and is producing just as much copper."

Everything at the Denn is looking well. The air connection with the Saginaw has been completed, to the great benefit of the property. The air in the mines is now better and the danger to the workmen lessened. "The No. 30, a cross-cut in the 1,000-foot level is in the ore. On the 1,100-foot level, the new drift is 100 feet away from the old one and in very promising ground. When I left, they were in soft iron ore and mud, with bunches of native copper in places. It is so soft that it requires much timbering."

We expect by the next 100 or 250 feet to encounter the same ore body that was found on the 1,000-foot level.

Shattuck is producing 250 tons of ore a day and in two months, it is expected that this will be increased to 500 tons a day. Yesterday, when we were in Chicago, we learned of a new strike on the 300-foot level at the Leo claim, which runs 10 per cent copper. This is separate from the large bodies now opened and extends over 500 feet from those now being worked."

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Mystery Solved.

"Ah, mamma dear, I now can tell. Why your gems and muffins taste so well. They are always light, and baked just right. When raised with White Loaf Baking Powder."

"But there is one great mystery I should like to know. How you make your biscuits, white as snow? They never will your muffins spoil. When eaten hot or cooled a while."

"If this one secret you will reveal, Your pastry cooking to me, would appear. 'Why, daughter dear, it is no trick. To make those biscuits white and quick."

"You make some flour and water so. You mix it up a good stiff dough. Then put it through the baking test. And this good powder does the rest."

"What baking powder," she exclaimed anxiously.

"Why, White Loaf Baking Powder always."

W. F. King of Duluth secured the contracts for the erection of the buildings, and excavation has already been commenced on the site upon which they will be built. The buildings will probably be ready for the railway company's use by early this summer.

WEST DULUTH MEMBERS OF FIRE BOARD

Commercial Club Asks That West Duluth be Represented.

The Banquet Committee Names Date for the Annual Spread.

At the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last evening, the principal business transacted was the adoption of a resolution requesting Mayor Cullum to appoint a West Duluth man to fill the first vacancy which occurs in the board of fire commissioners. As the western end of the city is forging ahead, and is becoming the manufacturing center, the club believes it should be represented upon the board.

David Saug, chairman of the banquet committee, reported that Thursday, March 21, had been selected as the date for the annual celebration, which will be held in Wade's hall. The Ladies' Aid society of the Plymouth Congregational church will be in charge of the preparation of the eatables. M. M. Clark has been chosen by the committee to act as toastmaster.

The meeting last evening was very well attended and thirty new members were added to the membership of the club. The program, which had been prepared by the entertainment committee of the club, was much appreciated by the members. M. J. Ellstrahl gave a solo, after which Rev. Roderick J. Money delivered an address on "Washington and His Life." Alfred J. Coutu rendered a piano selection and Ray W. Abbott sang a baritone solo. Charles Russell of Superior delivered an interesting address.

MELDAHL IS VICTOR.

Wins in Curling Contest With Scott by Small Margin.

The contest at the Western Curling rink yesterday between the six rinks, captained by Treasurer Martin Meldahl, and the six under the leadership of Secretary J. A. Scott, were unusually interesting and exciting. Meldahl's side finally won by a small margin.

To decide the contest, the rinks skipped by the secretary and treasurer played two heads and the treasurer won by two points.

At about 5 o'clock, when the afternoon games had been finished, a banquet was served by the ladies of the club, and toasts were responded to by Treasurer Meldahl, Secretary Scott, President Henry Hewitt, G. D. Macaulay, the Rev. H. W. Johnson, H. P. Martin, J. H. McFarlane, R. J. Hamilton, L. R. Clark, Dr. C. R. Keyes and G. J. Malloy.

The team work of the Cass Lake players was the feature of the game. Time and again they would carry the ball the entire length of the floor without losing it to an opponent.

The Park Rapids girls played a steady and hard game throughout. Six of their points were made in the last half. The visitors were entertained after the game by a reception and dance.

THE MASONS CELEBRATE

Thirty-Seventh Anniversary of Palestine Lodge Fittingly Observed.

Seven Hundred Members

Attend Washington's Birthday Banquet.

The presence and hearty good-fellowship of 700 loyal Masons, a most elaborate and delightful musical program prepared by Prof. Custance, a program of toasts and speeches which has seldom been equaled here, and an elaborate banquet, credit for which is due to Chief Miller, all combined to make the celebration of the thirty-seventh anniversary of the founding of Palestine lodge, No. 73, A. F. & A. M., that evening one of the most brilliant and successful social affairs ever held by the order here.

In commemoration of the birthday of Washington, decorations, speeches, and music were all of a patriotic order. The menu was handsomely printed in the national colors and "Old Glory," applied prominently on the wall, was the most eloquent of the whole. The menu was handsomely printed in the national colors and "Old Glory," applied prominently on the wall, was the most eloquent of the whole.

The program was opened by Custance's patriotic chorus, "The American Flag," which was followed by the address of welcome by Vorseful Master A. Crawford. Then followed a program of toasts, humorous and serious, which were highly appreciated by all present. Dr. E. C. Clemans took "Living in the Sunshine" for his topic and Arthur P. Cook talked on "Our Country." Rev. Kirby S. Miller delivered the most eloquent talk of the evening, and he made his tribute to George Washington, a talk to be remembered long by all present. He spoke of the great statesman, not as a hero high above all of his countrymen, but as a brother, a member of their fraternal order, and yet one to whom too much homage could not be paid.

John B. Richards and Mrs. H. M. Hoover took the topics, "Masonic Citizenship," and "Masonic Women," respectively, and were warmly applauded. A recitation by Miss Lella Sparks relating the trouble of a wife who was curious to learn the secrets of Masonry to which her husband had just been initiated, was highly appreciated.

A soprano solo, "Rosy Morn," by Miss Florence Hyland, a humorous solo, "Nantucket," by Miss Pearl Hector; the "Miserere" from The Trovatore, splendidly rendered by Miss Hyland, Leon Cooley and chorus; a solo by Leon Cooley, and finally the singing of Auld Lang Syne concluded one of the most enjoyable programs in the history of the lodge.

THE AMERICAN CHESS PLAYERS DOING WELL.

New York, Feb. 23.—Luck began to smile today on the American participants in the international cable chess match between teams representing America and Great Britain. At the close of play last night the Britishers had a lead of 2 to 2½ and the position of the several remaining players was regarded as anything but favorable. After two hours of play today, however, Bampton won his game against Ward in a brilliant finish, tying the score of 2½ to 2½. In the meantime some of the other American players had succeeded in slightly strengthening their positions.

WILL PLAY FINAL GAME

Northerns and Victorias
Will Meet for Third Time.

Winner Will be Entitled to State Hockey Championship.

What should be the best hockey game of the season is on at the curling rink this evening when the Northern Hard-ware team will stack up against the St. Paul Victorias for the third and deciding game for the championship of the state. A victory for the Northerns means that the games in the Copper country next week will be for the Western championship and the boys are going after the contest hard.

Clayton, who played right wing for the Victorias the last two games, is out with a frozen hand and Jemison of the Eagles in the Twin City league, will take his place. Saunders, the fast little cover point who smashed up the Northern's formation time and again in the last two games, and is regarded as one of the best amateurs in the game at this position, may be out of the game as he has been sick, but he said that unless the doctor absolutely forbids his coming up, he will be on hand for the contest. If he is not in condition to play Leonard of the A. A. team will fill in.

The Northerns will play their regular line-up and all the men are in the top notch of condition. The practice of the last week has put every man in fine shape and team work and goal shooting have improved considerably.

The Victorias will arrive in the city this evening at 7, so in spite of the fact that the ice is open to them as early as they want to, they will be deemed advisable to start the game at 9 o'clock as formerly, so that the St. Paul boys may have a chance to get supper and rest up a little before going on.

The teams will line up as follows:
Northern Hard-ware..... Victorias
Fenton..... Hedgman
Furnell..... (Capt.) Mortiz
C. Cummings..... Leonard
Winter..... Cook
Deetz (capt.)..... Armstrong
Cargill..... H. W. H. Clayton A. Cummings..... Jemison

LOSERS PAY FOR DINNER

Gun Club Members Hold Holiday Shoot and Banquet.

Officers for the Coming Year Are Also Elected.

Following a holiday shoot, held at the Highland grounds, the members of the Duluth Gun club held an informal banquet last evening at the Commercial club.

The members of the club selected sides, and the losing side had to pay for the dinner.

Following the dinner at the Commercial club the annual election of officers was held. George H. Post-ham was chosen president for the coming year, and F. H. Bradbury, vice president. W. J. Webb was re-elected to the position of secretary, and D. H. Abell was chosen field captain, and E. R. Galvin as lieutenant.

A. A. Farrington, the retiring president, was master of ceremonies at the banquet.

The club last evening put itself on record as favoring the abolition of the system of shooting for cash prizes or sweepstakes, and will in future do everything possible to place the sport on an amateur basis.

This action is in accordance with the stand taken by all parts of the country, and next year will probably see the sweepstakes and cash prizes eliminated from most of the shoots.

Resolutions were also passed endorsing the bill now before congress to protect migratory birds, and urging the appointment of a legislative committee to promote amicable relations between farmers and city sportsmen, and to secure the better protection of game birds and fish.

HE LOVED IN VAIN.
Tid-Bits: The two brothers had been quarreling for years, but now had returned from the colonies, and he hit it clear and eyed his brother somewhat sheepishly.

"You know I always was a quixotic sort of chap," he said, "but now I feel in love with her. Man, she's perfect. I tell you, we're all glad enough to see you, but I can't say I know your special reason for coming home."

The other drew a photograph from his pocket.

"You remember you sent me this group about five years ago?"

"Well," said his brother, "what about it?"

"This. You see this girl in the front row. As soon as I saw her photo, I fell in love with her. Man, she's perfect. Her face has been before me all my wandering life, and I determined that I would make a fortune and then come home and lay it at her feet. Yes, I know it was an old idea, but I like it. I like that, and now that I've made it, I've come to you to know who she is and where I can find her."

"My dear old fellow," said Fred, kindly, "don't take my heart; but—"

"She's married."

"So, it's not that; but it is a photo-graph of young Tom Robinson. He's a member of an amateur dramatic club, and when that was taken he was filling a gap by taking a girl's part."

LEE CREST SPEEDY ENOUGH TO BEAT WHISK BROOM AND LATTICE AT NEW ORLEANS

It may have taken Lee Crest a little longer to find how much speed he had in his heels than it did some of the other two-year-olds at New Orleans, but when he did discover that he could run he succeeded in beating

Whisk Broom, the fast fly, that began the season so well, and Lattice, another promising youngster that has been running the South since he was born. Lee Crest is sired by Gold Crest and is out of Grace Lee. He is one of the finest looking youngsters at New Orleans. Burlew & Latt took him South with them, but when they sold their horses he was bought by L. Goldstein, who may bring him back to Louisiana to race over the Eastern course.

THE SPORTING EDITOR'S SCRAPBOOK

Being a Collection of Odds and Ends of the Latest News and Comment of the Sporting World.

What They Think of Schreck. With the approaching final encounter between Mike Schreck and Ben Trimble sports are naturally interested in any dope that comes over the road on either of the fighters. Trimble, working here every night at Laughery's gym here, has been the object of a good deal of attention by local fight fans, and is fairly well known to them already, but Schreck is largely an unknown quantity.

The following dope which was called out by the announcer that Schreck is to take Schreck in hand is from the Cincinnati Enquirer and will be of interest locally.

"Speaking of heavy weights and aspirants to the title, Mike Schreck is going to take Mike Schreck under his wing, teach and train him to beat the big fellow. Mike is matched with Tommy Burns for a fight here in Nevada, and the country—not even a Nevada mining camp club—has paid no attention to it. It just seems that he is not a fighter at all, and this despite his good fight abilities."

Mike Schreck would be for him all into the hands of Jim Corbett. Corbett is the kind of man who is a fighter along, and his friends in this city sincerely hope that Schreck will be lucky enough to get Corbett to carry out his promise. Schreck has a peculiar style of his own, and as far as known, has never been employed to follow out the teachings of the dozen more great boxers who have won various times trained with him. He is awkward, but not slow. At the first glance one might imagine Schreck the most lumbering fellow that ever wore gloves, but when he gets started his movements excite the admiration of the onlookers, although you can notice nothing polished about his style or action. With Corbett showing him the finer points of the game Schreck might soon develop into a first-class boxer and, if he can be shaped up to the scientific part of the game, he will be a great asset to him, as he is very strong and husky.

Sullivan's prowess in the ring has led to a number of interesting and amusing anecdotes from the Kansas City Journal among the more interesting of the thousands of yarns about the old fighter.

"I got hit as hard as ever," said John L. Sullivan one day last week, "but I am a spry on my feet as I used to be. Sullivan has aged in appearance in the last two years and is now an old man, but his voice has lost nothing in power and his water works are as good as ever. He is still a powerful man, and still possesses traces of the wonderful physique that made him famous the world over as a pugilist. But his heavy frame encased in rolls of avoirdupois makes it necessary for him to be very careful in his movements, and in spite of the constant dissipation of his drinking and all night merry-making which has marked his life, a physician who operated upon him several years ago for strangled hernia told Sullivan that he was in otherwise perfect health."

Time was when Sullivan was wont to play the roughest pranks. He knocked a horse down one day in Boston many years ago by handing the poor animal a terrible blow on the head. But Sullivan was drunk that day and did not realize the cruelty of his act. It was nothing for him to wreck a saloon by throwing bottles and chairs through the mirrors and windows, but he always retained the damage wrought with a jovial hand. Whipping hackmen, policemen, railroad brakemen, barenders and other persons who offended the mighty Bostonian simply by the expression on their faces was a common pastime, but for all of these eccentricities Sullivan was quickly forgiven because he was the champion. He was arrested many times and was heavily fined on several occasions, but it was generally his luck to face an admiring magistrate, who let him off with a reprimand. Sullivan's last fight was with Corbett in September, 1892.

When Corbett challenged Sullivan his already carded and famous face was so manly by fighting a long draw with Peter Jackson, but that in the estimation of the Sullivan's loyal followers, did not entitle him to a match with the Boston "strong boy."

He wants to fight me, growled Sullivan when he was asked Corbett's challenge. "Well, all the training I need is a fight with you, and I shall beat his head off in a round."

What Corbett did to him the fight is a matter of ring history.

Griffith on Young Pitchers. Clark Griffith's plain Tom Robinson, baseball stories and the way he talks the stuff straight from the shoulder so that even a newspaper man's wording of it can not disguise the veteran manager's style. Griffith became reminiscent of the "Young Pitchers" was the topic he talked on to a representative of a New York paper the other day.

"Take the average youngster when he starts training," says Griffith. "The first thing he wants to do is to show the manager that he is a fast pitcher. He will take a lot of trouble to get his arm in shape and shape his arm. Cut out all the hard work, and he will be a fast pitcher. He is in the fifteen minutes that he will be asked to pitch I can pretty near tell how good he is."

Another one from Griffith is as follows: "Clark Griffith is not one of the squeezy play. The skipper of the Yankees, when he discusses his play from the viewpoint of an expert, he claims to be the originator of this so-called trick play, and this is borne out by the fact that the Yankees won more games last year by working this squeezy than any other team that tried it."

"I hit upon this play two years ago purely by accident," Griffith said. "I was on the bench looking at the game, and I saw a good batter at the bat. The pitcher poised to deliver the ball, the base runner started for the plate. Now the man at the bat wasn't paying any attention to the ball, but he was looking at the pitcher. I saw the pitcher get a hint and did dump the ball successfully. The base runner scored very easily."

"Immediately this play suggested itself to me as being a good run getter and I tried it out. It did it. It could only be worked with the right kind of batter."

"Just how successful the play has been you can see by the fact that the Yankees got away with it more than eighty times out of a hundred. Now that's a pretty good percentage, isn't it?"

"I don't care who the base runner is, but I care who the pitcher is. Chase, Keeler, and Yeager are the most reliable men for this play. All three are pretty sure runners. Sullivan, however, is not. Chase has ever failed to 'make good' when I gave the signal for the squeezy."

Hawatha a Great Sprinter. The London Post has not an overwhelming reverence for Henry Longfellow. It certainly is a shame to criticize even in the sporting columns of America's greatest poet so near his birthday, but the following clipping from the Post is rather interesting. Hawatha had Duff's skinned to death, according to the Post's figures:

"Strong of arm was Hawatha; He could shoot ten arrows upward And grant that Hawatha could shoot one Swift of foot was Hawatha; He could shoot an arrow from him And run forward with such swiftness That the arrow fell behind him."

Neglecting the resistance of the air and granting that Hawatha could shoot one arrow a second, the resolution is as follows:

"The time of flight of the arrows shot upward must have been nine seconds. Therefore the time during which the arrows were shot, being equal to the time multiplied half the value of the constant of gravity, was 14 feet a second."

Now, in shooting an arrow from him, Hawatha would fly at an angle of 45 degrees, and by a simple trigonometrical calculation we therefore arrive at the fact that the horizontal velocity of the arrow would be rather less than 14 feet a second, or bench duty. George Edward is always looking for a chance to turn a trick.

During a game in New York last summer "Rube" pulled out a trick that helped his barbarian friend, "Chief" Bender, out of a tight hole and escaped the eagle eye of the arbitrator. "Rube" Schreck, the clever catcher and "Rube" Edgren, let the story out of the bag, or "Rube" trick might still be a dark memory.

With the score standing 3 to 2 in favor of Philadelphia, New York filled the bases in the last half of the ninth after two men were down. The game was played in a drizzle and the grass was quite wet. Two strikes and three balls were on the batter when he sent a hard foul down the left field foul line. Waddell was warning up in the extreme left field corner with Mike Powers, and when he saw the ball coming his way his mind acted quicker than it ever did when "Rube" was away. If all the crowd in the East of Ohio had fielded the ball, but instead of returning the wet one to Bender, he sent it dry one, which he had been using in his workout. The dry ball steamed and the crowd roared. The ball went squarely over the pan. The New York batter took a healthy swing at it and the game was over. A tie score, but "Rube" switch saved the day.

College Athletics. Baseball and rowing may have the center of the stage among college men. The squads are getting thinned down and the candidates for the national nine are working like Trojans to get themselves in shape and to make the team.

All the colleges which will be represented in the Big Regatta in June are now down to their oars. The list of them to begin was Syracuse.

Cornell has a large squad at hand to prepare for the race with Wisconsin against his son's crew and for the Big Regatta. No complaint has been heard yet, either regarding the number or quality of the crew. At Wisconsin, also, all is peace, for in response to the shout for crew men eighty-five husky freshmen are satisfied, apparently for domestic reasons, and have been at work for some time past.

Cornell raises a little while that the variety boat has lost three good men. E. T. Ford (time and No. 2), and W. F. Lee, No. 6, but hopes to find their substitutes some time between now and June. The crew squad has been practicing in the army ever since the training has got well under way with the eyes of "Old Man" Courtney over all. Columbia is relatively at the lack of the candidates for the crew, only about thirty men having been named.

Cobalt, February 18th, 1907.
 Messrs. Cone Bros., Financial Agents, Cobalt Portage Mines, Limited, Chicago.

Gentlemen—I have just completed inspection of the Cobalt Portage Mines' property and find that the work is being done in a very thorough and first-class way. We are now working at a depth of about 70 feet and the calcite silver bearing vein has widened from a width of 1 and 1/4 inches on the surface to 8 inches in width at this level, and has increased in value from about sixty ounces of silver per ton on the surface to about $400 or $500 at the present depth.

At about 60 feet from the present working we have uncovered another part of the vein while leveling off the ground for the purpose of improving the road and have found here calcite silver bearing vein on the surface 6 inches wide, and the assay from this surface exposure shows 407.1 ounces of silver to the ton. Native silver can be seen all through the main calcite vein. Ore is now being taken out and stacked up ready for shipment at any time, and Mr. Wallingford, the expert miner in charge of the development work, tells me we can confidently expect to ship carloads of ore by the first of April next, which will run in the neighborhood of twenty or thirty thousand dollars to the carload. Furthermore, if the smelter is established previous to that time which will extract the by-products, i. e., cobalt, gold, nickel, copper, etc., we will immediately begin shipment.

Sincerely yours,

President.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY.

The time to buy Cobalt stocks is now, when prices are low and before the season opens in the spring and shipments of ore are made. Once the returns from the smelter are received, COBALT PORTAGE MINES, LTD., stock will be hard to obtain at any price. When dividend payments are started they should be both large and permanent.

THE MISTAKEN QUEEN.
 Wrackshaw Todd, the English novelist, declared as a result of his recent American tour, that the English workingman was far better paid and far better treated than the American, says the Los Angeles Times.

At a dinner given in his honor in New York, Mr. Todd was taken to task for that statement. But he defended it stoutly. He claimed that $1 a day was better pay in England than $1.50 in America, for the reason that $1 in his country would purchase nearly twice as much as in the United States.

"However," he said, "it may be mistaken. We are all liable to mistakes—even kings and queens. When I was working in the Manchester cotton mills, the queen visited Manchester and the queen visited Manchester."

ter, and one thing she did was to go over a certain convent there. In every department she visited, the Sisters made profound curtsies. This annoyed the queen, and she said reproachfully to her guide:

"You emphatically that I wished to be treated quite as an ordinary curtsies."

"Your wishes, madam, have been obeyed," the Mother replied. "The reverence shown by the Sisters is not intended for your queen, but for me, their superior."

RAILROAD BILL IS AMENDED

Making a Much Stronger Measure Governing Hours of Employees.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Representative Dabell from the committee on rules reported to the house today a rule taking up and making of highest privilege the house substitute for the La Follette 15-hour railroad employees bill. The bill as reported by the committee on rules was amended in several places, the most important of which is the elimination of the word "knowingly" wherever it occurs, which has the effect of relieving the railroads of responsibility for overwork unless it is permitted or required by the knowledge of railroad management that an employee has worked overtime. Another amendment strikes out the provisions in the section regulating employment which read: "Prior to said 24-hour period such employee had at least eight consecutive hours of duty and during said period of twenty-four hours following had at least six consecutive hours of duty."

It also eliminated the requirement that district attorneys shall act under the direction of the attorney general in bringing proceedings against railroad companies and their representatives for violation of the law and places the entire responsibility with the district attorney, who is instructed to proceed upon "attorney's belief" and "finality of reasonable judgment," as the house substitute provides.

Mr. Dabell believed the bill very much stronger than the La Follette bill, for the bill now covers mail trains and excursion trains which he said were wholly left out of the La Follette bill.

Mr. Williams of Mississippi, the minority leader, congratulated the Republicans and the country for the amendments made by the rule. He said the Republicans had seen a new light and they were now enacting legislation which the Democrats had stood for from the beginning.

Mr. Bach of Wisconsin, the author of the bill, said he believed the bill would meet with cordial support of the president, Mr. Bailett of Georgia, said that the character of the bill was the spirit of the Republican was traceable only to the "big stick," and he asserted that the character of the bill had been due to the attitude of the Democratic members.

The resolution was adopted on a roll call by a vote of 239 yeas, none nays.

The speaker immediately appointed Messrs. Hepburn of Iowa, Sherman of New York, and Sherman of New York, as managers on the part of the house.

KISS BRINGS MILLIONS.

Rare Luck of Young Irishman in Australia Due to Gallantry.

Chicago Tribune: W. Arthur Byrnes of Sydney, Australia, kissed his way into a fortune. The route chosen by him was not the route of the penniless but handsome young man who weds a girl with oceans of money for the girl that Byrnes kissed not only ob- jected to his act but had no money. Her face was her fortune—and, as it proved, also the fortune of Byrnes. Perhaps it is not advisable for other young men to try the method adopted by the Sydney young man, but in Byrnes' case it worked well, after a bad start, and he came into a fortune to settle a police court fine of $300 and costs, which he considered high, even for the privilege of kissing so pretty a girl. He came into a fortune estimated at over $3,000,000, and one of the finest estates in New South Wales, besides English property. And despite the fact that the kiss she so unwillingly gave the handsome young Englishman brought him into a fortune, and the fact that he, in his new found wealth, offered to share it with her, Byrnes has refused him.

The story of the kiss that brought Byrnes his fortune is of the strangest and most romantic ever told—and it is true, because the couple of Sydney have turned over to him the fortune. Otherwise people might doubt it.

Byrnes, it seems, is the younger son of an Englishman of poor financial condition. He would have inherited part of the Irish estate, but for the fact that his own father wasted the money and he inherited what was left of the estate and all the debts, promptly got rid of the remainder, and died, where- upon young Byrnes, who had thrown away what little money he had in an extravagant and sportive university career, went out to Australia.

He did not prosper much in the new country. Handsome, talented, clever, with the blarney of his Irish an- cestors, mingled with the shrewdness of his Yorkshire mother, he led a happy-go-lucky, adventurous life in the bush country, worked as a shepherd, and for a few months in the gold camps, clerking in a store in Melbourne, wandered all over Australia, roving much, and gathering little moss, and finally landed in Sydney, almost penniless, and found work as a salesman for a small importing firm.

About this time there lived in Sydney on Newton street one Miss Elizabeth Arleigh, the daughter of a wealthy widow mother, who had come to Australia with her husband years before he died, and after his death in the gold fields had reared her son and daughter according to the way in which she had been reared in her country home in Surrey, England, after having been a responsible position and supported his mother and his pretty sister, Betty.

It also happened that fate directed the footsteps of Miss Arleigh to the place where Byrnes was working. He noticed her, he fell madly in love with her at first sight. He sought to be introduced to her, but Miss Arleigh's intentions were good is certain, but fate furthermore ordained that one afternoon while Byrnes was standing particularly merry because he had sold a big bill of goods, and perhaps because he had just won a big sum of money, he saw Miss Arleigh walking toward her home.

The combination of a reckless Irishman in love and in wine proved too much for Byrnes. He followed her, and when she was alone he kissed her.

After that, the story of the $3,000,000 kiss became public property. The first thing that Byrnes did after receiving the first advance from his solicitors was to call on Miss Arleigh and plead with her to share with him the fortune she had had the misfortune to bring him.

And she, being contrary, like more of her sex, refused. But before Byrnes started for England a fortnight ago he confided in some of his friends that he intended to return to Sydney—and the as long as the $3,000,000 lasted, to stand ready to pay $300 each for all the kisses Miss Arleigh would give him.

You can transmute the "baser metal," and many other things into gold by the publicity process.

HUMORS OF THE "TERROR."
 Amid the grisly horrors of the Russian "terror" humorous incidents have not been wanting, says the Baltimore Sun, and criminals have not scrupled to play in a way that affords amusement to the distance, however real the danger seemed to the victims. The following stories related by a St. Petersburg correspondent show:

As a passenger was waiting for his train at a station on the line between St. Petersburg and Moscow two strangers came up to him, showed their hands into his pockets, told him not to move, as they had just placed a bomb there and then vanished as suddenly as they had appeared.

The passenger was frightened out of his wits and screamed aloud, begging everybody almost with tears in his eyes, not to come near him, as there was a bomb in his pocket which would explode if anybody touched him. It was a very long time before he could be persuaded to allow anyone to look carefully into his pockets, and when this was done only some trivial contents were found, but the pocket-book containing several thousand rubles was gone.

Entering a tobacconist's shop at Kher son a few men placed a big "bomb" on the counter and demanded money or they would blow the whole place to pieces. The shopkeeper was terrified into helplessness, and he had just placed a bomb there and then vanished as suddenly as they had appeared.

A merchant was quietly drinking his tea at a railway station at Smolensk when a voice behind him suddenly called out in commanding tones, "Hands up!" The merchant jumped up in a fright, and when he saw before him a middle-aged man with a bright face and full smile. The merchant immediately raised his hand and struck him on the head with his fist with such force that the unfortunate man fell down dead.

Another misadventure occurred. The stranger had taken the merchant for an old chum and wanted to play off a joke on him, while the merchant took him for a robber.

It happened that almost a year before Byrnes kissed Miss Arleigh there died in Montkown, England, one George Lewes Dent, an extremely wealthy man, whose fortune was made in Australia. He had gone out to Melbourne in the early days, accumulated a fortune, and when he had no need of it, had inherited the family estates in England.

Little was known of him in England until he died. It was known that years after receiving his inheritance he had returned to his home in Montkown and lived there a year, returning to Australia, and then, after two years, coming back to England, where he died of pneumonia.

It was had been supposed that he had a family in Australia, but when he died it was discovered that he had no relative closer than the son of his younger sister. That sister, it was known, had married a man named Byrnes, but she and her husband were dead, the estate closed up, and the younger son had been missing for LATEST NEWS:—American-Saginaw, Butte & London, Keweenaw and Warren are especially strong at closing prices. The excellent buying of American-Saginaw for the last week culminated in good general buying, advancing the price to $18, with an upward tendency. Warren is in demand from Blaine investors and Keweenaw is in a general demand with very light offerings. It seems to me that ruling prices are sufficiently low to warrant a good advance. The copper market is in a strong position. Earnings of the big copper producers are large. Monetary conditions are improving, in fact, there is no visible reason why prices should not rally early next week.

In addition to the "Iron Cap" group of claims in the Globe Camp, the National Mining Ex. Co. has secured the Copper Peak property, consisting of 23 claims one and one-half miles from Florence, the Copper Ridge property consisting of ten full claims adjoining the Copper Peak on the west, and the New Era property, consisting of six full claims showing two main lodes, running the length of the claims and a cross fault intersecting them. The Globe Camp has been run into the mountain about 140 feet, following a lead. This lead developed into a three-foot sulphide vein carrying 8 per cent copper and heavy iron contents. A small shaft has been sunk about 40 feet at the intersection of the different lodes, all the way in ore, showing even a higher per cent of copper.

The property is owned by the National Mining Ex. Co., and a permanent working shaft will be started in January, at a point where the ore from all the lodes can be handled to advantage. This property will undoubtedly be shipping ore within four months from Jan. 1, 1907.

Affairs of Camp in Good Shape---Places of Men Discharged Are Taken by Others---Work at the Warren.

Since last week, the shaft is to be connected with the Biesbe-Naco Water Company's mains by a pipe line 3,000 feet in length, which will be pushed by steam. The boiler and hoist are being moved by a cable to the shaft to sink to the 1,000-foot level is water. The company has been here several days and is expected back again soon.

The latest development company in Douglas is Douglas Development, Douglas people. The capital stock is $100,000, and the par value of $2.

The company is formed for the purpose of developing properties which it acquires from time to time.

The company has secured two large groups in Bisbee, two in Douglas, and one in one of which joins the Manhattan, in the Monte Vista district and one in the Tabacoqui district, the last three being in the Mexican territory.

The company has two other properties under contract.

A deal is pending whereby the Mount-distance on Blisbee in Tombstone, may be taken over and operated by a group of Pittsburgh capitalists, who are anxious to get control of the company, in order to get control of the company, most of the stock of which is held by local people.

The Mountain View Development Company was organized under the laws of the territory of Arizona more than a year ago with a capitalization of $1,000,000; divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1. A large portion of the stock went to the original owners of the property, and the trans-

Output Now About 12,000 Tons Daily—Little Mina Going Deeper—Butte & Bradley Preparing for Work.

The Little Mina is a good mine, but has yielded a lot of good copper ore, even at the present depth. The Little Mina has yielded 200 tons of copper ore, and has yielded a lot more. When the vein opened at the 1,000, it is likely that the mine will be resumed and another 200 feet added.

The Butte & London has been averaging eighty feet per month in shaft sinking and has offered the best terms for a long time. The additional foot made each month. The company already pays its men $50 a day, but hopes by the bonus plan to increase the rate of sinking, but to reduce the cost per foot.

The Ida-Montana Development company, composed chiefly of Michigan men, has been organized by the Butte & London company. The reorganization is expected to be on a basis of a capitalization of $1,000,000. The total value of which will be $5 per share.

ties of the Butte and Ely, both of which are in zone S114 to the west of the same belt are the Bunker Hill, Alpha, Gloux and Morris workings which are in zone S115. The Butte and Pilot Knob is the Veteran, at present the most westerly development in the district. The area between the 700 to 750 feet, over 100 feet of drifting in any of the properties mentioned makes it seem unlikely that any ore exists here on a relatively continuous basis. The area is a tectonic ore body, which it will take time to work out.

In a general way, the zone S114 is the result of the Ely copper belt as approximately twelve miles east and west over four miles north and south. The zone S115 is a continuation of this area contains commercial ore, while it now seems probable that the zone S116 is a continuation of the zone S115. The zone S117 is located in the best portion of the zone now and important developments are being made in the zone S118. At present the town of Ely is overlooking, and as soon as

The Cleveland Cliffs company in the same district. The ore is of better grade than that mined at the older and shallower workings of the same company. Whenever hematite ores are mined, it is well understood that it is necessary to strip the surface of the ground under which the ore is located. As former Commissioner of the G. A. Newett pointed out, in the case of mining settlements of the overburden is left to follow. It may not take place in a regular manner, but eventually it is inevitable. No matter how careful a system of mining is followed, the pillars of support are left or whether the pillars are worked-out rooms is made as perfect as possible, there is going to be a disturbance. The disturbance, as it takes place, places heights, water, and gas mains are apt to be disturbed. The disturbance now is connected with a settling of the ground. The Jones & Laughlin company's new mine. It has taken away a portion of the roadway.

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 25.—The story of the McKinley and the honest gold property is of somewhat unusual interest, especially illustrating what perseverance and determination can accomplish in the mining field. For nine years past Mr. McKinley has been quietly at work on the McKinley property, and has been steadily increasing the size of his holdings from Idaho City, and which gave evidence from the time of his first acquaintance with it of being richly mineralized. He has been steadily pushing forward the development work, improving up every portion of the claim, and has been steadily increasing the size of his holdings. self, will be making a record for itself among the successful producing mines of the world.

At the More Creek summit, twenty miles from the city of Butte, the first of gold shown.

As this range furnishes water for the great placer fields of the country, the water of this class of gold mining is now fully assured.

There is everything in readiness for commerce piping as soon as water starts.

At the More Creek, the Butte and Idaho counties, where there are extensive placer fields, the miners have just uncovered gold bearing quartz veins, their working is a double advantage.

Owing to lack of motive power and lack of a road to the More Creek d'Ale's districts are storing the rich ore for future shipment to smelters.

Of those mines that the railroads were unable to develop.

The Consolidated Copper company, which owns a large number of mines in the More Creek district, has an estimated capitalization of $5,000,000, has surveyed the More Creek district to Gilman Short Line.

The Montana branch of the company is the purpose to the More Creek district.

More Creek, Copper Queen and the mines of the company. The manager of the company says that the sooner the completion of the road is up and that the More Creek district will permit.

The owners of the More Creek district are jubilant over the rapid development of the property. It is on the More Creek district, the More Creek district with that mine. At the depth of 35 feet the ore runs 42.50 per ton, and the More Creek district is 102.50 per ton.

The many Duluth friends of Miss Rena Vivienne will be interested in knowing that she has recovered from the severe illness which prevented her appearance in Duluth, and that she sang the role of "Mme. of people and the following brief explanation may be of interest. An etching is a design fixed on metal by the action of acid. The art of etching consists in the first place, in drawing with a point, or needle, upon a metal plate, which is perfectly polished, and covered with a layer of varnish foreground, blackened by smoke, and secondly, in exposing the plate when the drawing is printed to the action of nitric acid. The acid, which does not affect fatty substances, but corrodes metal, eats into the lines which have been laid bare by the needle and thus the drawing is bitten in. The varnish is then removed, and the design is engraved, as it were, on the plate.

Mystery of Rich Crown. Grand Rapids Press: The traveler returning from far lands tells strange tales of the wonderful crowns of their monarchs—of their priceless wealth in jewels that make them the richest men in the world. The stay-at-home American never sees any of these. In fact, a crown is merely a favorite myth among the pictorial artists. The modern, matter of fact potentate is well known to prefer a pebbled hat, and the few state occasions are much dreaded by the "uneasy head that wears a crown." One can easily realize that a headpiece biting into a tender forehead with a weight of several pounds, is not a popular decoration, even though it be priceless.

The circle, a heavy band of solid gold, is ornamented about its circumference with the cherubim are set stars of furnished gold, dividing the circle into twelve parts. Supported by a circular base, the heads of the cherubs is a circular rod, which bears twelve curls, three-branched arms, alternately made up of two flowers with a cross and a cross and a flower. These carry all the jewels of the crown and the effect of the blazing stones against the dull gold is brilliantly beautiful and the bright stars on the piece heighten the effect. The original rough sketches provide for a headpiece, the crown, formed of three semicircular plates and to be surmounted with a cross bearing the figure of a saint. These plates were to be ornamented with many symbols figures and engraving, but before the design was finished, the stranger ordered the piece to be finished without the headpiece, with provision for its addition, if desired.

Flower Costumes of Paper Are Cheaply Made at Home.

Delicate flower costumes for children's parties are in great favor this winter because such fascinating models in imitation of roses, etc., can be inexpensively made at home from delicate shades of crepe and tissue paper. These fancy dresses have another advantage besides cheapness to attract the home sewer, for even the most elaborate pattern can be easily made with a few hours' work for the cutting, fitting and subsequent putting together are not as difficult as similar labor on cloth.

A rose frock for a small girl of 6 or 8 years of age may be effectively made like the illustration by fashioning the short skirt of flower like petals in dark red, light pink or white, making the waist of green to simulate the corolla. It should be crepe paper, and must fit tight to the body. As a finish for the neck, one or two rows of small petals hangs full from the waist. At the bottom there is a border of large poppies made of red tissue paper petals, with the yellow seed like centers that give a decidedly natural appearance to this entire frock.

Like the skirt, the waist is green and accented with a border of large poppies that is worn directly on the front of the little gown. This flower should be large enough to reach from the low cut neck of the waist half way down the skirt to the poppy border at the edge.

Small green crepe paper puffs will do for the sleeves and a large poppy should make an effective hat for a little girl and will be particularly becoming if she has dark hair and eyes.

Rest Will Prevent Wrinkles and Save Many Doctors' Bills

By MARGARET MINTER.

Learn how to rest, you women who would take the best care of yourselves at the least time and trouble. A thorough rest of even half an hour will do more than the average woman has any idea of toward warding off doctor's bills and illness, not to mention that it will keep her looking young after years are against her.

But rest is not simply dropping down in a chair or even throwing one's self down on a lounge, dozed and frocked. Not at all. There is not even muscular relaxation in this, and practically no nervous relief. To be refreshed, one must live up to it, body and mind, make a business of it, figuratively speaking. It may seem a nuisance, but when did one ever have anything worth while without working for it?

There is nothing in the world to equal taking off one's things and getting into bed doing it quite as though it were bedtime. And yet, I shouldn't say there is nothing to equal that; there is just a little better, and that is taking a hot bath first. Try it, ye skeptics! One of the best known society women in New York who looks scarcely older than her daughter who has been out for two seasons, attributes her youth almost solely to the fact that every afternoon or early evening of her life, before dinner, she takes a hot bath and goes to bed, sometimes for not more than ten minutes.

To take a hot bath and go out immediately afterward will seem to many persons to be the height of imprudence, but it is not, really. A quick rub with alcohol will close the pores and unless one is very careless in dressing there will be no exposure to cold. Of course, when you come down to it, it is like anything else; it may be abused and be injurious; properly managed it is a panacea.

The theory of the treatment is very simple. That fatigue reduces the strength and vitality, making one susceptible to cold and illness, that under ordinary conditions would be harmless. As to the effect upon the complexion, resting the nerves relaxes the muscles of the face and the result is smoothness and freshness when otherwise there is a drawn look.

If ever there is a time of the year when demand is made upon a woman's physical strength it is when business occupies the working woman day by day, and in the evening she has her social diversions. A woman who belongs to the "leisure" class is work-

Steam Cookers Are Economical.

By EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

Dear Mrs. Telford:

Do you approve of food cooked in a steam cooker and would the use of one prove economical where gas is the fuel? Can slow cooking on a gas range be secured through the use of a steam cooker on a range where there is no simmer?

Do you think the high priced ones, made of heavy brass, tin, copper water tank, etc., are relatively worth more than the inexpensive, common tin ones?

Your reply will be appreciated by one who is anxious to make the experiment, but who cannot afford the less expensive ones.

A steam cooker is an excellent thing where a woman does her own housework. With a careless maid, the amount of fuel consumed is apt to be out of all proportion to the benefits that might accrue. For a small family the greatest use of a steam cooker is a good thing, and my experience has been that the steamers spend the most of their time set out of the way on a top shelf. In a large family where while there were no big, heavy cooking utensils to lift or find storage for.

Mayonnaise Dressing.
Dear Mrs. Telford:
Will you please give me a recipe for mayonnaise dressing? All those I have tried are much thinner than I want. I do not want it to "run" at all. I want it about as thick as the regulation filling for cream puffs.

MRS. E. T. Y.
Your trouble, I think, is poor olive oil or else the ingredients and egg beater used in making the mayonnaise were not cold. With pure olive oil, not an admixture of cottonseed or peanut oil, mayonnaise made in this way is invariably thick and absolutely perfect.

Before beginning the mayonnaise, set a pint bowl and the egg beater in the ice box to get chilled. Have two fresh eggs and a cup of olive oil as cold as possible. Put into the bowl a half teaspoonful (scant) salt, a little less sugar and a salt spoonful paprika or white pepper. If you like a mustard flavor, add a salt spoonful mustard. Break two eggs, whites and yolks separate. Put the yolks in the bowl with the condiments and begin beating with a fork or Dover egg beater. I use the latter. In a moment or two begin adding the olive oil at first very slowly, beating in but a few drops at a time. After a little, you can add by the spoonful. An easy way is to have the oil in a bottle or small pitcher. It pours more ready than from a cup. As fast as the oil is taken up with the egg, add more, increasing the amount. In five minutes, with continuous beating, the egg and oil will blend, stiffen and puff until your bowl is half filled. When nearly all the oil is in, add two tablespoonfuls lemon juice or vinegar and continue the beating. Tarragon vinegar gives a delightful flavor to mayonnaise. When all the oil has been added, put another tablespoonful of vinegar or even a little more if you like it quite acid. More oil may also be added if desired, some recipes calling for a full pint. The two eggs will carry that amount of oil, but I seldom use more than a cupful. From start to finish your mayonnaise should not take more than fifteen minutes in the making, and when you get the knack of it may be made in less time. The tiniest bit of garlic or a "touch" of mace is sometimes added to a mayonnaise, but most people prefer it "straight."

A cooked salad dressing made with butter is also delicious, though sometimes erroneously called so.

Souffle Pudding.
Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a stew pan, then stir in a tablespoonful of flour and a heaping one of sugar. Mix well together. Beat the yolks of three eggs to a thick cream with half a teaspoonful of vanilla to flavor and stir into the paste a little at a time. Whip the whites of four eggs as stiff as possible, adding to them a small pinch of salt. Fold lightly into the pudding, then pour at once into a buttered form. Set in a saucepan of boiling water, reaching about half way up the tin, which should be placed on a trivet. Cover close and let the pudding, steam very gently for twenty minutes without uncovering. By this time it should be set in the middle, and firm enough to turn out. Serve with any sauce desired.

Cream Sauce.
Bring one cup rich milk or cream slowly to a boil in the double boiler. When it reaches the boiling point add sugar to sweeten, then pour over the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs in a bowl. Flavor with vanilla.

Balsin Cake.
Three cups bread dough when risen light, add one cup butter, three scant cups sugar, one cup raisins or currants, three eggs, a nutmeg grated, one teaspoonful soda and two cream of tartar with a wine glass of coffee. Let the batter rise again, stir well, pour into buttered tins and when light, bake in a coolish oven, gradually increasing the heat.

SURE OF HIS SKILL.
Upon Sinclair, in an address as a vegetarian, banquets, attacked the trusts. "The trusts' enormity is amazing," he said. "They commit a sin with as virtuous an air as you or I would do a piece of charity; and no getting around them, no leading them off. They are like old Elphabiet Hoskins."

Elphabiet Hoskins was one of the old residents of the Head of Sasparas, a small Maryland village. He was light-skinned, thin, and just then he heard cautious footsteps. He looked up and there was old Elphabiet Hoskins eyeing the mound of fish gloatingly.

"The stocker gave a grunt of vexation. Then he selected a couple of fish and extended them to the old man."

"Elphabiet," said the stocker, "I got to leave this pile of fish out here over night. Now, if I give you these two fine fellows, will you promise not to steal one of the others?"

"Elphabiet" looked at the two fish in the stocker's hand. Then he looked at the mound of fish underneath the blanket.

"That's a fair offer, Mr. Smith," he said slowly. "But, well—I dunno. I think I can better."

WHEN IT'S WICKED.
Surg. Gen. R. M. O'Reilly was talking about the abolition of the army canteen, a consequence of which, he holds, intemperance has increased among soldiers.

"The canteen," he said, "was only harmful when it was badly administered. You know the dancin' boys."

"A young man of sober views said to a 'pretty girl':

"Do you think dancin' is wicked?"

"Yes," said she, "if one dances as badly as I do."

BLANKETS OF PAPER.
London Leader: The newest effort to relieve the misery in these cold days is the paper blanket.

Messrs. Spicer & Sons, the paper makers of Upper Thames street, are placing on the market a hygienic paper blanket—the real thing—which bears the name of "Perfick" blanket.

Made of rough-surfaced stout paper, the color of ordinary woolen blankets, the new blanket is claimed to allow a free and healthy circulation of air, and affords the maximum of warmth.

"Brown paper blankets were sold some time ago," said Mr. Howard Spicer, but they were not a success. Impermeable to air, they were unhealthy and there was also a distinct odor of the paper perceptible where they were used.

"The new blanket, however, is light, odorless and warm—yet well ventilated. Sandwiched between two woolen blankets and your counterpane, and you will be as warm as if you had three ordinary woolen blankets, with an added down quilt on top."

Small boys' suits for spring wear are natty in appearance and comfortable for daily use because they are made of the ever popular Russian blouse, and the proverbial sailor suit, modified in length and fullness of the jackets.

In plain dark blue serge, with loose or tight fitting trousers, the Russian suits will be much worn during the early months of the coming season. These model costumes are simpler, though more dressy than the sailor

PLEDGE TO HIGHWAYMAN.
London Evening Standard: The fourth Earl Stanhope, when on his homeward way late one dark night, was held up by the most gentlemanly of highwaymen, who proffered his request for money or the nobleman's life in quite the nicest way. It happened that Lord Stanhope had not any money with him and was disinclined to yield the alternative.

"Your watch, then," suggested the gentleman at the opposite end of the pistol. That watch, the earl explained, was dear to him. He valued it at a hundred guineas, and would not surrender it. "What I will do," he said, "is to bring and deposit in this tree the worth of the watch in money, and you can call and get it tomorrow night."

"Done, my lord," said the highwayman.

The law knew nothing about this arrangement and the earl did as he had promised. He placed the hundred guineas where the highwayman might, at his leisure, collect it. And there, so far as he knew, the matter ended.

Years afterwards he attended a great banquet in the city, and found himself pleasantly entertained by an extremely well known man whose signature was good for a sum in several figures. Next day came to Lord Stanhope a letter inclosing the sum of 100 guineas. Accompanying it was a note begging his acceptance of a loan granted some years previously to the man who now forwarded it.

Tat loan said the letter, had enabled the sender to gain a new start in life, to make a fortune and to renew acquaintance at dinner on the previous night with his lordship. The city magnate and the highwayman of earlier days were one and the same.

HOG HANGED FOR MURDER.
Chicago Examiner: Ancient strange cases, a lawyer said that a hog had been tried for murder, convicted and hung.

"At Clamont-Avin, in France," he said, "a huge hog killed and ate a child. The people, horror-stricken, treated the hog as they would have treated a human being. They tried it."

"He took down a book bound in gray cloth," he said, "the original of which is kept in the National Museum of France. It is dated June 14, 1904, and it reads:

"We, the jury, in detestation and horror of this crime and in order to make an example, and to satisfy justice, have declared, judged, sentenced, pronounced and appointed that the said hog, now detained in the abbey as a prisoner, shall, by the executioner, be hung and strangled on a gibbet, near the gallows, which now stands within the jurisdiction of the monk, in witness whereof we have sealed this present with our seals."

PLAYS and PLAYS of the LYCEUM

BIJOU. THE LYCEUM. METRO. POLITAN. BURLESQUE.

AT THE LYCEUM

"The District Leader" on Monday Night, With "The Little Duchess," Tuesday and Wednesday, and Howard Hall, in "The Millionaire Detective," Friday and Saturday.

"The Millionaire Detective," by Charles E. Blaney and Howard Hall, seems to deserve the description given it of "a play of frenzied finance." It is a melodrama with merits far above the ordinary. A fascinating plot, exciting episode, and a modicum of "sensations," arranged without recourse to the hackneyed devices too often seen in melodrama.

The plot deals with speculations on Wall street and depicts the efforts of a "Queen of Frenzied Finance" and a firm of rascally brokers, to ruin the Gotham National bank and corner the market. There schemes are frustrated by Robert Rosa, a Wall street broker, sometimes as his true self, more often disguised as Sir Robert Bancroft, an Englishman. A murder scene in a broker's office and a device by which the murdered man, with the aid of electricity, is made to rise from a couch and point to his accusers are thrilling episodes. The play is full of surprises and incidents of thrilling and unexpected characters crowd in on each other. Comedy of the bright and sparkling kind has been sprinkled through the action, in generous portions. Howard Hall appears in the title role, one of the most striking parts in which he has been cast in many seasons. The part is that of an athletic young man of wealth who takes it upon himself to solve certain mysteries which come within his ken. He is successful in this, and the manner in which he accomplishes it is one of the features of the play that make it distinct from others of its kind.

It will be seen Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee.

"THE LITTLE DUCHESS."

Countess Hatzfeldt Will Appear in the Anna Held Success.

Those who were captivated by charming Countess Olga von Hatzfeldt, in the leading feminine role of "The Stories," three years ago, will look forward with pleasure to her reappearance at the Lyceum theater next Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the stellar role of "The Little Duchess," the musical comedy success which lightened the fame of Anna Held. This will be the first appearance here of Countess von Hatzfeldt as a star, and all the more interesting to the admirers she won before, on that account. Milton and Sargent Aborn, her managers, bought Anna Held's splendid production of "The Little Duchess," intact, and it is said that they have surrounded Countess von Hatzfeldt with one of the best musical comedy organizations of the season, numbering fifty people. Of this attraction the Portland, Or., Tele gram says:

"The Little Duchess," which opened at the Lyceum theater last night for a run of four nights, is one of the most pleasing and entertaining musical comedies that has been offered to the local boards this season. The text of a good show is the appreciation of the audience, and applying this rule, the bill at the Lyceum is a top-liner. The Countess von Hatzfeldt, in the title role, is particularly well-suited to the part. Her vivacity and winning manner, place and hold her audience. She cannot be said to possess a glorious voice, but it is sweet, and coupled with her acting, makes a hit with her audience. When Anna Held appeared here in "The Little Duchess," the show was merely a mass of coloring, posing and stage effects. Miss Held, as is well known, is not a singer, and the musical end of the performance was a secondary consideration. The Countess von Hatzfeldt can sing very well, and she has gathered about her a company that is able to handle the music in good style."

"THE DISTRICT LEADER."

Musical Play is Filled With Many Comedy Situations.

"The District Leader" is a musical play full of comedy situations, but the sort of comedy which is free from the slap stick buffoonery type so often resorted to in most "comic operas." It is a dignified, high-class fun which whets the appetite of the auditor for the feast of the disjuncted arrangement of practical jokes. The music is the sort that gratifies the world weary and is happily wedded to the rhythmic buoyant lyrics. Miss Mabel Barrison, who heads the cast, is heralded by the press agent as "an edition de luxe of comedienne and a welcome acquisition of sardony." Here is an extract from the same gentleman's pen: "The feminine contingent is composed of fresh handsome wardrobes, wrought in gold bullion, silks and velvets, but in a color scheme so much modulated as to be a part and parcel of the overall scenic investiture. The production is further enhanced by a display of vocal and instrumental gymnastics that would make an anchorite forget his solitude. The story itself runs the whole gamut of human passion and gives flaming memories of mellifluous harmonies in a radiance of sunset colors."

"The District Leader" with both Miss Barrison and Mr. Howard in the cast will make its initial appearance here Monday at the Lyceum for one performance.

BLANCHE WALSH

Will Appear in "The Straight Road" March 4 and 5.

There are not many who see Blanche Walsh in her wonderful characterization of Moll O'Hara, in Clyde Fitch's play, "The Straight Road," who know that the character was drawn by Mr. Fitch from life. This, however, is a fact, and the real life of Moll O'Hara has been the stage presentation of herself on several occasions. She is no longer young, and the crisis in her life came many years ago. Twenty years ago this gray-haired lady was Mary Mulvihill of Houston street; a beautiful woman of 25, with a strong leaning toward salon side doors and the excitement that strong drink brings. Today she lives with her husband and two children on the western edge of Harlem, contented and happy.

Her life is depicted plainly enough in "The Straight Road." She was redeemed by a mission worker. She fell from grace and was saved again to a life of happiness. Her story is well known in the missions of the East side, and she knew that Mr. Fitch had written of her. After seeing the play she had something to say concerning it, and Miss Walsh's interpretation, in a quiet kindly way.

"When I think of the big heart Miss Walsh has, I wonder at her being able to walk on that stage just as though she had come from Love's Houston street. She is just as I knew them to be, just as must have been, without realizing it—loud and coarse and brutal, ready for any kind of trouble at any minute, day or night, but with some of the best and kindest of her that makes her all cold and tremble at special moments. Now, with Moll O'Hara in 'The Straight Road,' it comes at the touch of a crippled boy, who comes right to me, but it may be for all that, I have been through it all, but the crippled boy would not have affected me as the wild night that Moll did."

"But," said the listener, "you must understand home to make a play. Lines must be a little different from real life. So I see, so I see," was her reply, "but it is all so real to me there. It is like real life and not like stage play. The part that I like most is where Bill, the harp-keeper, comes in and makes a mistake; that is, that Moll should be seen at the road again. I cried there, because that is my life—just a big piece out of it. I stood up in the box all trembling, and I said over and over again, 'Believe her, Bill!' and I wanted to go right up there and tell Moll to hold on to him to put her arms around him and not to let him go. That is the way I did, and I came out all right."

You have read the papers and have seen what the critics have said about the play, "The Straight Road." Yes, I have read every line of it, and I don't like the articles much, except a few. These writers say that it is low life and that it is not to be seen. But I tell you, we have all got to live—the high and the low, the rich and the poor—being, just as well as those who live the high life, the good life, the better life. If I have money, it is so easy, too, to live the low life if I want to. I don't know where your next morning comes from."

"When you are miserable, lonely, penniless, straightforward and honest, a few drinks will let you forget everything for a time. That is, if you have not strength enough to bat with the world. I know all this because I didn't have the strength until a good woman helped me to a home and gave me the real strength, where drink had only given the false strength for a few hours and sunk me lower."

If these newspaper critics could be homesick, penniless for a single night, they would see this play all different. The "Straight Road" will be seen at the Lyceum March 4 and 5.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

Colonial Belles, With Famous Dunedin Troupe of Cyclists From New York, Will be the Attraction at the Metropolitan Next Week.

"The Colonial Belles" company, which opens a week's engagement at the Metropolitan tomorrow afternoon belongs to the new school of high class burlesque, and it is needless to say that its sponsors have spared no expense to equip the company with every factor and accessory that would make it a great show. The company numbers about forty people, the majority of them, it is claimed, being the finest specimens of the feminine type that ever sparkled behind the footlights.

Chief among its army of entertainers is Charles Robinson, a comedian of talent and versatility. Mr. Robinson has always proven a laugh creator of unlimited ability, and in his present surroundings he will shine more brightly than ever.

Charles Falke, America's greatest singing illustrator, is a popular member of the company, and others with "The Colonial Belles" are Lawrence, Ed. Ward and Marie Hick and the travesty artists; Cook and Phillips, the exploiters of an original brand of wit and humor, and Rose Carlin, the popular vocal comedienne. The performance opens with a musical farce entitled "The Baby Farm," which affords Charles Robinson and his assistants in comedy ample latitude for creating a humorous, penurious but single night, introducing the pretty girls of the chorus in a variety of beautiful costumes. After the vaudeville olio is presented, the burlesque finale entitled "Cohen, the Count," full of exhilarating fun and jingling music.

An extra feature is "The Great Vulcan," who is conceded to be the strongest man in the world. Among some of his feats is lifting a piano upon which are seated eight young women, also lifting a 1,000-pound horse and breaking trace and log chains.

Something the way of a decided novelty will also be seen in the Dunedin troupe, a company of cyclists whose business is to perform stunts in order. They will appear at each performance of the "Colonial Belles."

In addition to the matinee tomorrow, there will be matinee Tuesday, Thursday (ladies' day) and Saturday.

AT THE BIJOU

Howard Brothers, in Their Novelty Act With the Flying Banjos, Coming Next Week—The Riskeys, in Sensational Gymnastics Another Feature.

One of the best and most varied programs ever seen at the Bijou will hold forth next week. Vaudeville features will be seen in many different styles of acts.

The Howard Brothers, celebrated banjoists, presenting their latest novelty entitled "The Flying Banjos," are the only artists in the world who juggle six banjos at one time. Twenty different banjos are used in the act and are a feature in the musical line that has played with great success in every large vaudeville theater in America.

A gymnastic act that has no superior, will be performed by the Riskeys, whose feats of foot juggling and daring somersaults, are in a class by themselves.

Ida Howell, a clever singing comedienne, will be seen in a singing act. In which not a word is said, but from her entrance to the finish of her act.

A comedian of vaudeville fame will be George Lavender, who presents an original monologue that is different from the usual run of monologues. Mr. Lavender's stories and songs are his own, and he presents them in his original style.

Coleman and Mexis, the shooting wonders, are claimed to be the best marksmen in the world, and before the public. Both the lady and gentleman of the act are apparently juggle and banjoists.

Isadore Silver will render an illustrated song entitled "Without a Wedding Ring." A beautiful story picture will be seen in the moving pictures, showing the new film entitled "Reformation." It depicts the fast life of a young man, who is warned by his father against the life he leads. Leaving home, in the midst of the soldiers' return, happy reunion, and many other sympathetic and touching scenes are shown. "The In which not a word is said, but from her entrance to the finish of her act."

Matinees are given every day at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. A special school children's matinee is given every Saturday afternoon.

GOSSIP OF THE RALTO

Ellen Terry in the Dutch Play, "The Good Hope"—The English Performance of the Vienna Drama, "The Reckoning."

New York, Feb. 23.—It may be and doubtless has been objected to "The Good Hope" of Hermann Hergmann, which Miss Helen Terry puts on for her last week for us, is that it is not a play. In much the same manner the formalists once said of the work of Kipling, "It is clever, but is it art?" This remark aroused Kipling to satire, and people don't make it any more.

In a similar vein Barrie once defended the play that is not a play. He would admit, he said, that a play that really was a play had to be 25 by 42½. Yet he pleaded that it was not a criminal offense to write a piece that was only 19 by 38. "Du Barry" is a play, "Adrian" is a great play. Well, let us admit that "The Good Hope" is not a play.

Hergmann has something to show us and he has shown it clear and strong in the terms of the theater. It is not much of a story he tells us, and though it is possible to find the structural web of dramatic struggle beneath the wool of his fabric, that is not what constitutes the chief appeal of it all. Hergmann knows his Dutch fisher folk and shows them to us with great truth and great skill—their ignorance and their fears, their dumb courage and loyalty, their crude humor and their sudden despair. The atmosphere is all that. More than this, he has a fixed point of view with regard to them, and to their relation to society in general, and he makes us see them from that point of view. There is an idea in his play as well as atmosphere.

It has been said that his idea is Socialism. That may be, though the matter is open to question. The bourgeois snobbishness of the politician, the fisher folk to his own gain and to their ruin. A not headed young fisherman, whose mind has been nourished—or inflamed—by firebrand tracts, cries out against it all in the set terms of Socialism—calling for the equal division of the proceeds of labor. But here is an old salt, inmate of the sailors' home, whose doctrine is apparently that of the struggle to survive. The snack owner lives on the lives of the fishermen, he says, but the fishermen live on the fish. His simple philosophy is the philosophy of the biologist, of the evolutionist, and it is only the more clearly that because it completes the world-old tragedy of life feeding upon death with the mind of pity. For the instincts of love and charity lie at the heart of the competitive society, side by side with the instinct of fight. Even as a lad the eyes of the fish as he split and cleaned them seemed to look up with a mute appeal to him and to heaven. "We pay dear for the fish," he says. "We pay dear for the fish," but the tragedies of wind and wave on the surface of the ocean are only a counterpart of those of the life beneath it. The idea that gives form to the play and color to its atmosphere is not the narrow creed of the propagandist, but the large, the all-embracing vision of a poet.

One of the scenes, that of the third of the fourth act, has a breadth and intensity of effect which must have escaped those who found the piece un-the insurance on her. Still the stories go on, mounting by insensible gradations from fear to a horror that curdles the blood. At last a young girl cries out against it all in agony. The room is cleared, and it transpires that she is delayed their marriage until his return.

The quality of drama, it has been said, is to present character in action to the eye. But the measure of the greatness of a scene is rather what it suggests to the vision of heart and mind.

Throughout that scene one sees out beyond the miserable hut and the tor-smack Good Hope—the pious English unmeet to give it the full irony of its

a heart full of his mother's unforgiving severity and of his sweetheart's ruin the piece that makes all this live for us is not a play let us be thankful that it is not.

It is customary to say that the play derives from Ibsen, in whose "Pillars of Society" there is an incident closely resembling that of the smack owner and the death ship, but realist though

Ibsen is, he has never given us a pic-of actuality as this. The direct ancestor

The development of the Verde Grande and a number of other very promising properties in the vicinity of Jerome, including the North Verde, the Cleopatra, and the others, will significantly multiply the district during the coming months.

It was a taste of it, and it was a common experience to become stuck in these snowdrifts. It was a very unpleasant part of the starting point, where there were no dining cars, the passengers were crowded together in the day or two before relief came. Blast Furnace Slag Makes Excellent Grade of Cement

Making something out of nothing, or at least that would have been absolute waste a number of years ago, is getting to be more and more common in the United States as the new fields for profit are needed. There is much less waste in these days even in the United States, where the people are session of a blast furnace, may sometime compete with cities in the manufacture of cement, and may be a city which "makes something from nothing."

If you are selling enough goods—then your advertising in The Herald is sufficient.

One enterprise, which has found to be very profitable to its promoters in many cities of the United States is the manufacture of a high grade cement from the waste of blast furnaces. The blast furnaces as they are better known. This slag was formerly, and in many cases at the present time, is merely moved from one waste like the ashes of a coal fire.

By a certain process of putting this waste slag with a high grade lime, which was being found that a very good cement could be made. Some slag would not make good cement, but as an ordinary thing, the slag from the iron blast furnaces was the best kind of material for making cement. The cement business was first begun several years ago on a small scale, but was found to be so profitable that there are now

Puzolén is the scientific name for the cement manufactured from slag, and it is used in the manufacture of concrete. It is made by heating the slag to 1,400 degrees and 17 per cent of a high grade lime. The slag is first heated and thoroughly dried and then mixed with lime. The drying process is done in huge cylindrical towers. After the slag is thoroughly mixed, a grinding process gone through. Rotary grinders are used in this process.

This cement is said to make one of the best cements which have ever been used, and in some respects it is better than any other kinds. It is considered to be the best Portland cement, and is claimed to be equal to it in nearly every way. One defect that it has is that it takes a little longer to set than the best Portland cement.

It is said that the fact that puzzles is ground more than the ordinary cement is the reason that more time is needed for it to set and this fact also is the reason that it becomes firmer and of a more solid nature than ordinary cement. It is said that it is made from a very hard material.

In Duluth large quantities of this material were found to waste every day and it is likely to continue to do so according to the present outlook. The slag at the Zenith Paper mill is a waste product of the paper-making process and is not a by-product of the cement-making process. OUR YOUNG FOLKS PAGE Rebellion in the Nursery.

BY MAUD WALKER.

Mary and May, two little sisters, aged seven and nine, respectively, had a most ideal nursery. There were games and toys galore. Dolls, big and little, old and new; teddy bears, lions, monkeys, birds, and everything, in fact, that could help to make a nursery happy and full of play, were there.

And each day Mary and May found great delight in the big, bright nursery, playing with their due and extensive supply of toys and games. Often many little friends were invited to come in to spend an afternoon with Mary and May. Then were betide the animals and dolls, for many times they lost their heads, tails, feet and hands at the rough usage of the young and reckless guests who tossed them about as though they were nothing more than cloth, sawdust, sticks, wire and paint. How very, very horrible!

One day Mary and May had a party. It was on the birthday of one of the little maidens. For many days the toys and animals had heard the approaching event talked about by Mary and May and their mamma and governess.

On the morning of the party Mary's and May's mamma came into the nursery to arrange it for the afternoon. She poked about into all the corners, pulling out broken dolls and horses. Here was a tin soldier, sword gone and an eye blackened, and bent out of shape. There was a doll—once a French belle—with half her hair missing and a maimed and shoeless foot. In another corner was an old Noah outside his ark, which had been demolished of its roof and half its four-footed inhabitants missing. All these maimed and broken folk and animals the mamma of Mary and May took and stuck away on a big shelf in a closet, saying they were too dilapidated to be in sight during the party. Only the spike-and-span dolls, wearing their hair in order and their frocks neatly, with the animals that were whole and firm of foot, were allowed to occupy places of importance in the nursery. And these favored only allowed to remain where they might enjoy the gaiety and fun of the guests and their hostesses, but had a few extra touches put upon them by way of ribbons and faces. One lion was left on view, he being such a dandy-looking fellow that no child had ever dared to play roughly with him. But a fine old elephant was hidden away in the closet because one of his tusks was missing. The ideal. Then there was the company of soldiers in gay uniform. (Mary and May always called them the "Roman Soldiers," but they were in no particular country's uniform. Half of their number was "laid upon the shelf," decidedly the worse for war. Some of them were broken or bent helmets, while others were none at all. And many were unarmed, their weapons having been lost and broken through the rough usage of not warfare—but children.)

On the morning of the party there was a low murmur of discontent in the closet among those who were hidden away, the contents of the nursery, so to speak. The elephant was the first to grumble against the injustice of his fate. Standing bravely in their midst he addressed his companions in misery.

"Friends and fellow-troopers, I wish to raise my voice against this treatment of us. Bitterly do I rebel against our banishment from the nursery."

"Aye, aye," seconded a Roman soldier. "Here, too, Mike."

"And draw the line at being imprisoned in this fashion," said old Noah, his voice full of resentment. "I say, let's strike."

"Strike whom and where?" asked the tin soldier, feeling for his missing sword. "I'm ready on the word to do battle against those favorites who are usurping our former places. Have we one among us to lead? There can be no battle without a general to plan our medus operandi. Come, let's have a leader."

Everyone present began to feel a strong admiration for and a faith in the tin soldier. He was undoubtedly brave, and his use of Latin pronounced him to be a scholar, even though from the ranks. Yes, they all agreed mentally that he was the fellow to lead them—to be voted their "General."

Again the elephant became spokesman: "I move that we appoint the Tin Soldier our leader. Do I hear a second?"

"Seconded," cried the one famous beauty, the maimed French doll, who till now had remained a silent listener. "Thirded!" screamed a big monkey, whose fault was the need of a tail. "I cause I've lost the part of my anatomy that people all declare is not needed if I set sail as no good. Count me in on the fighting list, Mister Elephant. I'll follow the Tin Soldier, tho' it be thru paths of blood."

"Of sawdust, wood and rags," corrected the French doll. "I'm with the rebels, tho' it means war to the death."

The Tin Soldier rose quickly and said with feeling: "This hour I have been honored greatly. Do not think I shall use the rights carefully you have invested me with. Every move shall be well studied before it is made. No life shall be lost, tho' me, wantonly. We must prepare for the attack before the hour of noon, for when the sun marks the hour of two the party will begin in the place now called the Nursery, but which shall be one of the greatest battlefields in the history of our times."

"Bravo, bravo, bravo!" cried out a medley of doll, soldier and animal voices. "To the onslaught!" cried the elephant. Then, amidst great excitement and some confusion, the Tin Soldier marshaled his forces. True, they were a maimed and weaponless army, but they were a determined crowd starting to fight for their rights. Off from the high shelf they sprang, some hurrying themselves by landing wrong side up on the hard floor, but such trifling hurts did not deter them and picking themselves up hurriedly the unfortunate followed the Tin Soldier into the nursery, where tables were spread for a feast. About the wall were ranged the favorite toys, some on chairs and others sitting or standing on the carpeted floor. All wore their happiest expressions in anticipation of the festive occasion so near at hand. By a window stood the fierce old lion, looking very important. Near to him sat a Teddy bear, wearing the smile of satisfaction so common to the petted nursery toy. But he would change that smile by and by; so thought the fearless monkey as he made a huge for him in obedience to his general's order. Before leaving the closet each happy expectant had leaped to be allowed to attack in single combat his worst enemy of the nursery. The monkey had chosen the Teddy bear his bitterest enemy. The French doll had declared real shame," said Bricktop. "But it's an injustice to the teacher, to the school, to his parents. Once cheating means doing it again unless something is done to make him see the matter in its true light. Now, what am I to do, Kiddies? I think I'm the only person who knows this of Bert. I cannot make up my mind to speak of it to the teacher. That would be tattling."

The Twins were silent for several minutes. Then Bertie said: "How would it do to write a note to your teacher telling her that Bert cheated at exam, and not sign any name to it?"

"Why Bertie!" exclaimed Bricktop in astonishment. "Write an anonymous letter?"

"Go to his room this evening and talk it over in his own room," said Bertie. "I'll put myself in his place and ask him what he would think of a boy who would act so."

"Yes, do you remember the time Bert was so indignant because he found some one had robbed his trout line of the dried Bertie? Just recall that to his mind. He may say that he was robbing no one by cheating at his exam; but explain to him that he was cheating his best friend—himself—out of his rights. He was also robbing himself of one of his best friend's respect by doing so, and it were to become generally known he would be despised by all who are now his friends."

"I'm a little preacher," declared Bricktop, patting Bertie on the shoulder. "Your advice shall be acted upon. I'll appeal to the letter side of Bert, using your argument. I shall go there tonight."

As soon as supper was over Bricktop went to call on Bertie. He was admitted by Bertie himself, who wore a guilty and uneasy look when he saw who was ringing the door bell. For a moment he feared Bricktop had come to tell his mother about his cheating at his examination that afternoon. But Bricktop put his mind at rest by whispering in the hall:

"I must have a little private talk with you Bert. Here as a friend. Trust me as one."

They went straightway to Bert's own room, and there a long and earnest conversation was held. At the end of an hour Bricktop arose to go. Bert clasped both his hands, saying: "Brick, you're a real brick. How can I ever thank you for the service you have rendered me in showing me up to myself in my true colors. How strange that people will try to cheat and rob themselves. I see my errors now as never had seen them before. I shall go to the teacher privately tomorrow and confess my dishonesty and beg her to give me another trial on the two branches just passed over, history and orthography. And I'll explain that it was Bricktop."

"No, no, don't mention my name, Bert. It isn't necessary. Just tell her you have come to see the matter in its true light and don't want to pass dishonestly. So far as I'm concerned, no one except Bertie and Lettie shall ever hear one breath of this matter. Go on as of old, old chap, and I'll help you on any of your work that you fear you are behind in. I'm anxious to see you win on your medals. It's so much more satisfactory to know that what you've got was got honestly."

"I think I'd hide his head in shame every time he looks at you, brother," declared Lettie. "Kiddies, I've something dreadfully on my mind. You must help me to solve a most perplexing problem."

Then as the three went homeward Bricktop told them confidentially all about Bertie's cheating at his examination. "How perfectly scandalous!" exclaimed Bertie. "I'd think he'd hide his head in shame every time he looks at you, brother," declared Lettie. "Kiddies, I've something dreadfully on my mind. You must help me to solve a most perplexing problem."

"No, a boy who would stoop to gain anything—no matter how much he may desire it—through dishonesty never feels nothing would so much satisfy her as to jerk the hair from the head of a great new doll whose garb pronounced her to be Japanese. Several of the "Roman" soldiers decided to attack an automobiled full of gay gentlemen and lady dolls, the latest addition to the nursery, therefore holding the favored places of that domain. The Tin Soldier took as his special prey a football hero, who stood near a chair, leaning languidly against one of its legs. He was as athletic as his profession would suggest, and the Tin Soldier found he had his hands pretty full, inasmuch as he had one hand on the football and the other on the chair. But soon he had ousted the hero of the football field, leaving him lying helpless and spilling sawdust on the carpet.

To say that the battle waxed fierce and hot hardly expressed it. No conflict in Poland ever was fiercer. Chairs were knocked down and small pieces of furniture broken to splinters. The table covers were dragged off, spilling the dishes on the floor, where many of them were broken.

The hand to paw conflict between the monkey and the Teddy bear was one of the hardest fought. Several times it seemed that old Teddy had the best of the "monkey." But the tallish fellow would rally to his work in a way that startled even the lion, who was not so brave, after all, seeing that he had hidden away under the edge of a window curtain when the army of unfortunate had attacked those in the nursery. From his hiding place he could see all that transpired. So was that he noticed the battle between the monkey and the bear.

But the lion was not long spared in his seclusion. Old Noah—from whose ark the lion had strayed—caught a peep of him under the curtain folds and straightway made for him, carrying a short dagger that he had found on the floor near to the spot where the favorite "Roman" soldiers had been battling with their foe. In short order the lion was dispatched by Noah, who sat in loud and victorious words: "So dieth a deserter from the Ark!"

At this moment the door to the nursery opened and Mary and May came in to view the tables before time to admit their little guests.

Can you fancy their astonishment—horror, in truth—when they beheld their toys in mortal combat with each other? Mary ran screaming down stairs, calling her mamma to come at once to the nursery.

Mary ran into the hall and hid her face against the wall. She had entered just as Noah had sent the dagger into the body of the lion. The sight shocked her delicate nerves.

Seeing that they had been caught in rebellion, the attacking army drew off, leaving the attacked in a very sad plight. Indeed, the favorites of an hour ago were now most terrible to behold. They no longer held their heads so high. Legs and arms and sawdust were lying about the battlefield. Beauty was marred by bent and broken eyes and noses. But the battle was over and the victorious army looked happily upon the ruin it had wrought. Now they would be allowed to remain in the nursery, for the party, seeing that there were no others who could carry the palm of perfection and beauty over their heads. But—how can I tell what befell them?

A few moments later the mamma of Mary and May came rushing in. Her quick understanding grasped the situation at once. Ah, jealousy has been the cause of all this strife. Out of the window with the culprits! And with the assistance of Mary and May the Tin Soldier and his followers were thrown headlong from the second-story window into the back yard of the great house, where they had had such a comfortable home.

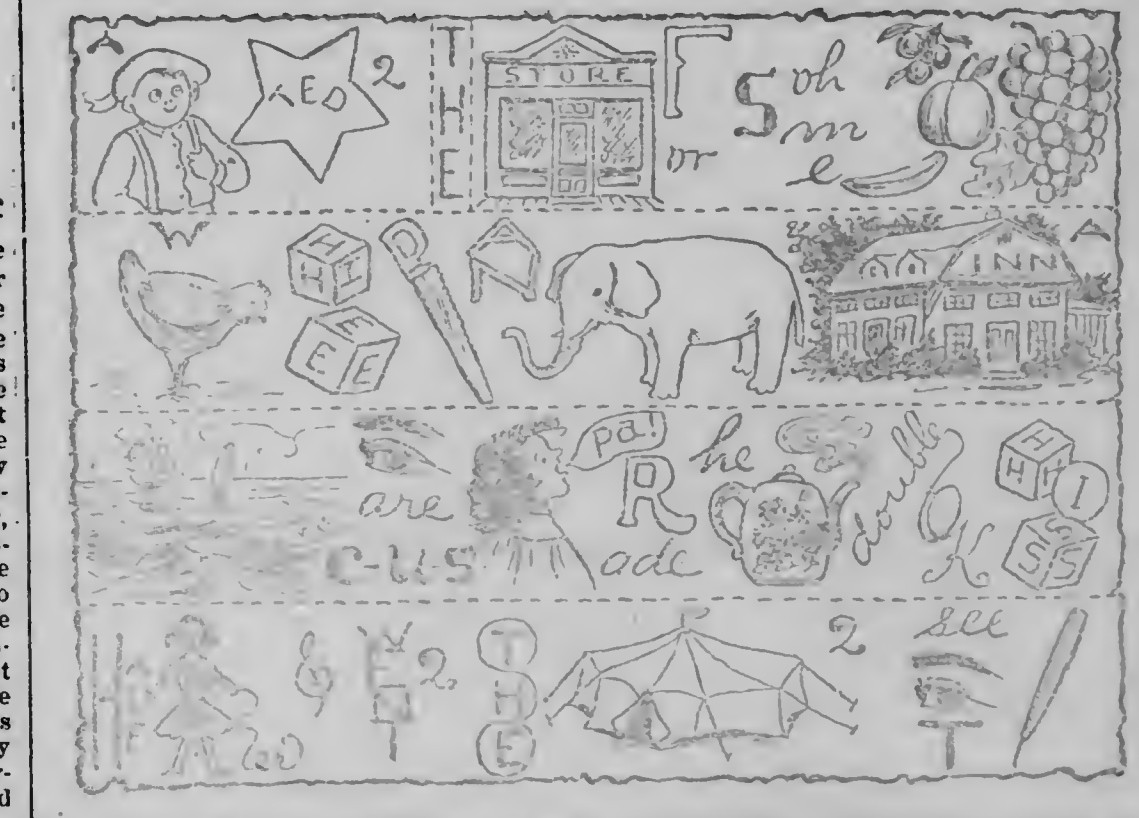

"Tomorrow John will throw the whole of them into the ash can and they will be carted out of town. The rebels—to raise a rebellion just on the eve of a party! Had they behaved themselves till tomorrow they would have been sent to the toy hospital for mending and come home in a few days as pretty as ever. But now it's all over with them. They were an ungrateful lot of toys."

Bricktop and The Twins Solve a Problem.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

One day something happened at school which so upset Bricktop that he could scarcely get through the day. It was during examination time, and Bert French, a friend of Bricktop's, and one of his favorites, was caught cheating on his examination papers. Bricktop, sitting near Bert, was the only pupil in the room who discovered that Bert was not answering his questions in an honest way. At first Bricktop could not believe his eyes, and condemned himself for doubting Bert's honesty. But when he had seen so impressed him that he unconsciously turned his eyes toward Bert again, taking pains, however, to not be seen watching him, and this time there was no doubting the fact that Bert was cheating. From his cuff he drew a small paper, which he held in the palm of his left hand, and which he scrutinized closely, getting information from it, no doubt, in answer to some question which otherwise he could not have answered correctly. Then Bricktop saw him repeatedly slip a leaf—which was evidently torn from one of his textbooks—from his vest pocket, and, holding it under his desk top, look it over before writing answers to certain questions. Yes, he was cheating—cheating at his exam. It shocked Bricktop to find this dishonest trait in a boy whom he had always liked and admired greatly.

For fully five minutes Bricktop forgot his own papers, that lay on his desk before him, and, as the pupils were timed on each study, Bricktop was obliged to turn in one of his papers before he had quite finished it, thus getting a lower percentage on it than he otherwise would have done.

At recess Bricktop, all disposition to play gone, sought Bert on the playground and asked him to walk round the grounds with him, as he had something of vital importance to talk about. Bert gaily acquiesced, laughingly asking: "What can have made you so serious, old chap? You look as grim as Blackbeard. Don't think you have missed on any of your papers, do you?"

"I wish that was the only trouble," Bert, replied Bricktop, in a grave voice. "Missing—honestly missing—would be far better than passing dishonestly. What do you say?" And Bricktop stopped and looked his friend straight in the eyes.

Bert's face grew crimson, but he pretended to not understand Bricktop's meaning. "Why," he said, in a calm voice, "I'm not so sure about that. It won't do to fail to pass, you know. Still, it's better to go on honestly, of course. But you won't miss in your exam. You never do. Fact is, you're usually the head of the class. Last year—"

Bricktop stopped him with a wave of the hand and said: "Bert, if I fail to pass it will be due to my low percentage in history. I fail to get the last five questions answered. Five out of ten is a miss, you know."

"Where-w-why?" whistled Bert. "How could you fail on history—you, who are always so proficient in that study? Non-sense, you'll go through like a greased lightning."

"If I fail it will be due to my not answering those last questions in history, and I knew every one of them, too."

"Then why didn't you answer them?" asked Bert, turning his eyes away. Somehow, he couldn't look Bricktop in the face. "Bert, I—I—saw one I've always thought a lot of cheating—mind you, cheating in his exam. I was so thunder-struck, so to speak, that the time passed till it was too late to repair the wrong done through the delay. Bert, you understand whom I refer to."

There was a quaver of feeling in Bricktop's voice as he looked into the blushing face of Bert. "How should I know?" asked Bert, in a dogged way, turning as if to join the other boys of his class on the playground.

"Because you must—MUST—know who it was, Bert. The boy whom I saw cheating—not once only, but several times—sits in your seat. Now, Bert, I don't intend to publish this—you know that's not my way. But in justice to you, first; your parents, second; our teacher, third; have you nor anyone else poking into it," returned Bert.

"I insist that you make this right before your papers are passed upon," said Bricktop quietly. "I don't want to be obliged to say anything about this to the teacher. Still—how could any self-respecting boy go through the class—from now till graduation—with whom he knows is resorting to cheating at his exams. To see a boy carry the honors of the class who has won them through dishonest means!"

Just then the bell rang and the children fled into the school rooms. Bricktop saw the Twins going in from the opposite side of the grounds, they being in a room two grades lower than his own. He waved his hand to them men-ally to be saluted by them gaily to return. Even at school it was known that "Bricktop" Perkins and "The Twins" were not only loving brother and sisters, but "chummy chums."

That evening after school Bert French avoided Bricktop, going off at a run with some of the other boys while Bricktop waited in the vestibule for his sisters. As soon as Lettie and Bertie joined him he said: "Kiddies, I've something dreadfully on my mind. You must help me to solve a most perplexing problem."

Then as the three went homeward Bricktop told them confidentially all about Bert French's cheating at his examination. "How perfectly scandalous!" exclaimed Bertie. "I'd think he'd hide his head in shame every time he looks at you, brother," declared Lettie. "Kiddies, I've something dreadfully on my mind. You must help me to solve a most perplexing problem."

"Say, you've got your nerve, Brick," declared Bert, trying to assume an injured look. "You hint I—I—"

"No, I don't hint, Bert. What I say is the open truth. At first I could not believe my eyes. Then I watched closely to satisfy myself."

"So you spy upon your friends, do you?" sneered Bert. "A spy is as contemptible as an eavesdropper. If you attend to your own examinations I'll attend to mine. I don't neglect my work to spy upon your private affairs."

"This is no private affair, Bert," said Bricktop, not losing his temper at the insolent manner of his former friend—

THE SUB-TREASURY OF THE UNITED STATES AT CHICAGO MYSTERIOUSLY ROBBED OF $200,000 IN BIG BILLS

The Event Occurred Last Week But Was Kept Quiet.

Officials Will Say Nothing More Than Money is Gone.

Every Employee Has Been Subjected to Close Examination.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—One of the largest, if not the largest, thefts from the United States treasury, has been unearthed in Chicago. Somewhere between $175,000 and $200,000 it was learned today, completely disappeared from the local sub-treasury last week. The authorities here and in Washington have been working night and day on the robbery since it was discovered.

Chief Wilkie of the United States secret service has left Washington for Chicago, to take personal charge of the case. Secretary Shaw was told of the theft, when in Chicago last week and was in conference with Sub-Treasurer William Boldenweck and secret service officials. The money was taken either a week ago Saturday, the next day, or last Monday. The chances are it was abstracted on Monday. The loss was discovered on Tuesday. The stolen money was in bills of the denomination of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000.

Just who discovered the loss the sub-treasury officials would not admit. Neither would they tell from what department the money was taken nor how the loss was discovered.

At first it was believed that there must be some error in bookkeeping. It was thought to be impossible that such a large sum of money could have been abstracted in face of all the safeguards thrown around Uncle Sam's strongbox.

The leading men involved strenuously denied any error and an investigation showed there was no possible clerical mistake for the disappearance of the cash.

Every man who could have had anything to do with the case was called into Treasurer Boldenweck's office and put through an extensive examination, and a still more rigid cross-examination. Capt. Porter of the secret service assisted in the examination. All denied any knowledge of the theft and protested their innocence. Day by day, however the swinging process has been kept up. Saturday a faint clue pointed in the direction of a certain clerk and that, followed up, directed suspicion to the cash.

IS KILLED BY FALLING TREE

William Thompson, a Finlander, Meets Sudden Death at Kelliher.

Kelliher, Minn., Feb. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Thompson, a Finlander employed in a logging camp operated by the firm of Ross & Ross, three miles from this village, was hit by a limb of a falling tree, Saturday, and instantly killed. Thompson was working in Ross & Ross' camp No. 4. He was watching a tree that had been saved, and evidently did not see one limb that was falling directly in his path. The large limb hit him fairly by the head, and with the result that he was badly injured. He died instantly, and his body was brought to this place and was taken to the ground to Kelliher.

It was claimed that Thompson had a sister living in Hibbing. He had been here but a week, and not much was known concerning him or his relatives. All efforts to locate the sister were unavailing, and the funeral was held yesterday afternoon.

FORBES TO BE THE LEADING SPEAKER

At Great Gathering of Methodist Ministers at Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 25.—A convention of the board of home missions and church extension of the Methodist Episcopal church, the largest annual convention of its character ever held, will convene here today. Prominent ministers from all parts of the United States will be in attendance. Dr. Robert Forbes of Philadelphia will be the principal speaker.

The convention is similar in purpose to the one held at Carnegie hall, Pittsburgh, last October, which brought the largest attendance of Methodists ever gathered in the city. It is understood that the convention is not held for the purpose of raising money for the work of the board, but simply to educate the people of the denomination up to the work and usefulness of the board.

FINANCIAL OPERATIONS OF THE HARRIMAN GROUP PROBED BY COMMISSION

Great Railroad Magnate, Himself, First Witness Called.

Tells of Purchase of Union Pacific and Alton Roads.

Thirty Per Cent Dividend Paid Out of C. & A. Bonds.

New York, Feb. 25.—The investigation of the financial operations of the Harriman group through the Union Pacific railroad, undertaken by the interstate commerce commission in behalf of the United States government, was resumed at the federal building at 10 o'clock.

E. H. Harriman, president of the Union Pacific, was the first witness, and, under examination by Frank Kellogg, began at 10 o'clock an explanation of the financial operations of his company, commencing with the issue of $100,000,000 convertible bonds in 1901 for the purchase of stock in the Southern Railway System.

Harriman said that he met the late President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad, in August or September, at Bar Harbor, and discussed the purchase of the Baltimore & Ohio. He did not recall the date of the transaction.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE AGAINST TONNAGE TAX ON IRON ORE PROBABLE

Legislators Shown Injustice It Would Work on Range Towns.

Testimony of Mining Men Taken and Properties Inspected.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Hibbing, Minn., Feb. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Beyond question of a doubt the trip over the ranges of the legislative ore tax committee, and other tax legislators, will influence ore tax legislation on the return of the committee to the state capitol, and influence it in a manner which will be satisfactory, to a great degree, at least, to Duluth, St. Louis county and the range towns, if the report of those on the junket bears any weight with their associates in the legislature. Every indication points to a favorable report on the part of the committee. At a meeting held in the Virginia high school, Saturday night, Senator L. O. Cook of Wabasha county, chairman of the investigating committee, virtually promised that the report of the committee would be against a tonnage tax. Representative Elias Rasche of Lac Qui Parle county, and Senator V. L. Johnson of Chisago, also members of the same committee, in effect said the same thing, although not in so many words. It goes without saying that the Northern Minnesota members will act according to the wishes of the range towns.

BIG FIRE IN PITTSBURG

A Bad Blaze Rages in the Downtown District.

Several Big Buildings Are Destroyed by the Flames.

Pittsburg, Feb. 25.—A big fire is raging on Liberty street, between Eighth and Ninth streets. The six-story building at No. 819, Liberty street, opposite the Academy of Music, occupied by the Derby Desk company, is a blaze from the first floor to the roof. Three districts have been called out by the fire department, and the flames are spreading.

It is thought the fire started from an explosion. Adjoining the burning building on the east side is the Second National bank, and on the west side, at Nos. 815 and 817, is the Baker Office Furniture company.

The roof and top floor of the Baker Office Furniture company building is now burning. The walls of the Derby Desk company building have fallen, and the structure is a total loss. The fire was discovered at 2:30 a. m., and in fifteen minutes the entire structure was enveloped.

A number of casualties are reported. Mina Williams, a stenographer,

MRS. THAW'S DENIAL THAT SHE HAD EVER SEEN A DR. FLINT, PRESENTED BY JEROME, A DRAMATIC INCIDENT

SUSIE JOHNSON, As She Broke Through the Pie at One of the Famous Dinners Described in the Thaw Trial.

Confronted by Physician After Her First Answer.

Jerome Makes But Little Progress in His Cross-Examination.

Mrs. Thaw Explains Some Things Apparently Against Her.

New York, Feb. 25.—During the continuance today of his cross-examination of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, testifying in the trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, District Attorney Jerome confronted the witness with Dr. Carlton Flint and asked if she had not been to see him with Jack Barrymore. Mrs. Thaw looked at the doctor, who had been placed within a few feet of her, hesitated a moment, and then declared that she had never seen the man before. It was one of the most dramatic scenes of the trial.

At the conclusion of the morning session of the court Mr. Jerome seemed to have made little progress today, although his cross-examination still is far from completion. As a matter of fact the prosecutor enabled Mrs. Thaw to explain a number of things which appeared very much against her and the defendant last week. With regard to Stanford White's letter of credit which she had in Europe she declared that she had not been informed of the letter until at sea.

She denied ever having used a penny of it herself, but said her mother had got it all. Thaw turning it over to her, Thaw declared the money was "poison."

With regard to the calling to Stanford White from London, Mrs. Thaw declared it had to do with her mother and an attaché of the American embassy in the English capital. This attaché, she said, had "steamed up to my mother's bedroom and insulted her." Mrs. Thaw denied that the cablegrams had anything to do with her going off to Europe with Thaw.

New York, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was called to the stand today as soon as the judge had taken his place on the bench, and, without any preliminary statement, District Attorney Jerome plunged into cross-examination. Mrs. Thaw looked refreshed after her three days' respite, and answered the first questions put to her confidently. Thaw brought with him from the Tombs several packages of letters and papers.

Mr. Jerome, as on the previous days of his cross-examination, continued to jump about from point to point in the witness' story. He first asked her if she had not had tea with her mother in Allegheny, Pa., before going to Philadelphia to live—if she had not run away with a girl.

Mrs. Thaw replied in the negative. Mr. Jerome's next question was: "How long after the drugging in the twenty-fourth street house was it that the account was opened for you in the Amsterdam bank by Stanford White?"

"I can't tell how long—it might have been a month."

"When did you first meet Francis Belmont?"

"When I was in Florida."

Mr. Jerome continued to hold the documentary evidence before the witness, before asking his questions.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

J. H. Lathrop of Calumet Died Sunday, Aged 65 Years.

Calumet, Mich., Feb. 25.—Special to The Herald.—J. H. Lathrop, one of Calumet's foremost citizens, died of hemorrhage of the brain at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Lathrop had been a resident of Calumet for fourteen years, during that time holding the position of chief clerk for the Calumet & Hecla Mining company. Deceased was 65 years old, and a veteran of the Civil war. He leaves a widow and one daughter. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon, Rev. J. A. Fort Dodge, Iowa, Feb. 25.—Victor B. Dolliver, 44 years old, a brother of Senator Dolliver of Iowa, was found dead in bed last evening. Dolliver went to bed about 11 o'clock Saturday night, apparently in good health. He was found last night in his room lying on the bed as though he had died while asleep. An inquest will be held. Dolliver was known in Iowa as a campaign orator, a business man and benefactor of Morningside college of Sioux City.

MAYOR DENSMORE OF ELY BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY ON SERIOUS CHARGE

AN EFFORT TO SECURE A JURY

For Bywaters Case Will Be Made From Fifty Talesmen.

Culpeper, Va., Feb. 25.—An effort will be made to secure a jury from the fifty talesmen who have been summoned here from Shenandoah county to serve at the trial of Philip and James Strother, charged with the murder of William F. Bywaters, on the night of Dec. 16 last, shortly after the latter had been married to Miss Viola Strother, the sister of the two defendants. The special veniremen arrived here early today and it is expected that the entire day will be consumed in securing a jury. The most important witness, Mrs. Bywaters, the widow of the victim, will reach here either today or tomorrow, but it is not expected that she will be placed on the stand before tomorrow.

Waives Examination and Gives Bail in Sum of $800.

Attempted Criminal Assault, Alleged Against Mayor.

Finnish People of Range City Are Greatly Incensed.

Charged with attempted criminal assault on Nellie Johnson, a young Finnish domestic, about 20 or 21 years old, Mayor John Densmore of Ely has waived examination and has been bound over to the grand jury, which will convene Wednesday, March 6. Mayor Densmore has furnished bail in the amount of $800.

The crime with which Mayor Densmore is charged, has caused one of the most sensational scandals that the city of Ely has ever experienced, and the Finnish speaking people of that place are said to be highly incensed over the matter. Although the alleged action of the mayor happened a week ago, the trouble has been kept very quiet, only two whisperers who have reached this city last week. Owing to the prominence of Mayor Densmore and of other well known Ely men claimed to have been mixed up in the affair to some extent, the story was rather discredited by their friends here.

The friends of the young woman, claimed to have been assaulted, however, have been very active, and it was through their complaints that the matter was brought to the attention of the county authorities, and an investigation was started with the result mentioned.

The trouble was not mentioned in the range papers, the only thing being mentioned in the Ely Miner of the last issue, purporting to come from a committee appointed at a mass meeting of the Finlanders in which protest was made against the alleged indecent action of the police officials of Ely in throwing into jail and mistreating two young Finnish women of respectable vocations.

The story of the affair as it comes from the people who are more or less interested in it, is as follows:

A week ago last Thursday Nellie Johnson, aged about 21 years, who was formerly employed as a domestic in the family of Mr. Lutes, the laundryman at Biwabik, accompanied by Hilda Aho, aged about 17 or 18 years, who was formerly employed in a Biwabik restaurant, went to Ely in search of work. They are said to have stopped at the Exchange hotel, in that place, Thursday evening, and the next day they went to a Finnish boarding house to stay until they found work.

While the young women were about the city looking for work, the attention of the police is said to have been called to them, but nothing was done, as the officers could learn nothing of the girls that was to their discredit.

ELECTRIC RAILWAY

From Grand Rapids to Itasca State Park Being Discussed.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The possibility of an electric railway being constructed and operated from the village of Park Rapids to the Itasca state park is being discussed at a meeting of the park committee, which will be held at Park Rapids, tomorrow. At the present time, there is no way of getting to the park, except by team from Bagley or Shevlin, on the line of the Great Northern west of Bemidji, which necessitates a drive of twenty miles, over roads which are not of the best, at any time. From Park Rapids, a drive of thirty miles at least, is necessary, while from Bemidji, fully as long a distance must be traversed.

AUTOISTS INDIGNANT

Will Hold Meeting to Protest Against Pending Bill.

Say It Would Put Them Out of Business Here.

Automobile owners of Duluth are up in arms over the new bill which has been introduced in the legislature regulating the speed at which the autos may be driven, and putting into effect stringent rules regarding licenses for the drivers, and a meeting of the automobile club will be held tomorrow afternoon, at 4:30, at the Commercial club rooms, to protest against the proposed action of the legislators.

At the meeting the legislative measure will be thoroughly discussed, and it is likely that a formal resolution, protesting against its passage, will be drawn up and sent to the legislature. The bill is claimed to be altogether too severe in its rules, and the autoists say that if it should be passed, and strictly enforced, would take away all the pleasure of auto-driving.

One of the rules which the bill embodies is that all owners of autos must have a sign, the letters of which must be five inches in height, painted on the front and back and both sides of their machine before venturing out for a ride. They must also take an examination before a commission, and must pay $10 as a fee, and must carry a certificate every time they go out.

A pedestrian may stop an autoist at any time when he is driving his auto, and if the owner of the machine can not produce this certificate he is liable to a fine of $100 even though he may have the certificate at his home. It must be carried in his pocket every time he takes his machine out.

Another rule which makes the auto owners indignant is that a machine cannot be driven at a speed of more than eight miles an hour when within half a mile of a schoolhouse, church or postoffice. A town board will be authorized by the new law to close any road or street to all autos at any time and the machine must give the entire roadway to pedestrians and teams.

For the first violation of the rule a maximum fine of $50 is imposed. For the second violation a $100 fine is imposed and the certificate is suspended for one month. The third time an autoist violates the rule a fine of $100 is imposed and his certificate suspended for six months, and on the fourth violation his certificate is taken away entirely. WOULD BE A HARD BLOW

Sale of Telephone Patents Would Hit Independent Companies.

C. M. Mauseau Says He Knows Nothing of the Deal.

A report has been current in the Eastern papers for several days to the effect that the Bell Telephone interests had, by the purchase of the United States independent telephone plant at Rochester, N. Y., brought the fight between the Bell interests and the independent telephone companies in the United States to a critical point.

It has been claimed that if the sale has been consummated, it will mean that the Bell Telephone interests will be in control of about one-half of the independent telephone plants of the country.

C. M. Mauseau of Minneapolis, general manager of the Bell telephone interests for the entire Northwest, who arrived here yesterday on a business trip, and who has just returned from a trip to the East, says that while the Eastern papers seem very positive about the deal, he knows nothing of it.

"If the sale has been closed, as it is claimed," said Mr. Mauseau, "it is undoubtedly the hardest blow that the opposition has ever been dealt. Control of the United States company means the control of the Stromberg-Carlson company, a concern that has been a manufacturer for, and the promoter of, dozens of independent plants. The Stromberg-Carlson company has furnished the equipment and back of the independent companies, and has taken a large amount of stock to secure the independence. It is easy to see that had the control remained in the hands of friendly interests, everything would have been favorable for the opposition companies, but with the control and the securities in unfriendly hands, it is as easy to see where the independent companies are liable to be placed in a tight place."

Commenting on the alleged purchase of the United States Telephone company plant, the Eastern papers claim that the deal will carry control of the independent companies at Rochester, Syracuse, Utica and other places, and Utah company, exchanges, that are claimed to be the largest and best equipped of any of the independent lines.

The Bell company, it is said, have been compelled to spend enormous amounts of money to keep pace with their business. It is stated that the company put about $30,000,000 into the business, and that they are now competing with the independent companies, and that they are unable to meet the enormous expenses of a business of this kind. The independent companies, it is stated, are now in a position to keep up with the business without going further into debt.

The independent telephone companies, it is stated, have admitted that it is a critical year for the industry, and for the reason that they must raise immense sums of money to carry on their work. They are hoping that if the deal reported has gone through, that there will be plenty of hands ready to supply the necessities.

It is claimed that the companies that cannot raise the money to pay off their indebtedness to the Stromberg-Carlson company, will be forced to sell as they will, if the purchase is made of the United States Telephone company, into the hands of the Bell company, and that they will be loaded up with Stromberg-Carlson apparatus and will have to go to the Bell people for supplies. The independent companies, it is stated, are now in a position to keep up with the business without going further into debt.

Back From the East.

GIRLS ARE IN THE LEAD

Three First Honor Pupils of the Gentler Sex.

Helen McKinlay Heads Honor Roll of Senior Class.

The list of the honor pupils of the senior class of the high school has been made out by Principal Smith, and was announced this morning in chapel. The names of the students in the order in which they rank are as follows: Helen McKinlay, Edith Miller, Lydia Johnson, Siebel Harris and Edward Cole. These five are the honor students. According to custom, Mr. Smith also read the names of the seven who received honorable mention. They are: Jessie Johnson, Helen Potter, Frank Boerner, Lucile Bradley and Gertrude Hopkins. For the last place in the list Winnifred Mahon, Annie Hugo and Harriet Stryker were tied.

This record is made up from the marks of the students for the first three and a half years of the high school course, ending with the close of the first semester of the senior year. The average of all the marks which a student has received since entering school is obtained and the list is composed of the twelve who have the highest averages. Formerly it was the custom to have the five who were a normal standing represent the class at the commencement exercises, but this has been done away with during the past few years. However, the list is considerable honor connected with it and the successful one have been freely congratulated.

CUPID COSTLY CAPTAIN.

Campaign Under His Direction "Runs Into Money" These Days.

Chicago Tribune: "Abandon bank accounts all ye who enter here," is the motto hung over the entrance to the realm of modern courtship. How much does it cost to court? Why, just as much as you can get if you are a normal young man courting a normal young woman of the day.

As courtships differ as much as do individuals it is next to impossible to estimate a fair average cost of a courtship. It varies from two hours to ten years. Obviously the man who does his courting in a reasonable way is going to effect a saving over the man who drags it out over a protracted period. No matter how hard he tries to fulfill the obligations of courtship it is hardly to be supposed that he can spend a long time, even if the latter be a "piker." Further, there are no other opportunities to spend money than in the realm of courtship. Thus all attempts at an average are put at naught.

The foregoing seems quite indispensable to the modern courtship. The old-fashioned calling system in which the young man came at a set hour and called on the young woman, and the young woman, in turn, called on the young man, is a thing of the past. The young man now comes at a set hour and calls on the young woman, and the young woman, in turn, calls on the young man.

He comes just the same as ever, but he does not stay. Such methods of courting are no longer in vogue. The young man now comes at a set hour and calls on the young woman, and the young woman, in turn, calls on the young man.

He says this in a regular business tone, because he hasn't got time to indulge in any slow motion talk. Then the beloved one says that she will be ready, and she leaves her home and goes to the young man's home. The young man then takes her to a restaurant and they eat. QUARANTINED AT UNION DEPOT FOR SMALLPOX Passengers on Great Northern Train Locked in Coach.

Inspector Fumigates Car After Taking Woodsman to Pesthouse.

About a score of passengers coming on the Great Northern from Cass Lake this morning were much to their surprise locked in the coach on their arrival in this city until their inspection by a health department official had been gone through with, and one of their number, a woodsman, coming from a Cass Lake lumber camp, was taken to the pesthouse, with smallpox.

This makes a total of ten cases in the local pesthouse at present, every one of which can be traced directly or through contagion to unquarantined lumber camps.

The health department officials here are doing everything in their power to check the progress of the disease, but in spite of their efforts the situation is growing steadily worse and the epidemic of smallpox in the lumber camps throughout Northern Minnesota is steadily growing.

On the first smallpox scare in a lumber camp large numbers of the men desert, all of them exposed to the disease, and with clean skins and nothing to indicate to the most careful inspector that they are not all right as to health, they come in large numbers to Duluth, patronize crowded boarding houses, and in a few days come down with the disease and are sent to the pesthouse, but not until they have exposed hundreds of persons.

Dr. Murray has threatened to stop every train coming into the city at the city limits and inspect the passengers for symptoms of the disease, and the railroads have been working to the best of their ability to help the officials in their efforts to keep the disease out of Duluth, and in several instances have threatened conductors with discharge if a patient was brought into the city with smallpox.

In this morning's incident the conductor telegraphed ahead that he had a smallpox patient aboard, and then locked the car to await the arrival of Inspector Kitchen, who took the man in charge and then thoroughly fumigated the coach.

A man has been sent to work in the infected district by Dr. Bracken of the state board of health, and he is doing all in his power to help out, and the other companies have taken the same stand.

The Duluth health officers say that it is plainly up to the county commissioners

THE SUCCESSFUL MAN

Is Subject of an Address by Watson S. Moore.

Watson S. Moore, alderman from the First ward, Duluth, gave an interesting and instructive address last evening at the service at the Holy Apostle's Episcopal church upon the subject "The Successful Man." A large congregation was present at the service and Mr. Moore made a good impression upon his hearers.

One of the principal points in the address was the importance which should be attached to the start which a young man gets when he is a boy. He stands a better chance of attaining success if he gets a good start, and good ideas during the period of his training up, and the speaker, and the inspirations which he gets from his parents are of great importance.

Mr. Moore stated that although education was very valuable, it is not the kind of a man can work himself up until he has attained success, even though he has a high school education. It is poor also that if a young man makes up his mind to do the right thing, he will come out on top in the end.

Rev. Moore, the pastor of the Holy Apostle's church, made an attempt to have some public man of Duluth lecture about once a month.

Disturbed the Peace.

They were taken before Judge Winslow of the municipal court this morning and fined $5 each.

The funeral will take place either Wednesday or Thursday at the residence and the remains will be buried at Midway.

Construction on the extension of the Minnesota & International from Big Falls to International Falls is being pushed. It is estimated by those in a position to know that 90 per cent of the grading will be completed by March 20. The company having the contract for the bridge at Big Falls is expected to resume work in a few days, and it will probably take between three and four weeks to complete the bridge, which is a steel structure of two spans of 126 and 136 feet. As soon as the bridge is completed, the laying of steel will commence on the extension.

Steel is already going through the mill, and there are several miles of grade practically finished, the first two camps have been abandoned. It is expected there will be some delay at the crossing of the Little Fork river, as no work can be done there until the road is cleared.

At all seasons of the year there is an abundance of fish. Every river teems with salmon, grayling and trout. All winter herring and flounders are caught. The Esquimaux dry large quantities in the summer, but their favorite food is always fresh meat or fish.

This fresh food supply accounts for the remarkable health of the people. Scrofula and tuberculosis are very rare. The excessive meat diet often produces scurvy, but in a mild form. ENOUGH TO DRIVE HIM TO DRINK
Denver, Colo., dispatch to New York World: Learned men who discuss the dangerous influences of imperialism upon the American people at the recent science convention, in Providence, overlooked one bet in Denver. The "water cure," practiced upon Filipinos by American soldiers, has been introduced into the domestic life of the United States. This barbarity is directly traceable, says the Denver police, to the policy of imperialism.

Patrolman Kersten was called the other day to the home of James Mickens, a meek little man, weighing less than 125 pounds. Mrs. Mickens carries an even hundred weight more than her husband, told the officer Mickens had been abusing her.

The officer found Mickens hog-tied and helpless on the kitchen floor, guarded by Mrs. Mickens' 14-year-old son, who, according to the husband, had bound him with a clothesline while Mrs. Mickens sat upon him. Gingerly the policeman untied the rope and let up what he supposed was a dangerous man. Mickens could hardly stand. To the police surgeon, later, he said:

"I was sitting contentedly by the window smoking my pipe when my dear wife accused me of having taken a drink. I denied the charge, so she searched me and threw me against the hot stove, knocking off the reservoir and spilling me with hot water. Failing to discover the expected whisky bottle, she became enraged, knocked me down, and called the boy to bring a rope."

"Now you'll confess you've been drinking?" she asked.

"No, I have not," says I.

"So you attached a garden hose to the kitchen faucet, rammed the end in my mouth, and turned on the stream full tilt. When I still refused to say I had been drinking, they sang 'Chorus Up, Mary' to the tune of 'There's a Rainbow in the Sky.' After torturing me to the limit, except that she didn't put her foot on my stomach to squelch the water out of my mouth as they did in the Philippines, she went for the cop and left the boy to guard me."

The "hundred times a day question"—how to make a little more money—will not down. But to the store man advertising in The Herald always agrees in the answer.

BEDE AFTER NEW VESSEL

For Naval Reserve of Duluth in Place of Gopher.

Would Give Latter Boat to Wisconsin Naval Militia.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.
Washington, Feb. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Bede this morning called upon the officials of the navy department to make a formal request for the loan of the Isle de Cuba, one of the few sound vessels captured by Admiral Dewey at the battle of Manila bay. This ship is in first-class condition, but just at present is out of commission, lying at the Norfolk navy yards. The plan which Mr. Bede has in mind is to secure the Isle de Cuba for the Minnesota naval reserve, to take the place of the old Fern, now at Duluth, which has been rechristened and is known as the Gopher, and if this can be accomplished, to turn the Gopher over to the Wisconsin authorities, to be used by the Badger state as a training ship for a naval reserve, which many Wisconsin people will organize if they can secure a suitable ship.
Solon L. Perrin, of Superior, who has been here some weeks watching the harbor appropriations, is working with Representative Bede to secure the Isle de Cuba for the Wisconsin militia authorities and berth her in Superior harbor. Postmaster Guy Eaton of Duluth, commander of the Minnesota naval reserve, is also here to aid Bede and Perrin in securing the transfer of the ship, as above indicated. The Isle de Cuba draws about thirteen feet, and with this draft can easily be taken through the Welland canal.

Was Misleading.
The heading to the notice of the Copper Creek mines of Graham county, Arizona, in Saturday's Herald was misleading, possibly, as it indicated an investment of millions of dollars instead of a deposit of many millions of dollars worth of ore in the mines.
Mr. Clark, who is stopping at the Spaulding, reports that the 125,000 shares of stock he offered at par, $1 per share, has been reduced to 100,000 shares. He will be pleased to exhibit samples, maps and reports to anyone interested in copper.

NOT REMOVABLE.
"Winter has many drawbacks," said Henry J. Woodhouse, the meteorologist, "and not least of these is the winter fog that drops down upon you men's faces. Sooner or later it will dissipate this fog with electricity, but that day is distant."
Mr. Woodhouse smiled.
In a restaurant, on a foggy, sooty day, recently, I couldn't resist leaning over and whispering to a well-dressed man at the next table:
"Excuse me, sir, but there's a speck of soot on your nose."
The man smiled agreeably.
"No he said. No that isn't soot. It is a peculiar kind of mole and you are the seventh man since breakfast to ask me to wash it off. My average for foggy days is ten."

INFORMAL GATHERING

Reception to Legislative Party Will Not be Lengthy.

Dinner Will be Followed by Talk in Smoking Room.

All arrangements for the entertainment of the legislative committee now touring the ranges, will be left incomplete until the return of the special from the range.

The train is due to arrive in Duluth at 4:05 o'clock this afternoon.
An informal dinner will be tendered this evening, by the executive committee of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, and following the dinner the members of the party will adjourn to the club rooms for a very informal talk.

It is the opinion of the members of the public affairs committee that the legislators have been saturated with arguments on the tonnage tax for the last three or four days, and that a formal hearing here would add nothing to the effect. The legislators will also be weary from their four days of traveling, and will probably not care to hear any lengthy arguments. At the informal session, however, any citizen who desires to do so will have an opportunity to meet and talk to the legislators, but any program will be of an informal nature, and as brief as possible.

These plans, however, are subject to change after the arrival of the train, if it is found that the members of the party would like to hold some formal hearing in Duluth.

County Board Will Meet.
The board of county commissioners will hold a meeting tomorrow for the purpose of cleaning up a number of tax matters. The commissioners have invited A. E. Magnus of the Good Roads association to attend the meeting and explain certain things he is alleged to have said at a recent good roads meeting about the expenditure of county funds on the roads and the amount of work that has been accomplished with the money spent. The commissioners thought the alleged statements detrimental to the members of the county board.

Will Lecture on Gas.
"Gas, Its Manufacture and Use" will be the subject of a lecture to be delivered by R. T. Hugo before the local association of stationary engineers, tomorrow evening at their hall, 30 Lagoon building. The meeting will be an open one.

Are Enjoying Themselves.
Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Knudson of this city, who left several days ago for a Southern trip, will leave New Orleans tomorrow for Honolulu. Mr. Knudson writes Duluth friends that they spent ten days at West Gaden, visited Mammoth Cave, Ky., and have had an enjoyable time, with fine weather, at New Orleans.

Postman is Surprised.
Saturday evening about fifteen of the local letter carriers surprised R. D. Rice, one of their fellow workmen, and gave him a pleasant little birthday party at his home, 112 West Superior street. Mr. Rice was presented with a picture by his friends. The following were present: Messrs. Malcolm, McDonald, Kriz, Christianson, Tussan, Blair, Benkelman, Jonnell, Starke, Johnson, Wilde, O'Donnell, Hepler, McClen, Cale and Rice.

Two Small Fires.
Fire caused an overland cooking range caused about $150 damage in the kitchen of the Zenith lunch room, 225 West Superior street, Saturday evening. The Pioneer Fuel company's office at 610 Garfield avenue was slightly damaged by an insignificant blaze in the afternoon.

Jurors are Named.
Petit jurors to serve during the March term of the district court have been drawn. A large number of jury cases have been filed. The names of those drawn follow:
C. J. Halling, Anton L. Murray, D. W. Steeding, L. R. Moore, S. E. Anderson, Walter Ashley, Charles Gauss, Alfred Peterson, Allen M. Mentzer, Louis Donald, D. McInnis, Charles H. Fugle, William Eichman, Joseph Pierce, Richard Hood, John C. Mason, Charles Davidson, Samuel J. Martin, Wilson C. Kuehn, Harry C. Myron, A. W. Hartman, H. A. Starkey, W. R. Fisher, H. A. Foss, W. C. Johnson, Archibald Kolbertson, Walter Seaton and Walter Spearin.

Secure Citizens' Papers.
Charles Devoss and Matti Mikkinla of Finland and W. G. Laughlin of Canada, took out naturalization papers Saturday in the office of the clerk of the United States circuit court and H. G. McLaughlin, also of Canada, became a citizen via the district court route.

Court Ties the Knot.
Fred P. Under and John C. Warnock procured a marriage license of the clerk of the district court Saturday afternoon, and were married before leaving the courthouse. The ceremony was performed by Probate Judge Middlecott. The young people will make their home in this city.

Optometrists Meet.
Dr. C. C. Staacke, who was recently appointed a member of the state board of examiners in optometry by Governor Johnson, leaves tomorrow evening for St. Paul to attend the annual meeting of the state association of optometrists, Feb. 27 and 28.

PERSONALS

Henry M. Hogen will leave shortly for Goodman, Mo., where he will be married to Miss Hester Iddings of that city.

Capt. A. M. McDougall and son, Miller McDougall, have gone East for a ten days trip.

Mrs. John Berggren of 218 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, left this afternoon for Sherrard, Ill., to attend the funeral of her mother-in-law.

The name—Hunt's Perfect—guarantees quality, strength, and purity in baking powder; a uniform, always reliable product at a fair price.

AT THE KING'S COMMAND.
Prof. Strobel general adviser on international law to the Siamese government has traveled much and at a recent dinner in Cambridge he told a story of his travels.

"The speaker" he said referring to a famous wit "reminds me of the famous La Guerliche of Flanders. La Guerliche was never at a loss.

Once the King of Flanders was passing through La Guerliche's country and he admitted the fine farm of Carefree the bell.

"Carefree, eh?" said the king. "Well, if he is Carefree, he is wiser than I am. Let word be sent that I shall give him audience tomorrow and I shall then ask this worthy fellow three questions—first, how much the moon weighs; second, how much the king is worth; and third, what I am thinking?"

"Carefree, eh?" said the king. "Well, if he is Carefree, he is wiser than I am. Let word be sent that I shall give him audience tomorrow and I shall then ask this worthy fellow three questions—first, how much the moon weighs; second, how much the king is worth; and third, what I am thinking?"

"Carefree, eh?" said the king. "Well, if he is Carefree, he is wiser than I am. Let word be sent that I shall give him audience tomorrow and I shall then ask this worthy fellow three questions—first, how much the moon weighs; second, how much the king is worth; and third, what I am thinking?"
